PLAINFIELD A. C. TO IMPROVE OVAL

Having Secured Renewal of Lease, Club intends to Make Many Changes at the Field.

DIRECT CAR SERVICE

GROUND TO BE FENCED IN AND MORE BLEACHERS PROMISED.

Drainage System to be Installed—Majority of Present Players Are to be Retained by Manager Johnston.

The Plainfield A. C. has secured a lease on Crescent Oval for another year, with the privilege of renewing the agreement for three years more, and plans are already being laid for making a number of improvements. Among the more important improvements will be the erection of a board fence about the entire field and the filling in of the diamond's left field to prevent a reoccurrence of the recent experience when that part of the field was covered by water. A system of drainage will be installed that will readiyy clear the diamond when necessary.

As an addition to the present grandstand, another wing will be built and bleachers will be extended further down the field on both sides of the diamond. They will be an improvement over the present style. The club also hopes to secure an extension of the trolley whereby patrons may be carried direct to the oval. An attempt was made to have the extension built this year, but certain obstacles presented themselves and delayed it.

Among other improvements will be the reservation of more room for carriages and automobiles where they will not be in the way of the crowds and yet give their occupants a clear and unobstructed view of the field.

There is every reason to believe that the present team with possibly one or two exceptions will remain here next season, as Manager Johnston feels sure that he now has a combination that is hard to beat. A first class pitcher will be engaged for the season.

Bowlby, treasurer of the American Coal Co., of No. 1 Broadway, New York, who lives in Somerville and is one of the creditors, was elected trustee by an overwhelming majority. He received all but one of the votes, which was cast for former Judge Bartine. By a vote of the creditors Mr. Bowlby's bond was fied at $100,000.

FACTS FOR VOTERS ON PRIMARY ELECTIONS

New Jersey's New Law for Joint Primaries is Explained in Detail.

CONDUCTED BY BOARD

DUTIES THAT DEVOLVE UPON THE MUNICIPAL CLERK.

Requirements of Petitions—Separate Ballot Boxes—Right to Vote—Challenges.

Primary elections shall be conducted at public expense. Such primary elections for all political parties shall be held at the same time and place. The time this year will be September 13, from 1 o'clock to 9 p. m., and said primary shall be conducted by the Board of Registry and Election.

The official ballots are prepared by the municipal clerks from petitions filed with them by the various parties. Districts casting 100 votes or less for governor only require one petitioner. Districts that cast over 100 votes will require ten petitioners. All petitioners must be members of the same party as the candidate petitioned for and reside in the district. The signers of petitions can only make one endorsement to the same convention, but there is nothing in the law to prevent one signing petitions for delegates to different conventions. These petitions must be filed with the municipal clerk not less than ten days prior to primary election.

The credentials for successful delegates or members of this committee will be furnished by their borough or township clerk.

Twenty days before primary election the municipal clerk shall provide and secure a suitable room in eac election district of the respective municipalities in which to hold the primary election, and immediately upon securing said room, the clerk shall notify the Board of Registry and Election of such voting district that such room has been procured, and it shall be the duty of the clerk procuring such rooms to arrange the same for a polling place in the manner required by law for general elections.

Republican ballots are to be deposited in the Republican ballot box, Democratic ballots in Democratic box. Those having voted the Democratic ticket at last primary election, which fact is indicated on the poll sheet, cannot vote in the Republican ballot box at the following primary election, nor a Republican in the Democratic ballot box. In erasing names from the official ballots only black lead pencils are to be used. Any other colored pencil might give reason for the board rejecting the ballot.

There is nothing to prevent the voter from writing on the official ballot with a black lead pencil the name of anyone not printed thereon for which he desires to vote.

No one can vote at the primary whose name is not on the primary list, but there is nothing to prevent the name being placed on the list during said primary election.

Challengers for the primary elections are appointed by the chairman of the county committees and will be furnished with certificates which are to be filed with the election board. The same challengers will also act at the regular fall election, but will receive separate certificates for the purpose from the County Election Board.

Bank for Metuchen.

A meeting to further discuss the organization of a bank in Metuchen was held at the water company's office last evening. It was attended by every citizen who has Metuchen's interests at heart. It has been impossible to raise the necessary capital heretofore but now that is assured if only a proper interest is shown by the townspeople. A bank is greatly needed. It will add very much to the importance of Metuchen.

Kind Hearted Merchants.

Marchant Brothers, of North avenue, yesterday donated forty quarts of cream to the Netherwood camp. It was frozen into ice cream by W. W. Warnock, of West Front street, who added cake in order to provide the children and their friends with a double treat. The thoughtfulness of the two merchants was greatly appreciated by Miss Curry and her little charges.

Mrs. Thomas Minford and family, of Watchung avenue, who have been at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, R. I., since early in June, have returned home.

WORKING FOR TAX REFORM

PLAINFIELD MAN IN CHARGE OF IMPORTANT WORK IN NEW YORK STATE.

William Jeffery, the well known local real estate man, has been engaged by the New York Tax Reform Association to make a tour of the Hudson Valley to organize non-partisan committees to endorse the Bostwick bill and to request its re-enactment at the next session of the Legislature. The Bostwick bill provides for a record tax of one-half of one per cent. on mortgages and exemption from other taxation. Mr. Jeffery states that the purpose of the association is to extend the movement to all important towns and cities throughout the State of New York.

He has already organized committees at Newburgh, Fishkill, Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Saugerties, Ellenville and Matteawan. Later on he will visit Middletown, Goshen, Port Jervis, Monticello, Troy, Syracuse and Utica.

DEATH OF JAMES J. DAY

PROMINENT WEST ENDER SUCCUMBS TO COMPLICATION OF TROUBLES.

James J. Day, one of the best known residents of the West End, died at his home on Liberty street, yesterday afternoon, after two weeks' illness with bronchitis. He had been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism and lately complications ensued. His death was totally unexpected as on Tuesday he spoke of feeling better than at any time in many months and was walking about the house.

Mr. Day was the son of the late Patrick Day and was the last member of his one time large family. He was thirty-four years old and had resided in this city all his life. In his younger days he was prominent throughout the county as an athlete and baseball player and was one of the members of the original St. Mary baseball team organized in 1888. He always retained his interest in baseball affairs and for the past few years has been connected with the recent St. Mary teams' management. He was also fond of fishing and spent a great deal of his time at the favorite "haunts" along Staten Island Sound. Surviving him are a widow and two children.

Funeral services over the body will be held from St. Mary's church Saturday morning and interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

WORKMEN'S NARROW ESCAPE

FIFTY FEET OF SHAFTING TORN FROM FASTENINGS AT POTTER PLANT.

By the catching of a pulley belt in a wheel at the Potter Press Works this morning, nearly fifty feet of the main shafting in the machine shop was torn from its fastenings and hurled to the floor. Several workmen had narrow escapes from injury, one of them, Edward Howes, jumping aside just in time to avoid being struck by a heavy section. The accident caused a shutdown in the lathe department but the damage will probably be repaired by tomorrow.

The piece of belting evidently slipped into a small crevice in the wheel and held fast instead of going around. As it passed over a big machine, the latter retained its place and the shafting was unable to stand the tension. The accident is one of the most peculiar that has happened at the Potter plant and it is considered extremely fortunate that no one was hurt

Stole Johnson's Fowls.

Hearing a commotion among his fowls last night, Samuel Johnson, of Park avenue, near Avon Park, hurried to his window just in time to see three men run out of his yard and disappear in nearby woods. Going to his hennery he found that forty-eight fowls and two geese had been taken. Mr. Johnson believes he knows who the three men were and so reported to the local police.

River Carnival.

The annual river carnival will be held on the Cranford river Labor Day night at 8 o'clock, at which time there will be a fine display of canoes, boats and floats in line. Valuable prizes will be given. John L. Derby, Jr., will act as commodore.

George Scott's Funeral.

Funeral services over the body of George Scott were held from the Mt. Olive Baptist church yesterday afternoon, Rev. E. E. Jackson officiating. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

POLICE FIND ONE OF TWO MISSING MEN

Daniel Galbraith Located Last Night at Home of Relatives in Connecticut.

SEARCHING FOR BENTON

NO TRACE OF BOOKKEEPER WHO WENT AWAY TEN DAYS AGO.

Last Heard From in New York, Where He Appeared at Home of Friend—Case Placed in Hands of Counsellor Randolph.

Through the efforts of the local police and members of his family, Daniel Galbraith, the missing sexagenarian who disappeared from his home Monday, was found last night with relatives in Connecticut. The aged man had gotten confused in alighting from a Jersey Central train at Jersey City and instead of going to New York, as he intended, by the Liberty street ferry, went to South Ferry. Missing the daughter who was to meet him he wandered about until he eventually reached the place where he was found

William S. Benton.

Chief Kiely and his men have now turned their entire attention to the search for William S. Benton, bookkeeper for A. M. Griffen, of whom all trace has been lost since last Thursday. He left Griffen's store as usual Monday night a week ago and on reaching home, informed his landlady, Mrs. Runyon, of Central avenue, that he wished to be called at 6:15 the next morning. Mrs. Runyon obeyed instructions but found that he had already arisen and gone out. Nothing was heard from him then until Thursday when he appeared at the home of a friend in New York. From the latter he secured a small loan and said that he was going back to Plainfield.

He failed to return and thinking he had gone to Long Lake in the Adirondacks where his daughter, Miss Eva Benton, has been spending the summer, Mr. Griffen wired to that place. She sent a reply but the message became confused in transmission and it was believed to have come from him. To make doubly certain Mr. Griffen wrote Miss Benton and he then received a telegram stating positively that the missing man had not been at Long Lake and so far as Miss Benton knew he had never started for there. She immediately came to Plainfield and on the advice of friends placed the matter in the hands of Counsellor Asa F. Randolph. The latter placed himself in communication with the New York police yesterday but they could give him no information and today Chief Kiely is following up the slender clues furnished.

It is Mr. Randolph's opinion that Mr. Benton wandered away in a fit of aberration and that he is in New York at the present time. He is very well acquainted in the metropolis and the fact that he had no funds makes it almost certain that he could not have gotten a great distance away. He had nothing to worry him at his place of employment and so far as known had been enjoying his usual health for weeks before.

Mr. Benton is described as a man sixty-five year old, five feet, six inches in height and weighing about 150 pounds. He has blue eyes, gray hair and shuffles perceptibly in his walk. When he went away he wore a straw hat and black clothes.

All Aboard for Dreamland.

The seventeenth annual excursion of the Plainfield Grocers' Association to Coney Island on Labor Day, will be one of the best outings of the season. There are so many attractions at Coney that one can easily put in a full day of pleasure. The committee in charge has completed arrangements for the convenience and comfort of all who go on the excursion.

QUIET AFTERNOON WEDDING

MISS GERTRUDE KEEN MADE THE WIFE OF WILLIAM BAKER.

In the presence of only immediate relatives and a few intimate friends, Miss Gertrude Keen, daughter of Sylvanus Keen, of West Third street, and William Baker, of Somerset street, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Vincent, of West Third street. The ceremony was preformed by Rev. L. R. Howard. Miss Louise Martin and Henry L. Keen were in attendance as bridesmaid and best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Baker and they left later for a two weeks' trip through New England. On returning they will make their home on Somerset street. The groom is connected with several local fraternal organizations and is widely known in the city and borough.

FOR DOUBLE TRACK SYSTEM

PETITION BEING CIRCULATED TO ASK COUNCIL TO GRANT PERMISSION.

Charles H. Hand, the real estate dealer, is busily engaged in getting signatures to a petition to be presented to the Common Council at its next meeting, asking that the Public Service Corporation be allowed the right to lay a double track on Front street, from the corner of Somerset street to Watchung avenue, and on Watchung avenue from Front street to Fourth street.

The petition provides that the trolley company pave along the distance of this double track with vitrified brick, a width of eighteen feet, which includes eighteen inches on either side of the outside track.

Mr. Hand in interesting himself in this matter to relieve the congested condition of Watchung avenue, has found a number of large property-owners in favor of the improvement, notably the First and City National Banks, the Pittis estate and Woodhull & Martin. Mr. Hand claims that he will have no trouble whatever in getting over fifty per cent. of the property-owners' consents to lay a double track and he will urge favorable action by the Council. With the laying of double tracks trolley cars would not congregate as at present on Watchung avenue, but would run right through.

THE FAITHFUL ASSEMBLYMEN

NEWARK NEWS PRAISES MOFFETT, GUNN AND HAGUE.

The Newark Evening News yesterday paid this tribute to Union County's Assemblymen:

"Assemblyman Moffett, of Union County, has had but one term, but he flatly declines renomination. His colleagues, Assemblymen Hague, of Elizabeth, and Gunn, of Springfield, will probably be placed again on the Democratic county ticket. Here is a curious tale. Messrs. Moffett, Hague and Gunn were excellent Assemblymen; they represented Union County faithfully and well. They voted for equal taxation, upheld the robin bill, supported the pigeon bill, opposed the Steel Trust measure and made a record that was creditable to the highest degree. But their chances for re-election are very small; they are Democrats, and Union County is Republican when factional fights do not strew the political field with Republican corpses. Their election last year was due to Republican quarrels and to the presence of a colored man on the Republican ticket. There are dark hints of unsheathed knives and disinterred hatchets this year, and if these are brought into new activity Mr. Hague may stand some chance of re-election, but it is not at all probable that the Assembly part of the ticket will be the point of attack next November, whatever other part may be fired on. It is Presidential year and the lines will be closely drawn."

To Erect Three Dwellings.

Thomas J. Hughes, of East Second street, has secured permit for the erection of three dwelling houses on the northwest side of East Second street, near Richmond street. The buildings will each measure 20x24x31 feet and will be two stories in height. Herman Hansen, the architect, is to have charge of the carpenter work, and William Thomson will do the mason work.

—Edward Golden, the night telegraph operator at the North Avenue station, has been enjoying a vacation.

RECOLLECTIONS OF FIRST COMMON COUNCIL

ORGANIZED IN 1869

THE LIQUOR LICENSE FEE WAS $650 A YEAR LESS THEN.

At That Time $10,000 a Year Was Considered a Sufficient Appropriation — Mr. Brown's Career.

The recent death of Joseph W. Yates, who was one of the original members of the Plainfield Common Council organized in 1869, recalls the fact that John B. Brown, of 414 Park avenue, is now the only surviving member of that body. His memory is exceedingly good regarding events of the time when the city was not as large as Somerville. Where a majority of the business house are located today, there were cow paths and cornfields in those days.

Mr. Brown was born in Somerville and while a young man learned the blacksmith's trade in New Brunswick, where he was apprenticed. In 1846 he came to Plainfield and soon afterward started in business for himself on Somerset street. His first shop was a small one, but later he erected what is now known as the Heidloff building on Somerset street, where he continued successfully the blacksmith business until his health failed in 1875 when he retired. Since then he has lived quietly and enjoyed the fruits of hard labor. His home on Park avenue is one of the most attractive and comfortable in the city and Mr. Brown takes special pride in keeping the spacious lawn in the best of condition.

In recalling events of the early days, Mr. Brown tells with considerable pleasure of affairs of the first Council. The body was composed of eleven members as at present and Mr. Brown was one of the War Democrats. He served the town as Councilman off and on until 1878 and points with pride to the fact that he always worked for the best interests of the town, regardless of politics.

The original liquor license fee was $50 and those in that business were not allowed to sell anything but beer. Later an attempt was made to allow the selling of rum and this caused a storm of protests. After many heated arguments the Council agreed to raise the fee to $500 a year, this being considered a somewnat prohibitive measure. In those days there were very few drinking places in town and drunkenness was practically unknown.

Mr. Brown says that when he considers that in those days $10,000 was the yearly appropriation for everything, including light, police, streets, fire department and other things, he thinks the town was doing pretty well. One year a large sum was desired, but the taxpayers voted it down.

"In those days," says Mr. Brown, "the citizens ran the town, but nowadays the Council does this work. Then the majority of officers were elected by the people, but now it is the reverse."

In 1882 Mr. Brown was elected collector of taxes. He served but one year and because he enforced the law and did his duty he made many enemies among those who were friends. At the expiration of his term he consented to run again, when he failed to get as many votes as he did majority in the first election.

Although well advanced in years Mr. Brown still takes a lively interest in public matters and keeps himself well-posted on the affairs of the day. He does not show his age and there is scarcely a day but that he does not take a pleasure trip of some kind either by trolley, train or boat

Judge Feels Hurt.

In the court of quarter sessions Alan Strong, son of Judge Strong, secured a rule from Judge Strong, of Middlesex county, Tuesday morning, directing Francis W. Daire, editor and manager of the New Brunswick Times, to appear in court Friday, to show cause why an attachment should not issue against him for contempt of court. The application was based upon the Times' criticism of Judge Strong's action in sentencing a man convicted of rape on a fifteen-year-old girl to pay a fine of $75. Judge Strong granted the order.

GEORGE A. HORNE WEDS MISS E. H. DYER

Boroughite is Married to a Former Plainfield Girl at Her Home in Cincinnati.

RECEPTION FOLLOWS

MISS ALMA DYER, A YOUNGER SISTER, AS BRIDESMAID.

F. Roland Horne, Brother of the Groom, Best Man—Couple to Reside in Hackensack.

Miss Edith Hoyt Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Shelley Dyer, of Cincinnati, and George Augustus Horne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Horne, of Willow avenue, were married yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mt. Harrison, Cincinnati. The affair was a quiet one, only the members of the two families being present. A reception followed, which was attended by many guests. Among the Plainfielders attending the wedding were Mr. Horne's parents, his sister, Miss Elsie Horne, and his younger brother, F. Roland Horne.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Alma Dyer, as bridesmaid, while Mr. Horne's brother, F. Roland Horne, was best man.

The bride was formerly a resident of this city, having moved here with her parents four years ago. They lived at the corner of Central avenue and West Sixth street. They removed to Cincinnati about two years ago.

Mr. Horne, who has been a resident of this city most of his life, completed the North Plainfield High School course in 1893 and was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the Class of '95. The next fall he entered Lehigh University and was graduated from there as a chemist in 1899. Following his experience as chemist with a large concern, he entered the employ of B. T. Babbitt & Co., where he has attained the position of head chemist. For some time Mr. Horne has been very active in the various organizations at the First M. E. church.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Horne will reside in Hackensack, the change being necessitated by reason of the fact that Mr. Horne's employers have established their new factory in that town. Their many friends will regret their removal from this city.

AFTER THE DELINQUENTS

FANWOOD TOWNSHIP DOESN'T PROPOSE TO BE TRIFLED WITH ANY LONGER.

Taking advantage of the recently enacted State law which says that townships must advertise and sell all properties, personal and real estate, on which taxes are due beyond the time prescribed by law, the Fanwood township authorities have commenced drastic measures against delinquents. The measure contains the clause that if the authorities do not take this action they lose all claim against the properties and this has been a spur in the present sudden move.

In the past Fanwood township has been very lenient and taxes have been allowed to accumulate against properties year after year, until the list has become burdensome. Now all is to be changed and Special Officer Henry Garrier has notified all delinquents that excuses for non-payment will no longer be accepted and that the letter of the law will be lived up to. Some of the residents have already asked for an extension of time in order to avoid the added expense of a sale charged to them.

Fanwood borough has had very little trouble from delinquencies as Collector Charles Sheelen has a way of convincing owners that "to pay up is best." As a rule his budget is clear when the annual report is submitted and he never has to hold more than one sale a year. The township's delinquent list has always aggregated several thousand dollars.

Plainfield vs. Somerville.

Manager Johnston, of the Plainfield A. C., met representatives from the West Ends, of Somerville, last night and fixed Saturday, September 17, as the date for a game between the teams on Crescent Oval. It is said that the West Ends may have George Wiltse, of the New York Nationals, to pitch for them. The contest should arouse considerable enthusiasm as the Somerville people will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters.

BOOK NEWS.

It is planned to issue on Thursday of each week items of library news. This will frequently take the form of book lists, such as lists of books recently added, lists on special subjects and like topics. Frequently the lists will be annotated, the aim being to make these annotations of real service to the reader, by giving him the opinion of a trustworthy critic as to the value of the books or a few words as to their scope. Borrowers should keep these lists. The Plainfield Public Library will furnish to anyone making application a list of its books on a given subject.

Public Library Notes.

Modern attractive editions of famous books in the Public Library. Part 2.

Especial care is given at the Public Library in buying the works of standard writers, or in replacing those worn out in the service, to select good and attractive editions. In view of the popularity of little books, these have frequently been given the preference, provided type and paper come up to the requirements. These books have been so popular that a partial list is now offered.

RUSSIA STOPS JAPAN

Kuropatkin In Great Battle Holds Liaoyang.

BAYONET CHECKED FIVE ASSAULTS

Fortifications Render the Town Almost Impregnable, and the Czar's Troops Believe There Will Be No More Retreats.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that the Russians have effected an advance along the railway to the southward of Liaoyang. General Kuropatkin has repulsed all the Japanese attacks so far and will not abandon his position.

The position of the town renders it nearly impregnable, and General Kuropatkin has at his disposal troops equal in numbers and morale to the Japanese. They number 250,000. The force is made up of six Siberian and two European army corps, with 144 squadrons of cavalry and 300 guns.

General Kuropatkin holds around Liaoyang seventeen forts, heavily armed with artillery. The superiority of General Kuropatkin's cavalry compensates to a certain extent for the inferiority of his artillery.

Three Japanese armies are before Liaoyang, and their artillery constantly pours shrapnel upon all the Russian positions. A body of Russian cavalry traversing an exposed route was cut to pieces. It lost 500 men.

The Japanese have carried on the fight with an energy approaching desperation, but the Russians are buoyed up in the belief that a point has been reached where there will be no more retreating, and the Japanese attacks are met with shouts and hurrahs from the trenches and the rifle pits.

Five times the Japanese hurled themselves against the Russian line, but each time they were repulsed at the point of the bayonet.

There were about 1,000 guns in action on each side, but Russia has more guns emplaced than have the Japanese.

The losses cannot yet be computed, but they have been great everywhere, especially among the artillerymen. In the First Russian artillery brigade every officer was either killed or wounded, and some of the guns were silenced absolutely owing to the death of all the gun crews.

With the knowledge that the Russian and Japanese armies about Liaoyang are locked in a death struggle, it is believed at St. Petersburg that the fight cannot stop short of the crushing defeat of one side or the other.

All reports so far are favorable to the Russians. It is stated officially that the report that the railway and the telegraph have been cut north of Liaoyang is untrue.

It is thought that, in view of the numbers engaged, the desperateness of the assaults and the length of the line, about seven miles, the losses in the two days' fighting cannot fall short of 10,000 on each side.

Both sides are straining every nerve, realizing that the fortunes of war for a whole year are in the scale, and neither side is in the mood or the position to spare men in the effort to achieve a final victory.

The battle of Liaoyang will probably rank as one of the great sanguinary battles of history. It is estimated by the general staff that the Japanese armies engaged number seventeen divisions of 15,000 men each, or, allowing for inefficients, about 240,000 men. Each division has thirty-six guns, and there are two independent artillery brigades of 100 guns each, making a total of about 860 guns. The estimates range at from 600 to 1,000 guns per side.

In the preliminary fighting on Monday the Russians captured 200 prisoners, who have already arrived at Harbin, and reports say that they have captured over forty Japanese guns.

General Kuropatkin's effective forces are variously estimated at from 170,000 to 200,000 men.

MAJOR L. L. SEAMAN.

Tried to Carry American Flag Into Port Arthur.

CHEFU, Sept. 1.—Major L. L. Seaman, U. S. A., has returned to Chefu after an adventurous attempt to enter Port Arthur. Leaving Chefu, Major Seaman proceeded to Taikintau, one of the Miaotau islands. Unable to obtain a junk here, he secured a lifeboat belonging to a steamer recently wrecked, and, with four coolies as oarsmen and the third mate of the wrecked steamer, he started for Port Arthur. He carried a makeshift American flag with twenty-two stripes.

A head wind and a strong tide compelled Major Seaman to return to his starting place at nightfall. He slept on the pebbly beach. On Aug. 28 he secured a small junk and with a favorable wind sped toward Port Arthur. He passed a Japanese cruiser unnoticed and saw four battleships in the vicinity of the harbor's mouth. His junk drifted too close to the shore, and it was fired upon by Japanese riflemen. Discovering the impossibility of landing in the face of the shore guard and warships, Major Seaman reluctantly returned.

AT FAIR'S STADIUM

World's Records Broken by American Athletes.

THREE OLYMPIC MARKS GO DOWN

Hillman of New York, Archie Hahn of Milwaukee and Leroy Samse of Indiana University Take Leading Places.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—Again have the athletes competing in the track and field events of the Louisiana Purchase exposition revival of the Olympic games demonstrated that they are the peers of any previous aggregation of international character.

On the third day of the 1904 Olympiad one world's record fell before the prowess of an American, three Olympic records were broken, the laurels going to two Americans and a Greek, and one Olympian and one world's record were broken, but owing to an unfortunate accident the time will not be allowed in the latter as the official record.

As an indication of what the day was to bring forth H. L. Hillman of the New York Athletic club ran the 400 meter hurdle in 3 2-5 seconds under the Olympic and world's record. Hillman was forced the entire distance by Frank Waller of the Milwaukee Athletic club, who finished second, and in the excitement of the race Hillman failed to clear the last hurdle clearly and the barrier fell to the ground, disqualifying his record, but not affecting the result of the race.

The 200 meter run again brought out a field of record breakers. Archie Hahn of the Milwaukee Athletic club broke the Olympic record for the run, 22 1-5 seconds, by running the distance in 21 3-5 seconds. W. J. Cartwell, Louisville, Ky., was second; William Hogoson, C. A. A., Chicago, third; F. R. Moulton, K. A. C., Kansas City, fourth. Time, 21 3-5 seconds.

Perikles Kakousis of Athens, Greece, broke the Olympic record of 245 pounds 12 ounces made at the Athens Olympiad in 1896 by V. Jensen, Copenhagen Athletic club. After gradually increasing the weights Kakousis broke the record by lifting 246 pounds.

Pole Vault (handicap)—Leroy Samse, Indiana university (scratch), first, 11 feet 9 inches; Walter B. Dray, Oxford school, Bloomington, Ind. (1 inch), second, 11 feet; Claude Allen, G. N. Y. I. A. A., New York (7 inches), third, 11 feet 2 inches; L. G. Wilkins, C. A. A., Chicago, fourth, 11 feet 2 inches. Heights were actual jumps.

MARX MURDERS.

Searching Party Found Only Body of a Horse.

COLCHESTER, Conn., Sept. 1.—The search for bodies on the farm of Gershon Marx, the alleged murderer, was continued until nightfall by a large squad of farm hands, but no trace of a human body was found. It was ascertained that the bones dug up were those of a horse buried on the farm by Marx several years ago, and not those of a man, as was at first thought probable.

The officials here are still of the opinion that there are bodies somewhere about the Marx farm and will continue the search until the entire property has been gone over. While digging, two old wells, filled up to the ground level, were found, and they will be dug out.

Struck a Rooter For Yelling at Him.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 1.—During the first game between Cincinnati and New York here Catcher Bowerman left the New York bench and struck a man in "rooters' row" who had been yelling at him. The ball park police were taking Bowerman from the field when Umpire Zimmer interfered. Albert Hartzell, a music teacher in the public schools, who had been hit by Bowerman, then appealed to the city police, when eight officers came into the field and took Bowerman to the city prison. The New York players advanced on the officers at first as if to rescue Bowerman. Hartzell's jaw was badly cut by the blow, but after accompanying the officers with Bowerman to the city prison he refused to prosecute, and Bowerman was released.

Parker at Ellenville Fair.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Judge Parker returned home about 8 o'clock last night after his third absence from Rosemount since his nomination for the presidency. He went to the Ulster county fair at Ellenville, which is twenty-seven miles southwest of Kingston, on the Port Jervis branch of the New York, Ontario and Western railroad. With Mrs. Parker and his brother, Fred H. Parker, he went to Kingston and rode across the city on a trolley car to the New York, Ontario and Western station, where he was joined by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Searing and Miss Searing, who accompanied the party for the remainder of the day.

Bryan Will Work for Parker.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The following is an extract from a letter just received at Democratic headquarters from William J. Bryan: "I have just wired you expressing my regret that I cannot attend the meeting of the Democratic editors Sept. 5. I am going to the mountains for a rest, but will be ready to enter the campaign by the 1st of October. I shall be glad to devote to the national campaign as much time as I can spare. Let me know where you think I can help."

Racing at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—Jack Moran, Lady Vashti, Ollie Burnett and Opinion were the winning favorites of the card at the fair grounds.

Caughnawaga Won Twin City.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—In a hard drive Caughnawaga at 3 to 1 won the Twin City handicap of $13,000 to the winner at Sheepshead Bay, with Dainty second and Graziallo third. The mile and a quarter was run in the fast time of 2:05. McChesney, who won this stake last year, defeating the great Hermis, was made favorite on the strength of a very fast trial, but was always outrun, finishing next to last. Coming into the stretch Caughnawaga was leading, but Dainty was not to be denied, and in a hard drive which lasted from the head of the stretch to the wire Caughnawaga won by half a length. Artful, winner of the Futurity on Saturday, added another victory to her list by winning the $10,000 Great Filly stakes.

Mustard Won Pacing Cup.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 1.—Cleveland again carried off the major portion of the first places in the second and last day of Intercity matinee. The feature event, the Cleveland pacing cup race, was won by Congressman Beidler's Mustard, driven by H. K. Devereaux, who also won the Cleveland Challenge trotting cup race Tuesday with Aerolite. Mr. Devereaux's driving was the feature of the day. Of the sixteen events of the two days ten were won by Cleveland, two by New York, two by Syracuse, one by Memphis and one by Pittsburg. C. K. G. Billings rode the trotter Charlie Mac under saddle to a new world's record of 2:14¾.

Dalvay Equaled Record.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Dalvay equaled the track record, 1:42 3-5, at Hariem for one mile and seventy yards. Shawana set all the pace and led up to within fifty yards of the wire, where Dalvay, who was easily the best of the field, came to the front and won going away. Dalvay had enough in reserve to have broken the track record if a drive had been necessary to win the race. Bowling Bridge, who has been given out as a good thing in a number of races lately, secured the first race by a nose in 1:01.

Neil Had the Better.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Frankie Neil of San Francisco, the bantamweight, and Tommy Murphy of New York went six rounds to a draw at the National Athletic club here last night. It was a terrific fight from beginning to end, and both men received some hard punishment. Neil, however, had slightly the better of the bout.

Dan Patch Broke Record.

LINCOLN, Neb Sept. 1.—In an exhibition mile on the state fair grounds here Dan Patch lowered the record for a half mile track and clipped three-quarters of a second off his own best time for a half mile track, made at Des Moines last week. He covered the mile yesterday in 2:05¼ on a track still a trifle lumpy from recent rains.

Whitman Making Fast Run.

BUFFALO, Sept. 1.—W. L. Whitman, who is trying to break the San Francisco-New York automobile record, arrived in Buffalo at 5 o'clock last night and left for Rochester. He expects to reach New York on Saturday. Whitman left San Francisco on Aug. 1. The present record is sixty-one days.

Albany Won Polo Cups.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The Saratoga Polo club's annual tournament match played here for the United States Hotel cups was won by Albany's first team from the Saratogas by 10 to 6½.

Cornell's Condition Serious.

CITIZENS HUNT MAN WITH GUNS

Mrs. Spencer Shot At to Terrorize Dr. Hartwell's Family.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Sept. 1.—This entire section is aroused over what appears to be a new chapter in the story of the dastardly assault upon Dr. Henry Hartwell, an aged resident of Judds Bridge, and the robbery of $5,000 which he had drawn from a local bank with which to buy bonds offered to him at a bargain price by a smooth talking stranger. Mrs. G. C. Spencer, daughter of Dr. Hartwell and wife of a clergyman of Greenwich, was stopped on the highway near her father's home last night by a masked man and three times shot at. One of the bullets touched her dress, but in no way harmed her. Mrs. Spencer, who for some days had been carrying a small caliber revolver because of threatening letters received by the Hartwell family, returned the fire at the man, but probably did not hit him, although he jumped into the bushes and disappeared.

Mrs. Spencer continued home and reported the incident and, accompanied by her husband, returned to town and informed Sheriff McMahon of the shooting. A number of citizens were called upon to go out in search of the masked man, and all carried guns when they went into the woods.

The letters sent to members of the Hartwell family and directly to Dr. Hartwell are identical. They state that "if you do not let up on this matter" (the robbery of Dr. Hartwell) "and call off your constables and sheriff we will kill you and the constables and sheriff as well, all of whom we know." At first the family did not think any direct threat was made, but now they are all very much frightened. When the letters came it was thought that the confidence men who sent Dr. Hartwell some typewritten letters the day after the robbery were sending a second lot as a matter of course.

DEPEW AT HORNELLSVILLE.

Senator at Fair Grounds Replied to D. B. Hill.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Senator Depew addressed a large number of people at the Hornellsville fair. He was received with great enthusiasm when he appeared in front of the grand stand and when he was introduced. In the course of his remarks he referred to the published statement that former Senator David B. Hill would retire from active politics after January and said he felt as though he was at a funeral. He regretted the loss of so picturesque a figure from the Democratic platform.

He congratulated the Republican party on the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary and spoke of the many achievements due to the policy of the party. Some credit, he said, was due to honest Democrats who had left their party because of its policy and had united with the Republicans to save their country. He referred to the growth of Hornellsville since he first spoke there and attributed it to the policy of the Republican party.

It remained to be seen whether the people would trust the government to Parker, who had just ascertained where he stood. He spoke of President Roosevelt's action in the Perdicaris and Beirut cases and said Judge Parker would have waited to try the cases before acting, while President Roosevelt acted at once. This, he said, was imperialism. There are two men, he continued, who stand out in America as illustrative of the best type of the American people—General Jackson and Theodore Roosevelt. In conclusion he said both candidates are men of pure lives, one a judge, the other a splendid executive officer.

An International Strike.

MARSEILLES, Sept. 1.—The striking dock workers at a meeting issued an appeal to their fellow workers in all Mediterranean ports, including those of Algeria and Corsica, to strike today. They also decided to ask the national federation to call out the dock laborers of all French ports, and a meeting will be held at Paris the end of this week to decide whether or not the request shall be complied with. The strikers probably will appeal to the international federation demanding a strike in other European countries, beginning with Spain and Italy.

Doctor and Wife Killed.

WARREN, O., Sept. 1.—Dr. Albert G. Miner, one of the best known men in northeastern Ohio, and his wife, Jennie Van Liew Miner, were killed last night in a grade crossing collision here. Dr. Miner and his wife were driving along a road crossed by the Baltimore and Ohio tracks. Either the doctor did not hear the flagman's warning of danger or else could not stop his horse, and their vehicle was crushed by the collision with a passenger train, death being immediate in both cases.

Princess Ran Away With Her Lover.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—Princess Louise of Coburg, whose relations with Keglevich Mattasitch, a former lieutenant in the Austrian army, has caused a great scandal in European royal circles and who has been kept under the closest restraint, has vanished from Bad Elster, where she has been taking the cure. It is presumed that the princess is in the company of Mattasitch and is seeking to gain an asylum where she will be safe from recapture.

Twenty-five Hundred Guilty.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Twenty-five hundred retail druggists in the United States were declared guilty of contempt of court by Judge Dunne of the circuit court, and the National Association of Retail Druggists of which they are members was fined $2,000, while Thomas Y. Westen, secretary of the organization, was fined $500.

A CANADIAN WRECK

Nine Killed and Fifty Injured on Grand Trunk Railway.

HEAD-ON COLLISION NEAR RICHMOND

Island Pond Train and Montreal Special Came Together, Smashing Both Engines and Telescoping Six Cars.

RICHMOND, Que., Sept. 1.—Nine persons were killed outright, two others have since died and fifty were injured here in the worst railway accident that has taken place in this province since the Craig's road disaster in 1885.

J. P. Blanchet, M. P. for St. Hyacinthe, Quebec; Charles Simard of St. Hyacinthe, T. H. Hacket, route agent Canadian Express company, and William Mountain of Windsor Mills are dead.

The regular No. 5 Grand Trunk passenger train from Island Pond, Vt., collided with the special fair train from Montreal to Sherbrooke. The train was packed with people. There was a terrific crash, and the first two passenger cars in each train telescoped the baggage cars, while both engines were smashed to bits.

Within five minutes there were numerous willing helpers on the spot, and the rescue was commenced. Physicians were telephoned for from all over the surrounding country, and a special train was immediately sent from Sherbrooke with half a dozen doctors and nurses to aid them. Of the injured twenty-five are in a serious condition.

Several of the dead are so badly cut up and crushed that they are unrecognizable.

The responsibility for the collision has not been made known.

MRS. M'VICKER'S BODY.

Autopsy Being Held to Settle Question of Foul Play.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 1.—City Chemist Day commenced an analysis of the contents of the stomach of Mrs. J. H. McVicker. The autopsy held immediately following death did not disclose any signs of poisoning, but on order of H. C. Wyatt, acting as the personal representative of Horace McVicker of Chicago, the stomach was removed and placed in the hands of the city chemist. The examination is expected to finally settle all question concerning the manner of her death.

Dr. Zeigler, the private physician of Mrs. McVicker, at first declined to allow the administrator to take charge of the property, but later acquiesced.

The body of Mrs. McVicker, which is being held at a Pasadena undertaking establishment subject to the order of Mr. Wyatt, will be sent to the Chicago relatives today.

Up Goes Price of Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—In accordance with custom the anthracite coal producing companies will today put up the price of coal to the regular winter rates. On the 1st of April each year the price of coal is reduced 50 cents and thereafter increased 10 cents a ton each month until September, when the regular prices are reached. The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company's price list for domestic sizes for September is as follows: Free white ash, broken, $4.50; egg, stove and chestnut sizes, $4.75.

McDermot's Body Found.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The body of John J. McDermot, aged thirty years, janitor of a public school in Jersey City, has been found in the woods northwest of Green lake, a body of water four miles from here. McDermot, who with his wife and two children, had been staying at Green lake, had been missing since the 25th ult. His body, almost nude, was found lying on a rock in the woods. In the opinion of the coroner he had been dead but three days.

Fall of Pittsburg Elevator.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 1.—By the fall of an elevator in the Park building here five persons were hurt, one of whom may die. The most seriously injured was Edward Rosenberger, aged fourteen years, whose skull was fractured. He will probably die. John W. Mooney of Buffalo, assistant manager of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill company, had a leg broken. The others sustained severe but not serious injuries.

Hamlet Destroyed by Fire.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 1.—Forest fires have destroyed the hamlet of Little Bay, and 300 families are homeless. Two men have been drowned. The steamer Prospero has embarked the women and children. The men are fighting the flames in an effort to prevent the destructive fires from covering a wider area. The government is providing food, shelter and other assistance for the destitute.

Cleveland on Fishing Tour.

BUZZARDS BAY, Mass., Sept. 1.—Former President Grover Cleveland, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland and Dr. Joseph Bryant of New York, have arrived here. They came from the Cleveland summer home at North Sandwich, N. H., and upon reaching here were driven to Gray Gables. Mr. Cleveland and Dr. Bryant are here for a few days of salt water fishing.

Forest Fires Cost $30,000.

WALLACE, Ida., Sept. 1.—Heavy rains have extinguished all forest fires in this part of the state, which have been raging with unprecedented fury for nearly a month. About $30,000 worth of timber was destroyed in the vicinity of Coeur d'Alene lake.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 1, 1904.

Because it contrasted the sentence of a man convicted of a heinous offense against a fifteen years old girl with that of three negroes convicted of a similar offense in Burlington County, Judge Woodbridge Strong, of Middlesex County, has issued an order directing the editor of the New Brunswick Times to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court. In referring to the court's action the Times says: "It is very seldom that the right of a free press, and the public, especially of the press, to criticise the acts of a judge or of a court has been questioned in this way. Judge Strong has taken an unusual method of showing his disapproval of the criticisms that have been made of him in his official capacity." It does seem that Judge Strong has taken a questionable way of vindicating his judicial character. It would have been much better for him to have instituted a suit for libel as an ordinary citizen and seek damages for an injured reputation. Speaking of the Middlesex County judge, the Newark Daily Advertiser says: "Judge Woodbridge Strong, of the Middlesex County Court, who won unenviable notoriety by extraordinary clemency which he extended to Valentine, the conscienceless thief who plundered and wrecked the Middlesex County Bank at Perth Amboy, of which he was cashier, has performed a judicial act even worse than that grave miscarriage of justice. A depraved wretch who pleaded non vult in Judge Strong's court this week to an atrocious crime against a girl of fifteen years, was sentenced by this remarkable judge to pay a fine of $75, and was discharged. The crime committed was of the most revolting character, but the Middlesex judge saw nothing in it more serious than a minor offense. When the State was scandalized by the Valentine sentence the expectation was entertained that Judge Strong would not be permitted to serve another term, but Governor Voorhees re-appointed him, and this second and graver scandal is the result."

If the city allows the trolley company to have a double track system on Front street, between Somerset street and Watchung avenue, and on Watchung avenue, between Front street and Fourth street, a provision should be made that the thoroughfares, between the points designated, be covered from curb to curb with vitrified brick and that the company receiving the benefit from the Common Council defray the entire expense of such improvement. Privileges are given too freely in this age, but we have no fear that the local authorities will be guilty of handing out valuable rights without getting something in return. The two track system will never solve the question as to how to relieve the condition brought about by permitting the trolley company to use Watchung avenue as a station. That is the important subject for the Councilmanic fathers to consider, and the only feasible solution for it seems to be to order the company to establish a station on private property.

Now is the time for the Common Council to consider the matter of widening Park avenue, the opportunity being presented by a realty deal which has been stated in these columns. The west side of Park avenue, between Second street and North avenue, is to undergo great improvement. The present buildings are to be torn down and a handsome structure erected. Why not take steps to have the street widened at the same time? A congested condition of traffic is constantly produced on Park avenue because of the narrowness of that thoroughfare. This is particularly true of the section between North avenue and Front street. Let steps be taken now to widen the thoroughfare between North avenue and Second street. In the near future there may be a chance to make the same improvement between Second and Front streets.

It might be well for the proper city officials to get after the Public Service Corporation for its neglect to sprinkle the streets through which its cars are run. The streets are not copiously watered as the ordinance provides and the dusty condition of them is a source of much annoyance.

Senator Kean denies that he wrote Congressman Fowler to inquire whether Charles Napoleon would be in the running again this fall. There have not been any communications between Russia and Japan, either, for some time.

SEPTEMBE-R; THE OYSTE-R

BIVALVE SEASON REOPENS TODAY AND SUPPLY WILL BE PLENTIFUL.

With the beginning of September today and the recurrence of a month name in which the R appears, lovers of the bivalves of this city rejoice once more. Reports from the leading markets of the city tend to show that this season is to be specially good. Not for five years have the oysters been reported so plentiful, so plump, and so well appearing as they are at the opening of the season today.

Though oysters are on the metropolitan markets today, local dealers will receive no consignments until Friday. As in former years, salt water oysters will practically control the market in this city and consignments will daily come to town from the coast and bay fisheries. Endress' market is to receive daily consignments from Great South Bay, where oysters are reported as unusually fine; Blue Points and Rockaways are reported plentiful and fine. Another especially fat and well appearing oyster is sent here from Contuit, Mass., the fisheries being near Cape Cod. Ivamy's market is headquarters for these.

Practically the only fresh water oysters handled in local markets are those from Bivalve, N. J. The supply for this town is entirly controlled by Roth & Co. Captain Yates, an old oyster fisherman of Bivalve, claims that this year's product will excel both in quantity and quality of any since 1899.

Again the sound of the opening knife will be heard in the markets, again the newspapers will publish oyster recipes, again bivalves will be bought and cooked, again, after an absence of four months from the tables. Oysters are in season.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Holy Habit of religion was bestowed upon Miss Mary Dinneen, of Washington avenue, Tuesday afternoon at St. Joseph's Convent, Sisters of Mercy, in Bordentown. The Rev. Father Dumphy assisted in the reception, which was largely attended by Miss Dinneen's friends and relatives, and by a large number of visiting Sisters. The ceremony took place at 8:30. Miss Dinneen received the name of Maria Claudia, and is the first and only young lady in Dunellen to enter a life of religion. She will stay at the Bordentown Convent. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dinneen and family, Mrs. Burns and Miss Rorick, of Brooklyn and Mrs. L. S. Bowlby and daughter, of Bound Brook.

Rev. L. E. Livermore left yesterday for his home in Connecticut, where he will settle down from the active pastorate. He has made many friends during his stay here, and his departure is much regretted, not only by his own congregation, but by the community at large. Until his successor arrives, the Rev. T. E. Jordan, the church services will be under the control of the deacons.

The school library will be opened this afternoon for the reception of books.

John Alberts has gained the reputation as a cook of commendable skill and taste. It is reported that Delmonico was after him but couldn't offer a satisfactory price. Alberts, no doubt, has gained his skill in serving hot frankfurters from his experience in handling hot flies in center field.

Barney Siriski has finished the digging of his well which attainted the depth of 15 feet before water was reached.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz, of Dover, have been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vail.

James Touzeau's home and George Day's newspaper office on Front street have been shingled.

Mrs. Mary Runyon, who has been seriously ill, is somewhat improved.

A meeting of the committee of the Daughters of Liberty, Rockview Council, No. 130, will be held tomorrow night to arrange for their coming fair in October, and decide on the date. There's a Difference In DRUGS.

There's a greater difference in drugs than most people are aware of.

For instance—Common table salt costs ten cents for a 3 lb bag at the grocery; but the same thing, only purified, costs 27c a lb. Commercial Sulphuric Acid costs 2 cents, while chemically pure costs 35 cents. Commercial Murate of Ammonia costs 11 cents, but the chemically pure costs 55 cents. So it is all along the list.

For ordinary purposes the regular is all right—but when it comes to using it medicinally, then the BEST should always be used.

When we fill your prescription you always get the PUREST and BEST carefully compounded.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Sept. 4: "New Courage For New Work."—Ps. cxliv, 1-15; Acts xxviii, 15.

When a difficult work has been brought to a successful termination there is often an inclination to rest and not undertake any new task. We feel that we have earned a right to rest and others may do the new work. This is a difficult impulse to resist. But unless overcome it will prove fatal to all advancement in the outer world of work and also put an end to all the inner spirit of progress.

As soon as one thing is finished another is ready to be begun. New courage is needed for this fresh task. Experience has been gained by what we have done and skill for future doing. But, singular as it may seem, it is nevertheless true that the courage often fails at just this critical point. We feel a hesitation, almost a timidity, in the face of the unfamiliar and untried experience. We shrink from the new undertaking. This is a most critical time.

At such times the kindly interest of friendly hearts may avert disaster and inspire us to fresh achievements. Here lies much of the value of Christian fellowship. The intimacies of Christian life give us the opportunity to know the peculiarities of each other, and we can often detect the danger of discouragement to which another is exposed almost before he has become aware of it himself. If we are sympathetic in the right sort we may by timely and judicious encouragement help to avert the disaster which lies so close at hand.

No one is free from the danger of failing courage. This is not cowardice, but it may easily end in fatal panic unless it be checked in time. No greater service is possible for us to render one another than to put heart into one who is on the verge of being disheartened.

The brethren from Rome who met Paul at the Three Taverns and the market of Appius did a favor to the whole Christian world in cheering the apostle to the gentiles to meet the new trials which awaited him in the city of the Caesars. The dangers and trials through which he had passed were enough to break any but the stoutest spirit. Severe as they had been they were less severe than those he must still meet. For long years he had looked ahead to the time when he could make the journey to Rome, expecting to secure a patient and favorable hearing for the gospel in that center which was tolerant of all varieties of opinion and forms of worship.

He was at last almost at the long desired goal, but in what a different condition from what he had hoped to come! Instead of appearing as an honored teacher with a message of importance he comes as a prisoner chained to the arm of a Roman soldier and accused by his countrymen of a crime punishable with death.

If ever a man needed friends he did at that time. They appeared and he took fresh courage.

But the supreme and unfailing source of encouragement is to found not in chance meetings with friends of like ideas and tastes. There is a fountain of sure refreshment to weary and burdened souls accessible to all who feel their need. It is to this that the psalmist refers. The fact that we may hold communion with God here and now is the most momentous fact in human life. The actual union of a soul with God is the most profound secret yet discovered. It is the explanation of all hope and the foundation of invincible courage.

Have you found Him? Has He found you?

The Most Ignoble Way.

The worst kind of lie is the insinuated one. It does the most damage. After it has assumed positive form it is difficult to trace its authorship. Most people who practice that form of lying enswathe it in an expression of pity for the victim of it. They cloak their manner in a garb of conscientiousness that has the effect of a pious act upon themselves, and pray, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us," as though God did not know, nor the Almighty consider. Their self deception is such that they actually insist, "If I am anything, I am frank and open." Beware of the man who has to profess that he is bold to prove his courage, or that he is ingenuous to establish his honesty.

A Prayer.

O Lord, let me not henceforth desire health or life, except to spend them for Thee, with Thee and in Thee. Thou alone knowest what is good for me; do, therefore, what seemeth to Thee best. Give to me or take from me; conform my will to Thine, and grant that, with humble and perfect submission and in holy confidence, I may receive the orders of Thine eternal providence and may equally adore all that comes to me from Thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.—Blaise Pascal.

Worry a Disease.

Worry is the most popular form of suicide. Worry impairs appetite, disturbs sleep, makes respiration irregular, spoils digestion, irritates disposition, warps character, weakens mind, stimulates disease and saps bodily health. It is the real cause of death in thousands of instances where some other disease is named in the death certificate. Worry is mental poison; work is mental food.—Religious Leader.

Service and Pay.

Little children loved Jesus for the luxury of loving Him. Their love was its own reward. They loved the lovable and were happy. But are not older people prone to think that devotion to Jesus ought to be returned in the shape of temporal prosperity? Do we not half expect material payment for spiritual services?—Rev. J. H. Jowett.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic.—New Courage for new work.—Ps. cxliv, 1-15; Acts xxviii, 15.

The secret of perpetual motion has never been discovered. With all man's progress he has never yet discovered a power that can be perpetually sustained. Sooner or later it must be renewed if work is to be continued. The locomotive needs new steam each day for its work. The electric dynamo must constantly generate new electricity if the work for which it furnishes the power is to be continued. For each new day our physical bodies must have their strength renewed in order to perform the work of life. So also it is in the religious world new courage and strength are needed for each new work. The courage of last week will not sustain us for this week's work. As we need bread day by day, so daily we need the courage that strengthens us for the work of life.

1. The necessity of new courage for new work is divinely recognized. When God calls men to important advanced places, He encourages them to be strong and promises to be with them to encourage and strengthen them. To Joshua, when he was called upon to take up the work of Moses, He said, "Be strong and of good courage." And again, "Only be thou strong and very courageous that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses, my servant, commanded thee." And even again he said, "Be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." God thus recognizes our need for new courage and enjoins us to be courageous and strong in Him.

2. New courage for new work is divinely promised, and this promise is fulfilled. "I will strengthen thee" is the promise of God to us. "As thy days, so shall thy strength be." Daily strength for daily need is God's promise. He does not promise strength today for tomorrow, or this year for next year. This is unnecessary. We live in moments, not in years, and the promise of renewed strength for each new moment is all that is necessary. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." Let us therefore wait upon Him that we may be able to say with the psalmist, "Blessed be the Lord, my strength."

But men may be of great encouragement to each other. Visited by brethren while on the way to Rome, Paul "thanked God and took courage." Human sympathy and co-operation in the work of the Lord are no small factors in our success. This being so, we should more often take advantage of the opportunity to sympathize with one another and to speak words of good cheer as we journey and labor together along the pathway of life.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xxxi, 1-8; Josh. i, 1-7; x, 25; II Sam. x, 12; II Chron. xix, 11; Ez. x, 1-4; Ps. xxvii, 14; xxxi, 24; Isa. xl, 27-31; Eph. vi, 10-20.

Not a "Picnic."

If any one is inclined to regard Dr. Clark's Christian Endeavor journeys as anything but the strenuous and arduous enterprises which they really are we commend him to some figures which we venture to extract from one of Dr. Clark's private letters just received.

On the present journey he will have traveled during the 195 days of his absence 23,000 miles by sea and 10,70C miles by land, a total of 33,700 miles.

He has made 175 addresses and conducted 50 conferences.

His audiences have ranged from 100 in the smaller conferences to 10,000, and they have aggregated 250,000 souls.

He has written 58 articles, containing a total of 85,000 words. His letters have been numberless.

And the hardest part of the journey, as any convention worker understands, is the need of keeping at high tension all the time, ready to give out in any chance conversation the inspiration that may plant the seeds of Christian Endeavor in a new and large region.

If any one thinks all this to be easy and pure fun let him try it.—Christian Endeavor World.

A Unique Button Badge.

The Broome county (N. Y.) union for one of its annual conventions conceived the idea of this unique button badge. The kindly face of the founder of Christian Endeavor looking out from it gave it a large value as a souvenir, and every delegate was careful to register in order to secure the button, which could not be had in any other way. This mention may suggest to other unions to "go and do likewise."

Three Briefs.

There are over 300,000 Endeavorers in Great Britain and Ireland.

In the early days of the Endeavor society in Ceylon the Endeavorers marked certain cocoanut trees whose fruit should be devoted entirely to the Lord.

Four hundred and sixty new societies is the record of the United Kingdom since January, 1903, or more than one new society formed every day; 125 of these societies were Juniors. Of the denominations represented, Primitive Methodists lead the way with more than 130 new societies.

Australian Endeavor.

The Australasian union was formed in 1893 and is a very active organization, holding conventions that are acknowledged to be the greatest religious gatherings ever held in the southern hemisphere.—Irish Endeavorer.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth. 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

HOW TO BE POPULAR.

Unselfishness Is at the Bottom of It All.

"I wonder why people don't like me any better?" sighed the girl who always had a grievance. "I'm sure we have money enough! I dress well. I am good at games and sports and all that sort of thing, and yet here is that girl who is a duffer at almost everything, who is homely and badly dressed and yet is invited everywhere!"

"I think I can tell you the secret of her popularity," remarked Mrs. Wise One, "and, indeed, of the popularity of almost all popular women. They give in exchange for what they are given."

"But the girl I speak of can't give anything; she hasn't anything to give."

"No material things perhaps, but did you ever notice what a cheerful disposition she has, how she always has something pleasant to say, how she cheers up every party to which she is invited and creates a sunny atmosphere and a laugh on every occasion?"

"The trouble with you, my dear," she went on, "is that you are too self conscious. You are always thinking of how you feel and how you are dressed and how you look. The thing to do if you want to be popular is to think of how other people feel and are dressed and look, and to tell them when they look pretty and to cheer them when they are not feeling up to the mark. If you want to be popular you simply can't be the least bit selfish. You should share all of the nice things you have, from your kind thoughts and sympathy to your box of chocolates. Share things, don't keep them to yourself and you will wake up one of these days simply astonished to find the number of friends you have."

RENOVATING FURNITURE.

A Hint For the Woman With a Small Income.

I visited a while ago the home of a friend of mine in reduced circumstances, and I was struck with the coziness of her furnishings. These were all the more remarkable in view of the fact that she had so very little money to spend on them.

"Where did you get such very prettily upholstered chairs?" I asked her. "Upholstered chairs cost money!"

Back came the answer. "I wish you could have seen them before I rescued them from the secondhand shop and reupholstered them!"

It is not half as difficult as it looks. The picture shows you two kinds of chair coverings, the fitted and the loose kind. The latter is made to measure and neatly bound with bias strips of the material; the former is done by stretching the material very carefully on two opposite sides of the space to be covered and then stretching the other two opposite sides to correspond. By managing things this way the pattern cannot avoid being straight. Tufted chairs are harder to manage, but they can be brought to a successful issue by means of a long upholsterer's needle and coarse linen twine. Flowered cretonne, the heavy linen ribbed kind, is perhaps the best material for recovering old chairs at a small expense.

It seems hardly necessary to add that the old covering is not removed. It gives thickness and firmness to the new covering which is put over it.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1903, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

When she left him he stooped and picked up the little slipper which Anne had evidently carelessly left there when she went in to her dressing-room to make her toilet for the dinner. He gazed at it, covered it with kisses, and slipped it hurriedly into the breast of his coat as Josette returned.

As he had said, they were about the same height. Her cloak fitted him perfectly. She wrapped it around him and it completely concealed him. Laying aside his cocked hat he drew the hood over his head, hiding his face, and then the two descended the stairs, passing one or two servants who looked at them curiously. Fortune favored them. Jean-Renaud was in attendance upon the marquis, the steward was busy supervising the service of the dinner, and no one else presumed to interrogate so important a person as the chatelaine's confidential maid and foster-sister. They gained the armory without difficulty.

There Josette left him after exacting a whispered promise from him not to leave the room until she came for him. The door opening into the dining-room, and which was veiled by heavy hangings, happened to be ajar. Through the opening between the curtains Grafton had a clear view of the apartment beyond.

CHAPTER XXIII.

NUMBERED—WEIGHED—DIVIDED.

THE great Gothic apartment was ablaze with light from hundreds of wax candles in sconces set between the banners on the wall, or in the massive candelabra standing upon the long table which was glistening with a gorgeous service of rare and massive plate. Ancient flagons of curious shapes from Flanders, cups from Italy that Cellini might have chased, exquisite dishes of the finest Sevres pate tendre, the royal porcelain of France, first coming into use at that time—Madame de Pompadour's one good gift to humanity—were ranged upon the board. Wine of the rarest vintage, fabulously old and each drop priceless, sparkled in the tall crystal goblets which some roving ancestor had brought from Venice. The damask linen cloth was strewn with strange and beautiful orchids from the matchless conservatories of the chateau, their odd shapes and lavender hues vividly outlined against the snowy napery.

Servants in the gorgeous mediaeval livery of the de Rohans flitted noiselessly about serving the numerous guests. Musicians from one of the ships in the harbor discoursed sweet melodies in an adjoining chamber. In short, nothing had been left undone to give honor and magnificence to the feast. The resources of the chateau had been lavishly displayed, and Versailles itself could scarcely have afforded a more splendid showing of luxurious elegance and wealth.

Around the board were grouped men bearing the names of some of the noblest families in France. At the head, of course, sat the Marquis de Chabot-Rohan himself, old Jean-Renaud standing erect behind his chair. On his right, in the seat of honor, was placed Admiral de Conflans, who, in addition to his exalted naval rank, was also a marshal of France. Next to the marshal-admiral was placed the venerable and princely archbishop of Vannes. Below him sat his highness the Prince de Beauffremont-Listenois, the vice admiral of the fleet—unfortunately not destined to add to his renown in the coming campaign.

After these in order of rank were ranged the chief officers and captains of the van division of the great French Armada. Among them, near the foot of the table, sat Denis de Vitre. He had been duly exchanged since his arrival and promoted to the rank of capitaine-de-fregate, and recently appointed executive officer of Le Thesee, still under the command of the Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen.

Grafton's glance took in this line with one quick survey, and then turned to the other side of the table. His gaze swept past the marquis and rested upon the person who sat at his left hand. This place was occupied by the granddaughter of the house. He looked at her for a second, then closed his eyes as if the sight had dazzled him. Never had he seen her so beautiful, never had she presented so splendid and glorious a picture. Not in his most rapturous lover's dream had he imagined this.

She wore a dress of pale violet satin, with pippings of white and lacings of silver over the pointed bodice. It was cut low, of course, after the fashion of the day, and afforded a full view of her dazzling neck and shoulders. The gaze of other men upon them seemed to Grafton a profanation.

She was a perfect blaze of diamonds. The jewels of centuries, known and storied in the de Rohan traditions, had been wrought by cunning artificers into rare and beautiful forms to present a fit setting for her radiant beauty. A coronet of gems flashed in the mazes of her powdered hair. Diamond stars caught the bertha of matchless point lace which fell low over her corsage; diamond clusters fastened the little white plume that curled backward, like a sunbeam in a twilight, over her hair, rising softly from her sweet brow in the fashion of the time.

Low at her corsage she wore a bunch of priceless orchids whose purple and violet hues shot with touches of gold blended so exquisitely with the fabric of her gown.

Grafton had eyes for no one but her. He had known that she was beautiful even in the simplicity in which she had always been robed when he had seen her. He had known that she was the fairest of women to him at any rate, but he never realized until now how magnificently royal she was in her rare and exquisite loveliness. His heart sank as he looked at her. She was one in a world. Surely this treasure in which Nature summed up the achievements of the past and anticipated the possibilities of the future could not be for him! But if not for him, for no one, he swore. Yet he felt an intense sympathy for poor de Vitre, sitting haggard at the foot of the table, eating nothing, moodily draining his glass and staring at Anne. She was as far from him as Heaven.

Next to Anne, with the permission of the guests on account of the nature of the occasion, the marquis had placed the Comte de Kersaint, whose naval rank would not have entitled him to so high a seat at the table. Next to de Kersaint sat the gallant rear admiral, St. Andre du Verger, soon to die and win an immortal name for his heroism in the approaching battle. By his side was placed Monsieur de Bompart, chef-d'Escadre, or commodore, commanding a division of six ships of the line which had recently entered the harbor, aided by the unfortunate gale which had compelled Hawke to break the blockade for the time being—a welcome reenforcement indeed for de Conflans.

The feast of the evening had been made to announce formally the engagement of Anne to de Kersaint. The countess had protested, and had again directly broached to her grandfather the subject of her plighted troth to de Vitre. The marquis had refused to hear her; as before, had pooh-poohed the whole affair as a girlish flirtation. What had maidens to do with hearts? he questioned. Those were luxuries reserved for married women. In the ethics of France in that day a maiden's duty was obedience. As for de Vitre, he was a cadet of an obscure house, no match for the last and most beautiful of the de Rohans. She surely was not in earnest!

Her grandfather's refusal would indeed relieve her honorably of the attentions of de Vitre, since she had expressly stipulated for his consent. But between de Vitre and de Kersaint she preferred the former, or, to speak by the card, she preferred neither. She wanted Grafton, and Grafton only. She was in as great unhappiness therefore in this new development as before. Unable, or unwilling, at that time, to break into open rebellion, especially now that she was separated apparently irrevocably from Grafton, Anne deemed it well to temporize. In spite of her flight, her renunciation of him, she was waiting and hoping to hear from the man she loved. She had only stipulated, therefore, that there was to be no formal betrothal, and that her grandfather should confine himself to the simple announcement at the feast that it was in contemplation.

Like Grafton, she was fighting for time. Indeed, in the engagement to de Kersaint she really thought there was a loophole for an escape before her. Between de Kersaint and de Vitre what might not happen? She was fully resolved never to marry de Kersaint, and her resolution with regard to de Vitre was not so strong as it had been. Absence, separation, both pleaded powerfully for Grafton. So she waited—and hoped still.

Laughter, jollity, merriment, subdued by the refinements and requirements of good breeding, floated around the table. Joy and good humor were reflected from every face except two. Hearts beat high in anticipation. The officers of the squadron, who had not yet received orders for the departure, felt that it was in the wind and eagerly anticipated it.

Grafton, who had ample time to study the people in the dining room as the banquet progressed, marked with a thrill of happiness that the universal joy was not reflected in the face of his love. Never had he seen it colder, paler, more filled with that ineffable disdain he loved to note when not meant for him. There was not the slightest touch of mirth and happiness in her features as her eyes restlessly swept the table. When her glance fell upon the huge and happy Frenchman who sat next her, Grafton noticed that she seemed to shrink from him. None but a lover's eye could have detected the movement, but to him it was plain.

"Gentlemen," said the marquis at last, the repast having been concluded by this time, "before the Countess Anne retires I wish you to drink a health with me."

"A health! A health!" cried the men, thrusting their chairs back from the table, seizing their full glasses and rising to their feet as they spoke.

"Messieurs," cried the old man in his high-pitched old voice, "I give you the health of the Demoiselle de Rohan and the Comte de Kersaint, and I announce to you the engagement which has been entered upon between this son and daughter of Brittany, to carry on and perpetuate the two ancient races."

This was death and agony to Grafton. It was only by the strongest constraint that he could keep himself from bursting into the room.

"Vive la Demoiselle de Rohan!"

"Vive de Kersaint!"

"Long life and happiness to the pride of Brittany!" resounded through the hall as the men drank the toast with enthusiasm.

"Shiver your glasses, gentlemen, when you drink to the Demoiselle de Rohan!" cried the marquis when he had drained his own, at the same time dashing his priceless cup to the floor.

Amid the crashing of the crystal, therefore, Anne, pale as a ghost, the image of everything but joy, rose to her feet and lifted her own glass.

"Messieurs," she said, softly, "I drink to you and to France." She bowed low before them amid a murmur of admiration evoked by her grace and beauty, and continued: "And I thank you. And now, with your permission, Monsieur le Marquis and gentlemen all, I will withdraw. Resume your seats, messieurs. I thank you again for your congratulations."

The marquis handed her to the door. Grafton noticed that she tottered as she withdrew. The scene had been too much for her. He had shot one swift glance toward the foot of the table, too, and he had noticed that one glass had not been lifted when the toast had been drunk, and that it still stood brimming with wine upon the board in front of the haggard de Vitre. The American pitied him, his misery was so great and so apparent. Meanwhile congratulations from all sides were bestowed upon de Kersaint. The men crowded around him, shaking him by the hand, drinking healths to him from fresh glasses which had been brought, and overwhelming him with acclamations which he bore with good-humored modesty.

Grafton would have left the armory at once to follow Anne had he not faithfully promised Josette to stay there until she summoned him. He waited, therefore, in increasing impatience. He was glad, however, even in the midst of his passion, that he had remained, when he heard Admiral de Conflans tapping the table and requesting silence.

"Gentlemen," he said, as the tumult died away and the men subsided into their seats once more, "with the permission of my friend, the Marquis de Chabot-Rohan, I will propose a toast to you, and at the same time make an announcement. The English have been driven from the blockade by the fierce gales and I intend to go to sea. Amid such loyal friends and supporters I do not hesitate to say that we are bound for the enemy's country. I first propose to take the English squadron in Quiberon bay, to embark there the officers and men of the brave army commanded by Monsieur le Duc d'Aiguillon and Marechal Belloc, and then away for Ireland, crushing any one who may endeavor to stay our progress; and if that be Admiral Hawke, let him look to his shrouds!"

INSTRUCTED BY A GERMAN

Gen. Meckel, a Pupil of Moltke, Taught Strategy to the Japanese General Staff.

Berlin (Germany) Special.

The London Times in a recent issue calls attention to the fact that the success of the Japanese army is due in large measure to the splendid training which was received under the direction of a Prussian, Maj. Gen. Meckel. He is a retired officer, still living in Gross Lichterfelde, a suburb near Berlin.

Gen. Meckel was born March 28, 1842, entered the Prussian army in 1860, and served as a lieutenant in the German-Austrian war. He also participated in the German-Franco war, and was wounded at the battle of

MAJ. GEN. VON MECKEL.
(German Strategist Who Was Tutor to Japanese General Staff.)

Woerth. Later he became an instructor at the military school in Hanover. In 1876 when he had attained the rank of colonel he entered the general staff of the German army. From 1885-8 he was active as reorganizer of the Japanese army.

Meckel was a favorite pupil of Moltke. Shortly before the death of the great field marshal he assembled the officers of the great general staff and said to them that the rivals of Germany were fully equal to it in equipment and bravery, but not in leadership.

This is just what the Japanese desired to learn—to direct and to lead an army. No one was better suited for this work than Gen. Meckel. Although he did not understand Japanese, and his words had to be translated by an interpreter, he nevertheless was successful in imbuing the "Yankees of the orient" with Moltke's great principles of strategy.

Almost all officers of the Japanese army have sat at Meckel's feet, and the excellent work of the Japanese general staff bears the traces of his instruction. He not only taught the Japanese how to lead an army in war, but also to prepare it in time of peace.

THE WORLD'S FATTEST BOY

He Lives in Illinois, Is 18 Years of Age and Weighs Pretty Nearly Six Hundred Pounds.

Chicago Special.

Our picture is that of Willie Harris, who doubtless is the fattest boy on earth. He is 18 years old and weighs 598 pounds. He is five feet four inches high, having a waist measurement of 71 inches, and a chest 67 inches round. His thigh measures 44 inches and his calf 22 inches.

Harris was born on a farm near Du Quoin, Ill. He has been in excellent health for the most part of his life, although at his birth he weighed only seven pounds. None of the other members of his family are fleshy. The lad is reasonably well educated. When he began to grow there were never any chairs in the country school building large enough to hold him.

He is obliged to use two ordinary chairs now. At home he sleeps in a bed built especially for him. When he got into his bed at a lodging house the first night the bed broke down under his weight.

The only ready-made things he can buy for himself are collar buttons, neckties and pocket handkerchiefs.

Paper-Making Under Pressure.

The time necessary to convert living trees into newspapers was recently tested in Eisenthal, Australia. At seven thirty-five in the morning, three spruce trees were sawed down; at nine thirty-four the wood, having been stripped of bark, cut up and converted into pulp, became paper, and passed from the factory to the press, whence the first printed and folded copy was issued at ten o'clock. So that in 145 minutes the trees had become newspapers.

LUXURY OF TRAVEL

NATIVES OF THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS ENJOY IT.

When Going on a Journey They Take All the Comforts of the Home with Them, But These Are Few.

The up-to-date tourist who has the modern convenience of the Pullman palace car, of the observation car and all the extravagance and luxury that goes to make up one of the limited trains, of which we are so boastful, no doubt thinks that he has at last all the comforts that may attend traveling humanity.

He is mistaken. He may take a trip to the antipodes and find there that he never knew what it meant to take a trip with all the comforts of home.

Of course there is a difference in what one's home comforts consist of, but would it not be pleasant to travel with the best of your own particular possessions at your hand. This is the way the natives of the South Sea islands travel. It is most laughable and interesting, too, to watch these people in their daily life.

With the ordinary citizen of our country a trip or an extended visit to friends is a most momentous occasion, planned for months and enjoyed in anticipation. No such weighty consideration is ever indulged in by the simpler races.

Suppose this to be a glorious morning at any season of the year, January vies with June in the splendor of her days, there is nothing special to do (there never is), let us visit. Well and good, we shall visit, whom, where? It matters but little, these islands are not large, generations of intermarriage have given relatives galore in every port. Enough, we make ready. Last year that forerunner of civilization, the traveling salesman, was in our midst, now, accordingly, we possess the sewing machine, the kerosine lamp and the bicycle. The white woman has come upon us, tourists are beginning to come this way and the strong arm of fashion has gathered us in, mats are going out of style and the Mother Hubbard is coming on apace. These signs of progress are our greatest pride and where we go the sewing machine and the bicycle goes. I saw one family traveling accompanied by a black iron bed with spiral springs.

Into the long canoe goes these articles of the domestic hearth, then piles of mats, of clothes there is probably not enough to bother about packing, strings of beads go handily about one's neck and superfluous drapery hangs over the arm. Of course there are the pigs, dear family friends, why should they be left behind. In they go, legs tied together, and squaling like mad. Now the babies, all in together, who cares, they are our own pigs, the babes and the bicycles are pride of our hearts. Who cavils at the good things of life.

Between some of the larger islands goes a small steamer, but the natives usually prefer their own canoe, and I have met 100 miles out at sea a long canoe with a sail and perhaps a dozen oarsmen, all bright with gay color, the stroke keeping time to the lilt of the happy song.

Is this not the acme of happiness, your dearest at your side, your treasures at your feet, all care banished and providence for the morrow well assured?

Until you can take your first trip with such contented mind, never believe that you have tasted the true luxury of travel.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

IAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

There will be a meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., tonight.

Twelve deaths were reported to the Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., of New Jersey, between July 23 and August 27. The membership in good standing July 1 last, entire order, was 287,431. The amount of beneficiary fund paid out in June was $921,251.09.

Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold its meeting tomorrow night.

The local Knights of Columbus have completed arrangements for a clambake to be held at Sebring's Mills, Greenbrook, Sunday afternoon and evening. A majority of the members will form the delegation which will leave this city in a stage early in the afternoon. Clams, chowder, corn and potatoes will form the menu for the bake.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., held a musical session after the business meeting last evening. Vocal solos were given by James Gray and James Anson and phonograph selections by Alexander Muir. The good and welfare committee had charge.

BALL FOR ASSEMBLY.

Scotch Plains Man's Friends Launch His Boom.

George Ball, of Scotch Plains, announces his candidacy for the Assembly on the Republican ticket. Mr. Ball is an active party man and is popular with the politicians and with people generally. Fanwood township is in line for him and it is said that Plainfield will support him at the convention.

He is a member of the bar, practising in this city, and is well liked here.

Municipal Ball Game.

Mayor Smalley, of the borough, will hold a conference with City Clerk James T. MacMurray this evening to complete final arrangements for the municipal baseball game to be held on Crescent Oval Wednesday afternoon. Both teams have been organized, and the contest, which financially is for the benefit of the band concert fund, promises to be interesting and amusing.

Fireman Frazee Resigns.

Sidney R. Frazee, who has been driver of the chemical engine at fire headquarters for the past year, tendered his resignation as a member of the department, yesterday. His action was prompted by illness and injuries received in a runaway accident from which he has not fully recovered. He has been one of the best drivers in the service and Chief Doane reluctantly released him.

No Concert Tomorrow Night.

Leader Ben LaVere announced that no band concert would be given tomorrow evening and possibly none during the week following. Lack of funds is responsible for the break in the series. The proceeds from the municipal baseball game on September 7 will be added to the fund and it is thought the amount will be sufficient to have one or two during the latter part of the month.

Labor Day Game.

Manager Johnston has scheduled a game for Labor Day afternoon on Crescent Oval with the Star A. C., of Newark, one of the strongest semi-professional teams in the State. There will be no contest on the oval in the morning, the manager deciding that with all the other attractions for the day one game will be sufficient. It will be called at 3:45 o'clock.

Haberdashers' Store.

Charles H. Greer and H. P. Greenwood, haberdashers, opened their new store today at 155 East Front street. They have stocked their store with all the latest goods usually kept in an up-to-date gents' furnishing store and are now ready to receive their friends and the public in general.

O. F. C.'S FOOTBALL PLANS

GEORGE M'VOY IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF THE ELEVEN.

The Orange Field Club met last night at the home of Clifford Smith at Scotch Plains, for the purpose of electing a captain for the football team and talk over other business relating to the sport on the gridiron, which will soon be started. In all sixteen members were present.

George McVoy was elected captain. Clifford Smith will assume the duties of secretary and arrange the season's schedule of games, many of which, if the present plans are carried out, will be with some of the fatest elevens in this section. The Orange Field Club believes Plainfield will support a fast eleven and the members are determined that the rooters shall have it every Saturday afternoon during the season.

In all thirty-two candidates for the eleven have reported for a tryout. This includes all of last year's eleven. Out of this abundance of available material the club believes it can put an eleven in the field that will be a credit to Plainfield and make any team show brawn and muscle to down them. The average weight will be a little heavier than last year's eleven the proposed team averaging 150 pounds. The first practice for tryouts for the eleven will be held on the Westervelt avenue grounds one week from tomorrow night.

MRS. DUNHAM BURIED.

Funeral Services Over Remains of Aged Woman.

The funeral services of Mrs. Maxson Dunham, mother of Mrs. J. C. VanDyke, of East Fifth street, were held yesterday morning at the home of her son, John V. Haas, at Millington and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Gibbs and Rev. Mr. Condit were in charge. Years ago Mrs. Dunham had selected the hymns she wished sung at her funeral, namely, "When the Roll is Called I'll be There," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "I Shall See Him Face to Face." These were rendered by a quartette choir from the church.

Mrs. Dunham's favorite selection of Scripture, "When I Pass Through the Valley of the Shadow of Death I Will Fear no Evil for Thou art With Me," was read. Mr. Gibbs spoke highly of Mrs. Dunham's Christian character and her selection of Scripture.

There were a number of floral pieces from relatives and friends, including one from the Ladies' Aid Society of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, where she was a member for thirty years. The remains were taken to Peapack, where a short service was held for the neighbors and friends. The interment was beside the remains of Mrs. Dunham's first husband, Archie Haas, whom she married in 1853.

Manager Denman had that lemon smile on last Saturday after the game. Capt. Mallen joined Denman by denouncing our good umpire in very low terms. Our artist put them over and Mr. Merity saw them that way; he does not wait for Mallen's tip.

Pete Oregan and Al. Farmer got their usual two hits in at Saturday's game. Oregan's two timer came at the right time, after two hands down.

It is reported that Frank Golden, of New York, will umpire the Plainfield-Westfield contest on Saturday. According to rumor his work has not always been satisfactory, it being claimed that many teams have left the field because of his decisions.

The players' bench has been moved to a more convenient spot at Crescent Oval, while the scorers' stand also occupies an improved position against the grandstand.

The New York Nationals will meet the Plainfield A. C. team on Crescent Oval on Saturday, October 8. The battery for the Giants will be either Mathewson or McGinnity and Bowerman.

CHIEF DOANE TO BE THERE

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN FIRE CHIEFS TO MEET NEXT MONTH.

Thaddeous O. Doane, chief of the Plainfield Fire Department, will attend the yearly gathering of the National Association of American Fire Chiefs in Chattanooga, Tenn., on September 13, 14, 15 and 16. Aside from the usual business of the convention, which will include the discussion of the causes of fires, the methods of handling them and the various forms of apparatus and appliances for fighting flames in cities, election of officers and selection of a place for next year's meeting, the feature this year is expected to be an exhaustive paper on the disastrous Baltimore fire of several months ago.

It has been prepared and will be read by William McDevitt, of Philadelphia, the chief engineer of the executive board of the National Association of Fire Underwriters. He is considered the greatest expert in the country on all matters pertaining to the causes of fires and their handling by firemen, and his address is being awaited by the heads as well as the rank and file of fire departments in every section of the country. He will illustrate the various points which he will make for the benefit of the assembled firemen with specially prepared stereopticon views of the Baltimore fire in particular and a sprinkling of views of other big fires throughout the country during the last year.

Among other things which will be subjects of talk among the fire chiefs while they are in Chattanooga will be the big tournament by firemen and exhibition of fire-fighting apparatus and equipment which was held last week on the World's Fair grounds in St. Louis. Nearly every State in the country was represented, and everything went off smoothly under the direction of Peter McCarty, secretary of the Southwestern Firemen's Association. During the tournament he brought up the subject of the organization of a national federation of firemen, embracing both the paid and volunteer departments, and having State and local sub-divisions. Its objects, as proposed, are the procuring of uniform legislation in various States for the benefit of firemen. This matter will also be taken up at the Chattanooga convention.

BOSTON PHYSICIAN WEDS PLAINFIELD GIRL

Miss Ethel Plummer Bowen is Married to Dr. Franklin Warren White.

CHICAGOAN OFFICIATES

MISS MARION PLUMMER BOWEN IS THE MAID-OF-HONOR.

Reception Follows at Home of the Bride's Parents on Watchung Avenue—Couple to Live at The Hub.

Miss Ethel Plummer Bowen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elliott Bowen, of Watchung avenue, and niece of Herbert Wolcott Bowen, minister to Venezuela, and Dr. Franklin Warren White, of Boston, were married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Rev. Louis Burton Crane, of Chicago, a relative, performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated with palms and a profusion of white asters, they being banked about the pulpit platform, the palms furnishing a pleasing background to the beautiful white flower.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marion P. Bowen, as maid-of-honor, and these bridesmaids: Miss Helen Dunbar Talmadge and Miss Elsie Burke, both of this city; Miss Marion Fuller, of Boston, and Miss Constance Holt, of New York.

The best man was Dr. Robert H. Vose, of Boston, and the ushers were Dr. Frederic C. Cotton and Lewis K. Morse, of Boston; Harrison C. Hall, of New York; Edward E. Blodgett, of Brookline, Mass.; L. Maxwell Brigham, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pierrepont Beers Foster, of New Haven, Conn.

The bride was attired in a white satin gown trimmed with point duchesse lace. She wore a tulle veil and carried in her hand a prayer-book bound in white vellum. The maid of honor wore a gown of white crepe de chene and a large chiffon picture hat with long white ostrich plumes and carried a bouquet of white asters. The bridesmaids were gowned in accordion plaited white silk muslin and they wore large white chiffon picture hats with white ostrich plumes and also carried white asters.

Frank Smith, formerly organist at the church, presided at the organ and as he played the wedding march from Lohengrin, the bridal party entered the church. The ushers led the way, followed by the bridesmaids, the maid-of-honor and the bride, who was escorted by her father, who gave her away in marriage. At the altar the party met the officiating clergyman, the groom and best man, who entered the church from the rear. After the ceremony and while the party was leaving the church, the Mendelssohn wedding march was rendered.

Following the wedding, a reception was given to the relatives and a few intimate friends at the home of the bride's parents on Watchung avenue. The house was also decorated with palms and large white asters.

Dr. White, who is a prominent physician in Boston, is also prominent in society there. He is a member of the Eastern Yacht Club and the University Club. He and his bride will make their home in Boston following a honeymoon of a month's duration.

WANT TO BE FIREMEN.

Numerous Applications for Appointment in Place Made Vacant by Driver Frazee's Resignation.

The resignation of Sidney E. Frazee as driver of the chemical engine at fire headquarters will lead to a number of changes among the men stationed there. This is one of the most important pieces of apparatus at the house and the post is one always sought after.

Applications for appointment in Frazee's place have been numerous but it is probable his successor will be selected from among the more experienced call men. The men likely to be considered are Ephraim Compton, William Jaegar and Edward Townley. The appointment will be made by the Common Council at its meeting Tuesday evening.

Chicken Thieves Again.

Chicken thieves which have been operating on the outskirts of the city, transferred their attention to New Market last night and raided the coop on Edward Schenck's place. They got away with seventy-five fowls. Schenck has no idea who the guilty parties are.

ANTHRACITE COAL IS NOW $6.50 A TON

Advance of Fifty Cents Per Ton is Made in This City By All Dealers.

THE WINTER RATE

LARGE SUPPLY ON HAND AND NO FURTHER RAISE ANTICIPATED.

Railroad Storage Plants Stocked to the Limit—No Trouble Likely at the Mines.

According to the promise made some time ago, the retail price of anthracite in this city was advanced to $6.50 a ton yesterday. During the summer the price has been $6 and the local dealers decided to make a raise of fifty cents on September 1, instead of making several raises of ten cents during the summer as has been done in New York and other places. This price of $6.50 will undoubtedly stand during the winter as all of the dealers have a large supply of coal and there is little prospect of trouble at the mines.

One large dealer in speaking of the matter today said that he did not anticipate any trouble until April 1, 1906, when the agreement between he miners and the operators terminates. He said that he believed the miners are dissatisfied with the terms altogether and that when they terminate an effort will be made to secure additional advantages.

One encouraging feature about the trade is that there is a very large supply of anthracite on hand. The railroad companies have stocked their storage plants to the limit and every line dealer is also well stocked, in fact there is talk of stopping work at the mines for a week to prevent an over-stocked condition.

READY FOR GREAT GAME

THE MUNICIPAL BASEBALL TEAMS WILL BATTLE ON DIAMOND WEDNESDAY.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, and City Clerk James T. MacMurray held a conference last evening for the purpose of definitely fixing the date for the municipal baseball game. It was decided to hold it Wednesday afternoon on Crescecent Oval, commencing at 3 o'clock. The Carabinieri band, of New York, will be in attendance and will render selections as the game progresses. City Judge William N. Runyon will act as umpire.

The city line-up has not been completed owing to City Clerk MacMurray's absence from the city, but the borough's, as outlined by Mayor Smalley, will be as follows: Monsross, p; Moore, c; C. Woolston, 1b; Heyt, ss; Smalley, rf; H. Woolston, cf; Arnold, 3b; Goodwin, lf; Bolsterli, 2b. The battery and several other players on both sides will of a necessity be other than office holders.

MR. HENCKEL IN CHARGE.

New Physical Director at Y. M. C. A. Assumes Duties.

Physical Director Fred A. Henckel, recently appointed successor to C. E. A. Heywood, at the local Y. M. C. A., assumed charge of the physical department of the association yesterday.

Previous to coming to this city, Mr. Henckel has been at his home in Albany, N. Y., and he arrived this morning directly from that city. He will not have classes to conduct until the fall term opens again on October 2, but will spend considerable time at his office in the association building, where he will be in charge of the summer sports of the association.

Funeral of Mrs. Leeson.

Funeral services of Mrs. Barbara Leeson were held yesterday morning from her late home on Watchung avenue. Service was conducted by Rev. D. J. Yerkes, Mrs. Leeson's former pastor at the First Baptist church, and by the Rev. Dr. Gibbs, the family pastor at the Millington church. Joseph Moon, Robert Becker and William Leek, George Muchmore, of Summit, John Vosseler, of Bound Brook, and E. L. Irving, of Somerville, acted as pall bearers.

—Don't delay making selections from those 100 baskets of choice table and canning peaches at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow. Yellow and white fruit, Old Mixen, Reeve's Favorites and Elbertas.

INDEPENDENT TICKET IN THE FOURTH WARD

Anti-Saloon Element to Wage a Vigorous Fight in the City Campaign.

N. M. SMITH MENTIONED

MR. SMITH IS ALSO ACTIVE IN THE CAUSE.

Col. Randolph to be Renominated by the Republicans—Three Candidates After the Position.

The fight started in the Fourth ward a year ago against the saloon element by Rev. John MacMurray, at that time pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, is likely to be continued this year by those who were associated with the minister at that time. It will be remembered that Mr. MacMurray and his friends succeeded in defeating the purposes of those advocating a saloon on West Front street near Clinton avenue, and they almost succeeded in defeating the efforts of Michael Watson in getting a license for his place on Grant avenue.

Being encouraged by their success at that time, it is now proposed, according to reports, to renew the fight at the coming city election by putting an independent ticket in the field from the Fourth ward. Those interested in this movement contend that if so many signers could be secured to protest against John J. Goff's application for a license, there is surely prospects of electing a ticket.

N. Mansfield Smith, of 720 West Fourth street, one of those who took an active part in the last fight, is said to be at the head of the present movement, and he is said to have assurances of plenty of support. It is even mentioned that Mr. Smith will be a candidate for Councilman on the independent ticket. His friends, many of whom are members of the Monroe Avenue church, have urged him to [illegible] There is every reason to believe that Mr. Smith will be a candidate in opposition to the Republican administration candidate and any Democrat who may be put up.

Councilman Randolph's term expires this year and it is the intention of the Republicans to re-nominate him. There will be only one Republican vacancy in the Fourth ward for Council this year and the friends of Mr. Randolph believe he is entitled to another term. Thus far it is not known what the Democrats will do.

NO COMMISSION FOR KRINEY

SECRETARY OF STATE ABSOLUTELY REFUSES TO ISSUE JUSTICE'S WARRANT.

Despite his best efforts, Jacob Kriney, of West Front street, who was elected a justice of the peace at the last city election, has failed to receive his commission from Secretary of State Dickinson, and to use his own words, "they have beat me out of it."

Mr. Kriney when seen this morning said that he had received word from Secretary Dickinson informing him that the returns from the First district of the First ward, did not reach him and the returns being incomplete, he was unable to give the candidate his commissionship, even though he believed him to be elected. Mr. Kriney cannot understand why Mr. Dickinson should fail to get the returns when they were forwarded to the county board of election and had to be passed on by that body within a certain time after election.

Mr. Kriney is still a justice of the peace, having been elected two years ago, but it has always been customary to renominate a man each year. He feels somewhat incensed over the action of the higher-up officials, but does not propose to take any further action in the matter.

Cyclists Collide.

Miss Mayme Brady and Thomas Jones, both riding wheels, collided on Park avenue yesterday. Miss Brady was thrown to the street but escaped harm. Jones received several hard bumps and limped off to a drug store to be patched up.

H. F. Turrill Engaged.

The engagement is announced of Miss Ida Randolph Simpson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Simpson, of Frederick County, Md., to Howard Fitch Turrill, of Plainfield, N. J.—Frederick, Md., note in Baltimore Sun, of Aug. 30.

DAVID GORDON A GROOM

WELL-KNOWN BASEBALL PLAYER WEDS MISS SOUTHARD, OF THE 'PLAINS.

Miss Clara Bell Southard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias M. Southard, of Cook avenue, Scotch Plains, and David Gordon, of this city, were quietly married last evening in the presence of only a few relatives and intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. M. Shott in the parsonage of the Scotch Plains Baptist church at 8 o'clock. Extreme simpleness marked te affair because of a recent death in the bride's family.

Miss Southard was attended by her sister, Miss Gussie Southard, while William Boyle, her cousin, was best man. Both bride and bridesmaid were attired in becoming gowns of crepe de chine.

Following the ceremony, the party adjourned to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon's new home at West Sixth street and Clinton avenue where a reception was held, concluding with a wedding supper. The groom is an employe of the Manganese Steel Safe Company and is well known as the former Hope Y. M. A. baseball player during the City League season. He is a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and is greatly liked by a large circle of acquaintances. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were remembered with a large array of presents.

STREET COMMITTEE MEETS

AND DECIDES TO PRESENT SEVERAL PROPOSED ORDINANCES AT MEETING.

Several matters of interest engaged the attention of the Councilmanic street committee at its meeting held last night, including that of the paving of Watchung avenue, the establishing of the building line on West Front street and the widening of Sycamore street, although no conclusion was reached in the Sycamore street matter.

Three propositions were submitted regarding the widening of Sycamore street, one being to widen the street sixty feet, another to leave the street as it is and a third to take off the corner at Fifth street and set the building line back five feet. In any event commissioners would have to be appointed to assess benefits and damages.

The question of a building line for Front street was considered and will undoubtedly be adopted on third reading at the next meeting, as will also the Watchung avenue paving ordinance. The members are likely to hold an adjourned meeting during September to expedite this paving ordinance and provide for the prescribed time of advertising it. The rest of the time was devoted to a discussion of general street improvements which will be acted on at the next Council meeting.

Club Spent Day in Woods.

Starting early yesterday morning, ten members of the Senior Club, of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, took a tramping tour over the Watchung mountains to Crystal Lake. The party was in charge of Rev. Edward S. Peck, rector of the church, and the entire day was spent in the woods. The "tramps" took their lunch with them and during the noon halt, kindled a camp fire and roasted potatoes and corn. The return was made just at dusk.

"A Father of Netherwood."

John F. Plummer, of New York, one of the "Fathers of Netherwood," was numbered among the guests at the White-Bowen wedding yesterday. Mr. Plummer was a pioneer settler in the Netherwood section and he never missed an opportunity to extol its residential beauties. Though his home is now in the metropolis his visits to Plainfield are frequent and he enjoys them keenly.

Miss Carson's Party.

A pleasant time was spent last evening at the home of Miss Edna Carson, of 49 Belmont avenue, in honor of her birthday. About seventy were present. The features of the evening were games and dancing. Friends were present from Mt. Pleasant, Westfield, New York, New Brunswick, Oak Tree and Dunellen. The music was furnished by D. B. VanOrsten.

Backyard His Bedroom.

Mistaking a Richmond street backyard for his bed room, Thomas Callis, full of good cheer, laid himself down to slumber Wednesday night. He became ugly when Patrolman Higgins advised him to go elsewhere and the patrol wagon was called to take him to headquarters. He received a lecture and a suspension of sentence in the city court yesterday.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL TO BE HANDSOME ONE

Description of the Splendid Structure, Whose Erection Will Cost $105,000.

GROUND IS BROKEN

AMPHITHEATRE TO BE ONE OF ITS FEATURES.

Gymnasium in Basement — Foyer is of Marble—Private Offices in the Building.

Ground was broken yesterday for the new high school building on West Seventh street and Arlington avenue. Isaac Randolph, as contractor, has commenced the excavation for the cellar. The complete plans were filed in Chief Doane's office at Fire Headquarters yesterday for approval.

Although the plans were changed several weeks ago, they are practically the same as those described in The Daily Press at the conclusion of the architects' competition. Fronting on Ninth street, and rising three stories in height, the new building of granite and brick will be a handsome structure. The entrance, approached by ten stone steps, is to be most elaborately decorated in carved stone and flanked by solid Corinthian pilasters. Double swinging doors of plate glass will admit to the granite platform of the terrazzo floor; the foyer is to be of marble. The main corridor within will extend along the front of the building, with parallel arms to the rear. At the right of the entrance will be the offices of superintendent, principal, and clerk of the board, as well as a large ante-room and a board room. On this floor will be three class rooms averaging, as do all class rooms in the building, 32½x26½ feet. In the rear, and inclosed on three sides by the corrider, is to be the auditorium, 60x52 feet, capable of seating 800 persons, including the gal- [illegible] feet. It is flanked by dressing rooms and retiring rooms.

On the second floor are four class rooms and two smaller recitation rooms. Across the front of the building is the school library, 48½x20½ feet, with walls lined with shelves. On this floor is the school emergency hospital. Here also are locker-rooms, such as adjourn each class room throughout the entire building, where the pupils' street clothing is to be kept during recitation hours.

Laboratories and a big lecture amphitheatre will be located on the top floor. Here will be separate rooms for chemistry, physics and science laboratories, and a draughting room for drawing classes. Adjoining the chemistry laboratory will be a dark room for photographic work and light experiments, and there will also be storage rooms for apparatus and drawing models.

In the basement is to be a large gymnasium, perfectly equipped, with adjourning locker-rooms, lavatories and shower baths for boys and girls. On this floor will be the lunch room, too, where pupils will be served with light lunches, prepared in the adjoining kitchen. The remaining basement space will be taken up with manual training rooms and playrooms for boys and girls and with the hearting and ventilating plants.

In the matter of lighting, no flaw can be found in the arrangements at the new school. In its four walls will be something like 115 windows on recitation floors. An air shaft over the gymnasium, which is to be glass roofed, will conduct light to the inner rooms. Electricity and gas will contribute artificial light.

On either side of the building will be entrances direct to the main corrider, the one on Arlington avenue leading from a driveway, with its elaborate stone porte cochere. The building, although fireproof, will be fitted with fire escapes, and all arrangements possible will be made for a quick exit on the part of the pupils.

Borough Council Tonight.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council is to be held this evening. From advance reports business of an interesting nature is to be transacted.

No Concert Tonight.

Residents of the city and borough are reminded of the fact that no band concert will be held tonight. Arrangements for the concluding ones will be made next week.

—The Lincoln School house, at Dunellen, has been renovated at a cost of $400.

MRS. HOFFMAN THREATENS TO SHOOT HER ANNOYER

Tells Justice Clark That Parker Will Not Keep Away From Her Home.

TROUBLE AT 'PLAINS

EACH REFUSED TO PREFER FORMAL COMPLAINT AGAINST THE OTHER.

Officer Advises Them to Go to Court and Judge Fails to Make Peace—Man's Wardrobe Thrown in Street.

Continued wrangling between Mrs. Hoffman, of Terrill road, whose troubles are almost as numberless as the sands of the sea shore, and C. M. Parker, a New York business man, at the former's home last night, led to both hastening to Judge Clark's office in Scotch Plains for an adjustment of affairs. Neither would make a complaint against the other but Mrs. Hoffman implored the justice to order Parker away from her place to stay, while Parker said he wouldn't go and "that settled it." Clark finally sent both off, warning Parker that if he persisted in his molestations and Mrs. Hoffman had him arrested, he would receive the full penalty of the law.

According to the testimony brought out at the "peace" hearing, Parker has lived at the Terrill road residence for two years, but a short time ago Mrs. Hoffman ordered him from the place. He refused to go and his return each night after business has been signalized by a dispute. Last night it waxed so warm that Mrs. Hoffman summoned Officer Pangborn, of Scotch Plains, to remove him by force. When he found no formal complaint was made against him, he advised both parties to settle their differences before Judge Clark and this led to their going to his court. When Mrs. Hoffman made her appeal the judge thought she wanted him put under bonds and was about to do so [illegible] judicial warning that was being sought after. In response to queries as to why he would not remain away, Parker said "he had too much at stake" and then added that Mrs. Hoffman would not let him alone and he wanted a peace warrant served on her.

The court refused this request and then Parker said he wanted his wardrobe returned. This part of the wrangle was easily adjusted by Mrs. Hoffman, who said that it could be found in the road where she had thrown it. Parker made no comment at the court's warning and both he and Mrs. Hoffman left the place together.

At one period of Mrs. Hoffman's tale to the judge, it is alleged she declared that if Parker did not cease bothering her, she would shoot him. The man is said to have a well established business on Park Row.

THROWN AMONG HORSES

THE MISSES HOOLEY AND THEIR COUSIN HAVE NARROW ESCAPES.

The Misses Rae and Mabel Hooley, daughters of Edward S. Hooley, and their cousin, George Hooley, had narrow escapes from serious injury in an accident which befell them while driving through Central avenue, yesterday afternoon.

They were seated in a tandem cart with the young man handling the reins when the leader of their team slipped on a loose stone and fell. The horse following fell on top of it and the sudden stopping of the vehicle threw all three occupants into the street and among the struggling animals. Miss Mabel Hooley was kicked in the side and knocked spinning to the sidewalk curb, but the others saved themselves by quickly jumping to one side as soon as they landed. George Hooley sprang to the horses' heads and righted them before any damaged resulted. Miss Mabel Hooley was bruised where the animal's foot struck her but all three pluckily resumed their places and continued the drive.

"The Smile That Won't Come Off."

One of the latest addition to Plainfield's ever increasing population is a fine little eight pound boy who is king at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dunn, of Norwood avenue.

Mrs. Caroline Todd and daughter, of Gladstone, who have been visiting friends here during the past two weeks, have returned home.

GOLF AND BASEBALL, AS THE ATTRACTIONS

Eighth Game of Series Between the Rival Teams to Take Place at Westfield.

HOT CONTEST SURE

COMPETITION ON HILLSIDE AND PARK CLUBS' COURSES.

Garvin Will be in the Box for Plainfield in Match With Westfield—Plenty of Excitement for Lovers of the Sport.

Unusual interest is centered in the baseball contest scheduled for tomorrow at Recreation Park, Westfield, between Plainfield A. C. and Westfield. Each side seems confident of victory and as Manager Denman promises all sorts of things for his town in the way of talent, Manager Johnston may have to look well to maintain his present lead. His friends and supporters have every confidence in him, however, and believe that Plainfield's representatives will give a good account of themselves away from home.

It is quite necessary that the locals should win tomorrow, as this will make them tie in the series with Westfield and give them a good show to win out. Manager Johnston hopes to have Garvin in the box for him.

As for Westfield's lineup little can be learned at present. "Red" Waller is reported to have left Manager Denman and returned to his old place at Bridgeport. If this is true a new pitcher will be on the slab for Westfield and it is understood that some other changes will be made. Cotter, who forsook his team a week ago, is now said to have made up and will again be seen in a Westfield uniform. It is hoped for the sake of the friendly relationship between the two towns that there will be no trouble over the umpiring and that whoever wins will get the game on its merits.

This will be the Plainfield lineup, [illegible] the exception of pitcher: Cusick, 2b; Bleiberg, rf; Kinney, 3b; Dietrich, cf; Farmer, c; Smith, 1b; Walton, ss.

Manager Johnston announced today that Virgil Garvin would pitch for the Plainfield A. C., at Westfield, tomorrow. A well-founded rumor says that a twirler from the Detroit, American League Club, now in New York, would be on the slab for Westfield. It is also quite certain that Garvin will pitch for the locals Labor Day afternoon against the Star A. C., of Newark.

There will be plenty doing in golf tomorrow. At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club there will be the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, and at the Park Golf Club there will be the weekly competition for the President's and Park Golf Club cups. The chief interest at the Westfield Golf Club will be the first round at match play in the Governors' competition. All of these events are sure to bring out a large number of contestants as the members of the various clubs are now returning home every day.

HAS CONGRESSIONAL BEE.

William R. Wilson's Longing Desire to be Nominated.

While the friends of former Prosecutor William R. Wilson, of Elizabeth, are urging him to go after the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Fifth district, Mr. Wilson told a reporter yesterday that he had not yet fully decided that he would enter the race. He intimated, however, that there were many reasons why he would like to, but there were other considerations which he could not ignore.

It is known, though, that the former prosecutor, who is a close personal friend of former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, with whom he studied law in the office of the present chancellor, William J. Magie, has sounded some of the most influential Democrats in the district, as well as in the State, and it is said that they have encouraged him to do all he can to land the honor.

Tennis Match Play.

The tennis match between the Fountain brothers and Fred L. Martin and William E. Briggs, held yesterday afternoon at Briggs' courts, resulted, in victory for Briggs and Martin, by scores 6-3, 6-2.

—Seventy-five baskets fine Bartlett pears for table or canning go on sale at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow. Also thirty baskets pears at seventy-five cents each.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

READY REFERENCES FOR THE LOCAL BARGAIN SEEKERS.

If you contemplate building this year, consult Titus H. Laury, the contractor, and he will cheerfully quote you prices and estimates

J. W. VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, has in his ice box the choicest cuts of meats you can wish for. Daily consignments, just prices.

Change of season to some people invariably means failing health. Nagle's blood purifier and sarsaparilla will prove just the tonic you need at such times.

Appointment for any operation, however insignificant, can be especially made at Dr. Fred Heinicke's chiropodistic office in Woodhull & Martin's building.

Buttermilk, that most fattening and strengthening milk product, is having a big sale through William Lindsay's Mountain avenue farm dairy. Purest of milk and cream in bottles.

Just the thing for picnics or hurry-up dinners, those fine hams, cheeses and biscuits at R. W. Barnes' Park avenue store. They will save a lot of worry or bother. Order up a supply by telephone.

Before putting in your winter supply of coal communicate with the Keely Coal Company on South avenue. It will be to your advantage, for if you purchase your supply here you will get the best coal at the lowest price.

"The clothes don't make the man," but still if a suit is ill-fitting it makes the man or woman, either, look much the worse for it. Women's suits made by S. Hirsh, the Watchung avenue tailor, are guaranteed to be perfect fits. Riding habits a specialty.

There are many men who can never get a suit of underwear that really feels comfortable. To some, there are always wrinkles and creases where a garment ought to be smooth. Greer & Greenwood, the new East Front street firm, make underwear to order from your measure.

E. M. French, the North avenue real estate dealer, has had many years of experience in the placing of fire insurance. If you are the owner of a building let him write you a policy in any of the several companies he represents. If you contemplate purchasing a home, he can serve you in this capacity.

All the best known medical authorities advocate the use of the bicycle as a healthful means for exercise. With an up-to-date mount it is a pleasure that kings might envy. Harry K. Listen of North [illegible] has the high grade makes of men's and women's bicycles. See his display before buying.

Levy Brothers, the West Front street dry goods merchants, are showing an attractive line of seasonable goods that cannot fail to interest you. The quality of the goods, as well as the prices are features not to be overlooked. If you are interested in millinery there is a well-appointed department devoted entirely to women's headgear where you can easily make a selection.

AMUSEMENTS.

Frohman's productions are always the best on the boards of Broadway and Plainfielders will find a great variety of good plays among his attractions. Edna May, just returned from a conquest in England, is at Daly's, where she is playing to crowded houses in "The School Girl." "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" opens tomorow night at the Savoy and Lee Ditrichstein's new comedy "Military Mad" is running at the Garrick. Sam Bernard and Hattie Williams close tomorrow night after a second run of "The Girl from Kay's," which had a record breaking season last season. William Collier is still a favorite at the Criterion, where Richard Harding Davis' "The Dictator" is making the hit that might be expected of it.

"Piff, Paff, Pouf" continues merrily at the Casino Theatre, New York, undisturbed, except once last week by a vandal whose politician partisanship created quite a commotion in the peaceful mind of Manager Fred C. Whitney. Outside of the Casino is a large sign on which are painted the names of the musical numbers in the production and the hour at which they are rendered. One of these songs is "The Ghost That Never Walked," a ditty which is most laughably sung by Eddie Foy. Originally, the number was mentioned on the sign as follows: "9.17. Eddie Foy. 'The Ghost That Never Walked.'" When Mr. Whitney reached the theatre last Tuesday a humorist of Republican persuasion had changed the line to read: "9.17. Judge Parker. 'The Ghost That Never Talked.'" "For Heaven's sake, get the painter!" exclaimed Mr Whitney. "We'll antagonize all the Democrats in New York." And so the sign was restored, though not until early stirrers on Broadway had enjoyed many laughs at the turn that had been given it.

JAPS IN LIAOYANG

Kuropatkin Withdraws His Entire Army.

KUROKI IS ACROSS TAITSE.

Railway Communication With Mukden Is Cut Off.

OUTFLANKED AND CANNOT RETREAT

Under Pressure of Japanese General Advance Russian Chief Had No Option but to Abandon Liaoyang—He Is Now Hemmed In So That He May Have to Capitulate.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—A special from Liaoyong says that General Kuropatkin, under pressure of a Japanese general advance, has abandoned his position on the left bank of the Taitse river, thus throwing the city of Liaoyang open to the Japanese, who have entered and taken possession of it.

By withdrawing to this position the Russian army avoids the danger of being divided by the river.

General Kuroki's army crossed in force to the right bank of the Taitse river, and it therefore became necessary for the Russians to be in a position to repel a blow in that direction.

The withdrawal of the Russians to the right bank of the river involved, of course, the abandonment of Liaoyang, which is situated on the left bank. The Japanese took immediate advantage of this to occupy the city, but the sternest part of the fighting is still before them unless General Kuropatkin again falls back to the northward. It is thought, however, that he will decide to fight to a finish in his new position.

The determined pursuit by the Japanese of the Russian outposts when General Kuropatkin gave the order to withdraw was probably due to their anxiety to keep the Russians south of Liaoyang until General Kuroki should be able to strike from the northeast.

A Mukden dispatch says that the train service between Mukden and Liaoyang is interrupted and that the roads are impassable.

According to a dispatch from Liaoyang, General Kuroki made his first attempt to cross the Taitse river late in the evening under cover of a heavy bombardment of the extreme Russian left. The Japanese artillery, which had been firing uninterruptedly for fourteen hours that day, ceased about 9 o'clock and then suddenly reopened about 11 to conceal Kuroki's preparations for crossing the river. These preparations necessitated the establishment of a pontoon bridge, as the river was not fordable lower than Sakankankwantun, and the pontoons must have been floated down the stream.

The efforts of the Japanese to cross the river were not successful at first, and General Kuroki therefore ordered a portion of his army to ford it at Sakankankwantun.

General Kuropatkin was unable to prevent the passage of the river owing to the distance from Liaoyang, about twenty miles, but for the same reason the Japanese were unable to bring the forces which gained the right bank immediately into action.

Kuropatkin heard of the passage of the Taitse at Sakankankwantun after 6 o'clock in the evening and immediately gave orders for his men to fall back on the outer positions. This move is explained by the desire to collect a strong force with which to repel a flanking movement from the northeast.

The Japanese repeated the attempt to throw pontoons across the Taitse near Liaoyang during the night, again under cover of a bombardment, and this attempt was successful. Severe fighting may therefore be expected immediately northeast of the city.

The action of the Japanese commander in throwing a force across the river in the face of a strong enemy is considered to be extremely rash, and the position of this force, isolated from the main Japanese army by a deep river, may easily become desperate.

The fighting at Liaoyang has beaten all records for the desperate valor of the assailants and the invincible stubbornness of the defenders. The whole history of warfare tells of no such bombardments, no such carnage and no such persistency. Day after day the fight has been resumed at daybreak and kept up with scarce a moment's intermission until after nightfall.

War scarred veterans scarce believe the stories which come from the seat of war and declare that it is beyond human endurance for an army to fight without respite for a whole week, each day of which has exceeded its predecessor in intensity of struggle and carnival of slaughter. Day after day the thousands of dead bestrewing the battlefield have to be removed. The Japanese have invented new methods to incinerate the heaps of dead, comrades moving the ashes for the honors of burial in Japan. The wounded present a most serious problem, as they tax the transport capacity on either side to the uttermost.

There's a Difference in DRUGS.

There's a greater difference in drugs than most people are aware of.

For instance—Common table salt costs ten cents for a 3 lb bag at the grocery; but the same thing, only purified, costs 27c a lb. Commercial Sulphuric Acid costs 2 cents, while chemically pure costs 35 cents. Commercial Murate of Ammonia costs 11 cents, but the chemically pure costs 55 cents. So it is all along the list.

For ordinary purposes the regular is all right—but when it comes to using it medicinally, then the BEST should always be used.

When we fill your prescription you always get the PUREST and BEST carefully compounded.

VIRGINIA WAR GAME

Opposing Armies Scouting Over Battle Zone.

FIGHTING OPENS AT EARLY DAWN

Military Men From Seven Governments and Governors of Eight States Are to Be Corbin's Guests In Great Camp.

GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 2.—Squadrons of cavalry are bivouacked throughout the entire maneuver zone. The search for position is growing keen, and both the Seventh cavalry at Thoroughfare, who are to be a part of the brown army in the maneuvers, and the Fifteenth at Manassas, who are to wear the blue, are remaining away from camp that they may have the benefit of the entire day in their studies of the country.

The conference in General Corbin's tent, which was participated in by both division commanders, Grant and Bell, and the four brigade commanders of each division, Colonel Wagoner, chief umpire, and General Corbin's staff officers, settled all open questions. The conference revealed the keenness with which the opposing commanders are entering into the spirit of the game. Both wanted to know the minute they will be allowed to move when the first problem is declared on. The time was fixed at midnight on Monday, and there is no doubt that daylight on the 6th will not be waited for by either commander.

There is to be no declaration of victory by Colonel Wagoner, the chief umpire. The results of the day's operations are to be summed up by the umpires as accurately as possible and a statement made giving the disposition and use of forces made by each side. This is as near a determination of a military contest as is practicable where blank cartridges are used instead of lead. The residents of the maneuver zone are to be protected during the actual maneuvers by guards if they so desire. Some requests have been made to this end, especially for the protection of live stock in the event of the cutting down of fences for cavalry charges or to gain artillery positions. The commercial telephone and telegraph wires are not to be used for the transmission of information by either side, the supposition being that in actual warfare these means of communication will be destroyed.

During the maneuvers General Corbin is to entertain the military representatives of seven governments at headquarters' camp, the governors of eight states and other distinguished guests. His camp has been arranged with this end in view, and, although the accommodations are simply those of the army officer in the field, there will be no lack of the necessities of life. The mess provided furnishes substantial food, but not of a fancy variety. Each guest will have a tent, with a regular campaigning outfit, and he will have to rough it as if on active service.

John N. Bogart at Rosemount.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The most interesting feature of the day at Rosemount was the visit of John N. Bogart, one of the state organizers of the American Federation of Labor, who spent two or three hours in conference with Judge Parker. Mr. Bogart was exceedingly reticent about his visit, declaring that he came to see Judge Parker merely in a personal way and as an old acquaintance. Judge Parker refused to make any statement regarding Bogart's errand. The rumor reached Esopus in advance of Mr. Bogart's coming that he was to discuss the attack of organized labor in New York city upon Senator McCarren as chairman of the Democratic state executive committee.

Civil Engineer a Suicide.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Reuben Shirriffs, a civil engineer, has committed suicide here by asphyxiation. His body was found in the pantry of his home. In a note which he left for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Louise Bruce, he said the deed was prompted by financial troubles and the illness of his wife, who is in Chicago. He was fifty-two years old, and his wife is a member of a prominent family of Richmond, Va. He was preparing to move to New York when he ended his life.

Cable Train Jumped Track.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—A southbound State street cable train struck an iron pin in the cable slot at State and Root streets and was hurled from the track. The car was filled with passengers. At least ten were hurt in the panic that followed. The majority of the injured were women. The only ones seriously hurt are Charles Pucker, conductor, hip dislocated; Mrs. Grace Williams, head cut, badly bruised.

Bas d'Or at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—Bas d'Or won the feature of the fair grounds card. Otto Stifel, the favorite, had bad racing luck, being cut off twice in the last eighth. Bas d'Or, badly outrun the first part, had clear sailing through the last eighth and won by a length from Commodore, who was a nose in front of Dishabille. G. C. Bennett's two-year-old filly.

New Water Supply For Panama.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The Panama canal commission has made requisition on the office here for piping with which to supply the entire city of Panama with water. The commission has purchased three large steam shovels for work on the Culebra cut and materials and supplies wherewith to equip the printing office at Panama.

TO SUCCEED PARKER.

Edgar M. Cullen Appointed Chief Justice.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Judge Edgar M. Cullen of Brooklyn has been appointed chief judge of the court of appeals by Governor Odell to succeed Judge Alton B. Parker, resigned.

Judge Cullen is a Democrat and is now serving as an additional judge of the court of appeals, a position to which he was designated by Theodore Roosevelt when he was governor of New York.

It has been settled by the Republican managers that Judge Cullen will be nominated by the Republican party for the position to which he has been appointed.

Bank Treasurer Arrested.

WATERTOWN, Mass., Sept. 2.—Nathan A. Frye, for eight years treasurer of the Watertown Savings bank has been arrested here charged with embezzling $12,000 from the institution. According to the bank officials Frye has made a written confession admitting the larceny. He was arraigned in the district court at Waltham and after pleading not guilty was held in $10,000 for the Middlesex county grand jury. The shortage came to light a few days ago through a discovery by an auditor that the trial balance statement did not agree with the aggregate of deposits in the bank. Thereupon it is claimed Frye confessed to taking a total of $12,000 during the past four years.

Appeal Allowed In Securities Case.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 2.—Judge Lanning in the United States circuit court has signed an order allowing an appeal from the decision of Judge Bradford in the Northern Securities company case. The appeal carries the case to the United States circuit court of appeals for the third circuit. The assignments of errors question Judge Bradford's jurisdiction and charge that he erred in not dismissing the case and also in granting the preliminary injunction restraining the Securities company from disposing of the Northern Pacific stock received by the Securities company from Harriman and Pierce and from the Northern Pacific company.

Abducted Children Found.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Luella and Lillie Widdis, aged thirteen and eleven years, children of Frederick Widdis of Brockville, Ont., who were abducted two weeks ago, have been found in a vacant house near Hammond, N. Y. Luella says that Tony Raggazino, an Italian friend of the family, took them from home at night while their father slept, crossed the St. Lawrence with them, made them walk eleven miles back into the country and left them in the vacant house while he returned to Brockville for their belongings. He was bound toward Hammond when arrested. His examination is set for tomorrow.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark.

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

The New Woman

Her Influence Is Felt Everywhere For Good

SARAH GRAND has said that the new woman has come to overthrow the old one. In truth, wherever she appears this strong, wise new woman not only overthrows the old conditions of her sex, but even the old order, politically and socially, when that is wrong. She does it, too, so gently and fusslessly that nobody knows it is done till suddenly a new and better order appears. Have you noticed the result of the last general election in New South Wales, where women have had full suffrage the past two years? We in America heard nothing concerning the political campaign there until the recent election was over. Then came the word that the women's vote had overthrown the ministry previously in power. The opposition party entered the contest on the issue of extravagance in public administration. It demanded that expenses be cut down and the government be run more economically. This appealed strongly to the women voters. Men, as compared to women, know not the A B C of economy. Woman is a natural economist where her instincts have not been perverted by ignorance and vanity. So the women voters of New South Wales, not being shackled by party name, as men are, lose in their independent strength and throw their ballots on the side of economy and reform. A great victory for the opposition party resulted. That was result enough, but there is a point or two besides quite notable in this first general election since all the citizens of New South Wales have had suffrage. The first point was a great and sudden addition to the labor party, showing that the woman voter is on the side of the toiler. Let all labor unions of men indorse woman suffrage! The next notable point is the very large number of women who voted. What does this show? That woman does want the ballot and will use it when she gets it.

Mrs. Hugo Mulertt has recently written a charming and dainty little book in the German language. It is called "Der Dackel auf Reisen" ("The Dachshund on His Travels"). Mr. and Mrs. Mulertt made a trip from New York to Wiesbaden, Germany, and took the little dog with them. The dog is supposed to tell in his own words what he saw on his travels. Though we are to consider it only dog talk, the story is told in a pure and simple German that is admirable. The little volume is specially adapted to the use of either grown persons or children who are beginning to read German. The proceeds of the sale of "Der Dackel auf Reisen" go to the maintenance of a home for aged and invalided women teachers.

An authority says that at present more progress is being made in the processes of educating girls than boys. Well, isn't it about time? Girls have 5,000 years' back time to make up.

Economical people can afford to be generous. The extravagant cannot.

Rev. Dr. James Martineau once spoke of a place in the country whose summer breezes "blew away at once all the care for health and gave the thing itself without the thought of it." "Under its influence," he wrote, "we find ourselves soon enabled to bear and to enjoy what we should decline to venture on at home." I like to think there are hundreds of thousands of working women this summer enjoying a vacation, even though it be a brief one, in that kind of a place.

The present summer New York city has for the first time in its history a woman hired by the municipal authorities to sing at the open air concerts in the parks. She is Miss Kitty Rampone. She has a remarkably sweet, powerful soprano voice, peculiarly adapted to the popular ballads she sings. It is a voice, too, that open air singing does not injure. Miss Rampone's songs alternate with the music of the park bands.

Considerable space on the society page of a newspaper was recently filled by the description of a fashionable dog's luggage when it goes on its travels with its mistress. It has to have a trunk all its own to contain its various decorated collars, its different blankets and ribbon bows for morning and afternoon wear. And babies—real human babies with immortal souls—are dying and being murdered every day by the score. Oh, my country!

London women are ahead of Americans in at least one respect. Society women there have a Ladies' Automobile club, whose members are not satisfied merely to sit in their seats and let a man steer their vehicles for them. Not they! They learn about the machine's management and steer it themselves. The president of the club is the Duchess of Sutherland, and its vice president is also a titled woman. The numerous titles among its members cause the club to be regarded by the British public with admiration not unmingled with awe. This feminine automobile club had recently a meet in London in which sixty-one vehicles joined in the procession, which was led by its president in an eighteen horse-power machine.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The hall was filled with shouts of approval and joyful acclamations.

"A moment, gentlemen," continued the old admiral, smiling his approbation of the enthusiasm of his subordinates and making a fine figure, with his powdered head, weather-beaten, haughty old face, his rich uniform heavy with gold-lacing, and his breast covered with orders—"a moment, while I give you the toast. Fill your glasses all and drink deep with me: Death to the enemies of the king, confusion to the English, success to our endeavor! Vive la France!"

A perfect roar of applause and acquiescence swept through the room. Men sprang upon the chairs crying and cheering, some tore down the banners and flags from the walls, waving them frantically, and shouting themselves hoarse in their excitement. They would shout another way, sing another tune once the grim English Hawke got his talons in them, thought Grafton—still, 'twas a pretty sight. He alone seemed to read an old sentence on the wall.

"When do you sail, Monsieur de Conflans?" asked the archbishop, when he could be heard above the tumult. There was an instant silence as they all waited in tense excitement to receive the reply.

"Monseigneur," answered the old admiral, inclining his head toward the prelate, "I beg you to invoke a blessing upon our undertaking. Silence, gentlemen!"

The officers stood with bowed heads while the venerable archbishop, rising and lifting a white hand in the air, breathed forth an eloquent prayer for the success of their arms. The amens with which the guests ratified his passionate petition were not less deep and fervent than had been their cries a moment since.

"Most Reverend Father," returned the admiral, as the prayer was concluded, "as to the time of sailing? As soon as the wind changes, monseigneur, and lets us get away from the harbor."

There was a sudden clashing of arms on the stair. A young soldier, an officer of cavalry, strode into the room through the open door. He stopped before the admiral, clicked his heels together with military precision, and saluted.

"Monsieur le Marechal," he said, "I have a message to you from the port admiral."

"What is it, sir?"

"He bade me tell you that the wind had changed within the hour and 'tis now blowing fair for you to leave the harbor."

"Gentlemen," cried the admiral, "we sail at six in the morning. We have much to do. Monsieur le Marquis, you will pardon us if we withdraw thus early? Come, come, messieurs, the toasting and feasting are over, the time of war begins."

Grafton felt a touch on his arm. The anxious face of Josette loomed up out of the darkness near his shoulder.

"Come with me," she whispered, softly.

As he turned to go, he heard the admiral say to de Kersaint:

"Monsieur, you may remain here an hour or two longer. Your ship, I know, is in readiness to weigh anchor, and so long as you are aboard at the appointed time I shall be satisfied. I am loath to part you from so charming a fiancee in so unceremonious a way. Yes," he continued, in answer to a question, "you may retain Capt. de Vitre."

Grafton drew the hood over his head once more, and wrapping the cloak closely about him turned and followed the nervous Josette, as she stepped rapidly through the hall and up the stair. The corridors were filled with gentlemen and servants, and though one or two cast glances of curiosity and suspicion at the maid and her companion, they were neither accosted nor detained. Just as they entered upon the stair the steward came into the corridor and gazed earnestly at them.

As Grafton found himself mounting the tower stair he discovered his heart beating almost to suffocation. He was to see Anne, to speak to her again, perhaps to take her in his arms, to kiss her once more. He forgot his frigate outside, he forgot the French fleet, his duty, everything, for the moment, but his love. How could she greet him? He would soon know. They were approaching her door.

"Have you told her that I am here?" he asked Josette.

"No, monsieur."

"That's well."

"Shall I announce you now?"

"By no means. Do you stand by the door here and give me warning of any approach."

"You would not harm the Countess Anne, monsieur?" she asked, laying her hand upon his arm and looking at him beseechingly. "You will remember that she is but a woman who—loves you?"

"I love her too, Josette. I swear to you I would rather die than harm should come to her. Rest easy. And enter without hesitation should I be in danger of discovery. Is this the door?"

She nodded her head. He pressed her hand softly, opened the door, parted the curtains, and entered the room.

CHAPTER XXIV.

THREE LOVERS COME TO THE TOWER.

THE Countess Anne was seated in a chair at a table at the other side of the room within the oriel window. She was dressed just as she had been when she left the dining-room a few moments before. She sat with her back toward him and with her face buried in her hands. He could see by the trembling of her shoulders that she was weeping. He had made no sound as he entered and she did not look up. He stood for an instant watching her, his heart in his gaze. Time meant liberty—nay, life—to him yet if the sword had been at his throat he could not have refrained from that moment of contemplation.

How exquisite was her beauty, that wandering lock of hair curling so tenderly about her neck! How he longed to kiss it! He moved a step nearer to her, involuntarily stretching out his hands toward her. At the same moment she lifted her head and looked out into the night through the window in the direction of Canada.

"Philip, Sir Philip!" she whispered pitifully. "So far away!"

He took a step nearer. It was painfully still within the room. Perhaps she heard the beating of his heart, for she slowly turned her head and stared at him. He stood before her eyes as if rooted to the spot.

"Philip," she murmured softly, doubting her senses, "is it a dream? Am I a child again, that you stand here in the old room, in the old tower where first you loved me, where first your lips met mine? Philip!"

She rose to her feet and turned toward him. He could not move, she fascinated him. "Philip!" she cried again, her voice rising in joy and fervor mingled, "is it indeed you? I left you in Quebec. How came you here?"

She tottered toward him in lovely bewilderment, but her strength had been so sorely taxed that it now gave way—she swayed unsteadily and would have fallen. Another step took him to her side. He clasped her to his breast, strained her to his heart so tightly that he hurt her as he covered her surprised face with kisses. She sank into his arms. Her head fell upon his shoulder. He felt the sinuous, supple yield of her slender body as her hands met around his neck. For the moment neither spoke. Presently he turned her lovely face up to his own again. He looked into her eyes once more. Not the blackness of the night outside the dark tower was so deep and full as they.

"O Philip!" she whispered, returning kiss for kiss. "You have come back to me. Thank God, you have come back to me!"

"Yet you left me in America, Anne. You left me without a word! How could you?"

"My letter? Did you not receive it?"

"Ay, but not a word from your lips. You left me alone, ill, helpless. But there—I will not reproach you. I followed you; I would have followed you to the end of the earth. Did you not know it? Did you not dream that I should be here?"

She nodded her head.

"I looked for you, I waited for you, I knew you would come, my own!" she murmured, laying her cheek upon his shoulder again with a long sigh of utter content.

He was here, he was hers, she was his, he held her close in his strong arms—what more? His clasp was so tight, he crushed her so against his breast, that the diamond cross she wore was pressed deep into her tender bosom. What mattered it? The pain was sweet to her, 'twas love's brand. He would never release her now. She was his only. The weary days of waiting, the long voyage over the stormy seas, the plans of her grandfather, the hopes of de Vitre—they were forgotten. Honor, faith, obedience—he had conquered.

"Yours, yours only, Philip, my darling—yours, yours, yours only," she murmured again and again as she felt his beating heart. It was so restful in his arms she surrendered herself to him in passionate devotion. She nestled against him as a child, who was seeking peace and longing for a haven, might have done.

"BUT HOW CAME YOU HERE, PHILIP?"

"But how came you here, Philip?" she asked at last, withdrawing from his arms a space that she might look at him.

How handsome he was, how like a king!

"Do you not remember that night in the tower, my own?"

"Have I ever forgotten it? There you kissed away the child, and from that moment I loved you. 'Twas for that reason I bade them make my room here."

"You recall the story of Baron de Croisic, sweet—how we wondered if one could climb the wall?"

"Yes, yes, and you said, given a sufficient—what was the word, Philip?"

"Incentive, sweet Anne, and with you at the top I could have climbed to heaven."

"O Philip!" she shuddered, "and did you come up that awful wall this dark night? How could you do it?"

"Love lent me wings. I saw you at the top. I pictured this moment. 'Twas hope and a light heart that lifted me up, my darling."

"And if you had fallen?"

"Then you would have been troubled no longer, Little France."

"I should have laid my body beside yours, Philip, at the foot of the tower wall," she cried, trembling and pressing him to her heart once more.

"But your engagement, Anne?"

"O Philip, that is not all. Not only did I promise myself to Monsieur de Vitre, but——"

"You were betrothed to-night to de Kersaint."

"You know?"

"I was there."

"There? Where?"

"In the armory, behind the curtain."

"Ah!" she cried. "'Twas you that made me look and gaze!"

"Yes, 'twas I. But you do not love this man?"

She laughed.

"Philip, my Philip, can you not see whom I love? There is not a throb of my heart that is not for you. Ah, would that you might say the same!"

"I do say it, dearest. I swear it!"

"But that picture in the locket?"

"Set your heart at ease, Anne. In a little while you shall know the mystery of that."

"I have no mysteries from you, Philip."

"Nor shall I have from you, love, when this poor story is told. But tell me, what is it you will do?"

"I know not. My honor was pledged to de Vitre, although, with my grandfather's refusal, that conditional promise is broken, and I am free there. My heart is given to you, and my grandfather plights me to de Kersaint. What shall I do?"

"Follow your heart, Anne; love is the safest guide. Listen. I have a rope here attached to the tower, I can lower you safely and easily down. There, in a little bay below, a trusty man and a little boat are ready for us. Outside on the ocean my stout frigate waits us. Come with me. In one day we are in England, free, and we shall be married at once. Trust me as you love me. I will give up my commission in the navy of England, if you wish; we will go back to America, and there, in your mother's land, Anne, make home and happiness together."

"Philip," she cried, persuaded yet resistant, "I—I cannot."

He gently led her toward the window, faintly protesting, feebly struggling. How masterful he was, this wooer who would not be denied! Could she resist him? Her will—ay, but her heart, was traitor, and to every plea he urged it beat yes, yes, yes!

"Mercy, Philip! De Vitre! Monsieur de Kersaint! My grandfather, my country, my home! Pity me. Do not ask. I am weak before you. I cannot, and yet, if you say so, I must! Oh, look not so!"

"But you love me. Can you not trust yourself with me? Will you not give up all these things for me? Love is selfish—yes, I know it; but that I cannot help. I must ask you to throw aside all of your life for me, and me alone! I love you so! Nay, you shall, you must! Come!"

He bent lower to her and poured his soul into her own in burning glances. She had fought a good fight, she had struggled to keep her heart and keep her faith. It was over.

"I throw them all aside, Philip!" she cried, the relief of the decision apparent in her joyous voice. "And if you will take me as I am, I will go with you to England, to America, to the end of the world, even!"

But the sacrifice he asked with love's egotism, and which she was so willing to make with love's altruism, was not to be.

"Some one comes!" cried Josette in great agitation, thrusting her head through the door. "Quick, hide yourself, monsieur, or you are lost!"

It would be impossible for him to carry out his plan of lowering her from the tower now; it would take time, and they must be unhindered.

"Go, go!" cried Anne, "you will be captured—killed!"

"Without you! Never!" answered Grafton. "You must conceal me."

"But where?"

"There!" cried Josette, pointing to the countess' bed chamber. "'Tis the [illegible]

THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

Chicago Athlete Won the International Foot Race.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—American athletes held the center of the stage here in the fourth day of the Louisiana Purchase exposition revival of the Olympic games, and to their pluck and grit belongs the credit for creating one world's record and three Olympic records.

One of the greatest races of the 1904 olympiad was the 800 meter run. The distance in American measure is 874.89 yards. Entered in the race were representatives of the United States, Germany, Canada and New Zealand, but the first four places were claimed by men running under the colors of Chicago, New York and Milwaukee athletic clubs.

Not only did James D. Lightbody of the Chicago Athletic association lower the Olympic record by 5 2-5 seconds, but he ran the legs off the German representative, who collapsed at the finish.

The race also proved to be heart-breaking for E. W. Breitkreutz of the Milwaukee Athletic club, who after crossing the tape in third place fell exhausted on the track, and it was several minutes before he could leave the field.

M. Prinstein of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association broke the Olympic record in the running broad jump on his fourth trial with a distance of 24 feet 1 inch. The record was formerly held by A. C. Kranzlein, University of Pennsylvania, who jumped 23 feet 6¼ inches at the Paris olympiad in 1900.

H. L. Hillman of the New York Athletic club maintained his reputation as the fastest man in the world over the hurdles by breaking the Olympic record of 25 2-5 seconds, made by A. C. Kranzlein, University of Pennsylvania, at Paris in 1900. Hillman went the distance in 24 3-5 seconds.

Major Delmar Failed.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—Eight thousand persons attended the grand circuit meeting at Narragansett park, the big attraction being the attempt of Major Delmar to lower the world's trotting record without a wind shield of 2:02¼. It was figured that as he went in that time at Readville last week against a strong wind he would, with the conditions as nearly perfect as possible, win a new record. But instead the son of Delmar made a complete failure, although he was at the quarter in .30½ and at the half in 1:01 and then stepped the third quarter in 29¾ seconds, making his total there 1:30¾. In the homestretch, despite the urging of two runners, one on each side of him, his speed failed perceptibly, and for the last fifty yards he dropped back to a 2:30 gait, making the mile in 2:03.

Aurumaster at Sheepshead Bay.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Aurumaster at 20 to 1 won the Reapers' stakes for three-year-olds at Sheepshead Bay, defeating the odds-on favorite Ormonde's Right by a head. Lyne rushed Ormonde's Right into the lead and led to the stretch and was apparently winning easily when Crimmins brought Aurumaster up and won by catching Lyne off his guard. Wild Mint won the Dash stakes in a driving finish by half a length from Councilman, with the favorite, Dreamer, third. Libretto in the Hempstead cup steeplechase was the only horse to successfully cover the full course. The others all fell, but Horizontal and Daffodowndilly were remounted and finished second and third respectively.

Fatal Racing Accident.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 2.—E. C. Downs of this city, while driving in the races at the Broome county fair at Whitney's Point, was thrown from his sulky and so badly injured that he cannot recover.

TRUE TO OLD LOVE

Princess of Saxe-Coburg Flies With Former Lover.

A PRISONER OF STATE SEVEN YEARS

Closely Attended and In Attractive Costume, She Visited Theater at Bad Elster and Then Managed to Give Guard the Slip.

BAD ELSTER, Savoy, Sept. 2.—Princess Louise of Saxe-Coburg, it now appears, escaped from her hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning. She was joined under the trees in the hotel garden by two women and a man. They entered a two horse carriage which was waiting outside and were driven swiftly away in the direction of Munich.

A man named W. Gratz, who was stopping at the hotel, has not appeared since Monday night. It is supposed that he provided the means for the flight of the princess and that he was an agent of Lieutenant Count Mattastich-Keglevich, with whom she eloped in 1897.

The princess, closely attended by her physician and a lady of the court, went to the theater in the evening. She was animated and seemingly enjoyed the music, as she had enjoyed everything during the three weeks she had been permitted to leave the seclusion of the Sanitarium Pierson at Coswig, where really she was a prisoner of state.

She had been provided with attractive costumes for this reappearance in the world, and she was allowed once more to wear those splendid jewels which were part of her dowry when she married Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg.

Some of those who had known her indifference in the days before her affair with Lieutenant Mattatich-Keglevich wondered at the changes wrought by the princess' imprisonment.

After the theater the princess and her little party had supper in one of her rooms. She said good night at 11:30, and her guardians were not aware of her departure until 7 o'clock in the morning, by which time she was probably far toward the Swiss frontier.

Gratz first had a room on the third floor of the hotel, but he moved to one on the ground floor with a private entrance into the garden. It is presumed that the princess used this exit.

Princess Louise, who is the eldest daughter of the king of the Belgians, was born in Brussels in 1858, and in 1875 she was married to Prince Philip of the younger and Austrian branch of the Saxe-Coburg-Gotha family. By Philip she had two children—a son, twenty-six years old, and a daughter of twenty-three.

The story of the intrigue between Louise and Keglevitch has been told by him in a book published in 1903. He was a penniless lieutenant of hussars, who first met her in the Prater in Vienna in 1895. His fine horsemanship attracted the attention of Louise, as she, riding in her carriage, attracted his. For weeks after he would follow her carriage during her morning ride. He at last secured a presentation to her, and their intimacy grew fast.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Star A. C., of Newark, who meet Plainfield A. C., on Crescent Oval Labor Day afternoon, have defeated the strongest teams in the State and the locals will have to hustle to win.

Bradley, formerly of the Plainfield A. C., but now playing third base for the West Ends, of Somerville, has given up his job at Pond's and has gone to Somerville to live. He is putting up a good game for the Somerville team.

It now appears to be Manager Denman who is constantly changing the makeup of his team each week. Earlier in the season the Plainfield A. C., was accused of this trick, but the little manager at Recreation Park is now having his troubles.

There is a rumor in circulation that the managers of the Pittsburg and Brooklyn National League Clubs, have been trying to secure Farmer, Cregan and Courtney, of the Plainfield A. C. The report says that Pittsburg has offered the local club $600 for the release of Farmer and Cregan and that the Brooklyns have made the same offer for Courtney. It is not believed that the players will leave here.

GOLF.

In the championship of the United States Golf Association, slated to begin over the Baltusrol links Tuesday, Frank O. Reinhart, of Plainfield, is paired with C. S. Kellogg, of Philadelphia and J. W. Baker, of Princeton, is paired with H. P. Smith, of Philadelphia.

Charles Maltby and Charles Cruzen made a big catch at Sewaren Wednesday. They brought home nineteen large sized weakfish, a bluefish and a big fluke. They also hooked several turtles.

ON THE TRACK.

"The Lawyer," the trotter owned by John Barbour, of New Brunswick, won one of two trotting races in which he was entered at Hoboken, N. J., Wednesday.

For Cash Only!

Beginning Sept. 1, the Park Avenue Meat Market, corner Park avenue and West Second street, will conduct a STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS. Patrons will be enabled to procure High Grade Meats, Vegetables, etc., at prices that will surely make it profitable for them to trade here.

Orders called for and delivered

We feel confident that the change will be for the good of the public as so much capital must be tied up in a credit business that the prices are always much higher on that account.

Special Sale Saturday on All Meats . . .

The past six years' experience compels us to adopt this method, because it lessens the labor, thereby allowing us to reduce the prices on the goods we offer for sale. Thanking the public for so generous a share of their patronage in the past, we remain, yours respectfully,

TO REOPEN THE CHURCH

MANY IMPROVEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE IN CONGREGATIONAL EDIFICE.

After complete interior redecoration for a period of several weeks, during which time the church has been closed, the Congregational church, on West Seventh street, will open for the first service on Sunday. The interior of the church has been vastly improved by fresh kalsomine, varnish and paint and now presents a handsome appearance. In accordance with plans made by the committee appointed to take charge of the improvements, new carpet has been laid throughout the entire church. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the church, who is spending his summer vacation at Squirrel Island, Maine, will officiate at services Sunday.

The morning service, beginning Sunday, will take place at 10:30 instead of 9:30, the hour during the summer months. Sunday-school will be held hereafter in the afternoon at 2:45 instead of in the morning at 10:45.

Its First Anniversary.

The People's Credit Clothing Company, which has come to be recognized as one of Plainfield's leding business houses, today completes its first year as a local enterprise. To Manager H. Adelberg and its many hundreds of patrons the firm's first anniversary is a source of extreme satisfaction as it has been reached in the face of many obstacles. At its entrance to the city there were many predictions as to its being short lived because of the broad system of credit extended to all, but fears have proved groundless. "Credit free to all" has been Manager Adelberg's motto and it has proven his guide to success. Located on East Front street, the company's large and well equipped display rooms have attracted hundreds of people and its method of doing business, together with the low priced values, have gained scores of customers. In the one year that it has been doing business the firm has opened up 3,800 accounts, of which 3,200 were in Plainfield and the remainder as follows: Westfield, 290; Cranford, 265; Garwood, 216; Dunellen, 276; Bound Brook, 426; South Plainfield, 87, and Scotch Plains, 56. To mark this anniversary, Manager Adelberg announces that he has began the second year by sparing no expense in improving the display rooms and carrying larger stocks of the very best goods in men, women and children's wearing apparel, absolutely no cheap imitations. Share the People's Credit Clothing Company's success by opening an account now as the fall stocks are in.

Midshipman on Furlough.

Midshipman Fred T. VanAuken, a former resident of this city, is spending his month's furlough at the home of his aunt, Mrs. William Sebring, of Lincoln place. VanAuken, a graduate of the city High School, has just concluded his first term at the Annapolis Naval Academy, and came ashore early in the week from the U. S. S. "Nevada," in which he has been taking a cruise of practical instruction in seamanship off New London, Conn. Van has won his "Second N" pitch on the Navy varsity.

An enjoyable ice cream, peach and watermelon festival was held on the grounds surrounding the Marconnier chapel, last evening. The proceeds were gratifying and were added to the chapel's treasury.

MORE VOTING MACHINES

PLAINFIELD TO GET ONE MORE FOR THE COMING ELECTION.

Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson announced yesterday the location of the 190 new voting machines which are to be used at the election this fall. These, with the eighty-one in use last year, will make a total of 271 machines at the coming election. The old machines will remain in the voting districts in which they were used last fall. In Hudson and Essex counties forty-key machines will be inserted throughout, instead of thirty-key machines heretofore in use.

The assignment of machines was made upon the basis of population, except in Atlantic and Middlesex counties, where no machines have been placed. In the case of Atlantic County this was due to failure to answer the communication of the secretary of State relative to the placing of the machines, and in Middlesex County it was because the officials there stated that they did not want them. Two or three changes may be made in the assignments announced by the secretary of State yesterday, but this is improbable. The new machines will be placed among other places in the State as follows:

Somerset—Bound Brook Borough, North Plainfield, Second district; Bridgewater, Fourth district.

Union — Roseville Borough; Rahway, First and Third wards; Summit, First ward; Westfield, First ward; Cranford, Second district; Plainfield, third ward, First district; Elizabeth, Third ward, Second district.; Fourth ward, Second district; Fifth ward, First district; Seventh ward, Second district; Ninth ward, Second district.

Word has been received from the Plainfielders who are included among the Knights Templar who are enjoying a trip to the Pacific Coast, that they are all well and having a great time. The party is now in San Francisco. The Plainfielders are scheduled to reach here September 19.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will meet this evening and make final arrangements for its participation in the Field Day exercises at Somerville Monday. It is understood that the Democratic leaders in New Jersey will, at the coming State convention, adopt a resolution providing for the election of members of the State committee for the term of four years, and that the members first appointed shall serve until the convention to be held in the spring of 1908 for the selection of delegates to the National convention of that year.

Announcement is made by the City Republican Committee that the County Clerk's office at Elizabeth will be open for the benefit of those desiring naturalization every Wednesday morning during September at 10 o'clock and on October 5, 6 and 7 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The naturalization committee will make the trip to Elizabeth on any of these dates with Plainfielders to be naturalized.

Under the direction of Secretary J. Herbert Potts, of the Republican State Committee, the newly selected headquarters of Trenton are rapidly being rehabilitated to put them in order for the active work of the fall campaign. The building selected for the purpose is something of a ramshackle old place, but the convenience of its location, just opposite the State House, is looked upon as outweighing all other defects. Much, however, must be done to make the building even fairly habitable. As already announced, the headquarters here are to be run in conjunction with those in Newark, but it has not been decided, or at least has not been made public, which are designed to be the main headquarters and which the branch. The fact that the chairman of the State committee, Frank O. Briggs, lives in Trenton, and that rooms have been assigned in the headquarters here to Secretary J. Herbert Potts and Treasurer Winton O. Garrison, of the committee, is responsible for a belief hereabouts that the Trenton headquarters will not suffer by comparison with those in Newark as regards the actual work done. It is probable that in the operation of the spellbinders' bureau, an important function of the headquarters establishment, the State will be divided into imaginary districts, the speakers for northern New Jersey being assigned from the Newark branch and those for the southern section of the State from the Trenton branch. The clerical force has not yet been selected, but will be added from time to time as the work of the committee may require.

M. J. McCarthy Buried.

Funeral services of Michael J. McCarthy, who died Tuesday, were held this morning from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Robert Skinner, of West Fourth street. Requiem mass was conducted at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock in the morning by Father Egan and the interment followed in St. Mary's cemetery.

LABOR DAY OFFERS NUMEROUS ATTRACTIONS

Baseball and Golf Contests, Excursions and Other Events to Interest Plainfielders.

BIG PYTHIAN OUTING

KNIGHTS TO GO TO SOMERVILLE WITH TWO DRUM CORPS AND A FLOAT.

Plainfield A. C. to Play the Star A. C., of Newark—Grocers to Go to Coney—Stores to be Closed.

While Labor Day will mark the return of many Plainfield families who have been away during the summer months to the seashore and mountains, it will be additionally attractive by the fact that there have been arranged a number of events to interest all in the way of excursions, golf, horse racing and baseball. There will be the seventeenth annual excursion of the Plainfield Grocers' Association to Coney Island. The train will leave here at 8:00 in the morning and from New York the trip will be made on one of the Iron Steamboat Company's boats.

Another excursion will be that of the New Jersey Central to Mauch Chunk. This is an annual event and generally takes a large number of Plainfielders to the mountains.

The members of Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will pay a fraternal visit to the Summit Council, and the Plainfield letter-carriers will attend the annual convention of the Letter-Carriers' Association to be held at Newark, while a number will attend the race-meet to be held at New Brunswick under the auspices of the Raritan Driving Association. The races will start promptly at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and there will be several local horses entered.

Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, Improved Order Red Men, has planned to spend the day at Harrison, N. J., where there will be a gathering of Red Men.

All of the local druggists will close their stores in the afternoon from 1 to 6 o'clock and the day will be generally observed by the other merchants.

One of the chief events for the stay-at-homes will be the baseball contest on Crescent Oval in the afternoon. The Plainfield A. C. will cross bats with the Star A. C., of Newark, one of the strongest semi-professional teams in the State. The locals will present their regular team and Garvin and Farmer will probably be the battery. The game will be called at 3:45 o'clock. There will be no morning game.

To local members of the order of Knights of Pythias, Labor Day will be of more than passing interest as it marks the annual field day exercises which are to be held at Somerville under the auspices of Lodge of the Castle, No. 82. Big delegations will be sent by Perseverance lodge, No. 74; Unity lodge, No. 102, and Crescent Company, No. 13, the latter the uniformed rank, all of which will compete for the various prizes. The Perseverance and Crescent Company members will go by train, starting at 11 o'clock from the North Avenue station. Unity lodge will be represented in the parade with an allegorical float and many of the members will ride on it. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps, of this city, will furnish music for Crescent Company and the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Elizabeth, will head the Perseverance delegation. The Somerville people are making preparations to entertain a great crowd and the attractions arranged extend over the entire day. Washington's headquarters will be open for inspection free of charge and special stages will be run to Duke's farm at South Somerville. The parade will begin at 1:30, there will be two ball games, one at 10 in the morning and the other at 4 o'clock and the prize drills of the Uniform Rank will be at 3 o'clock. General headquarters will be at Somerset Hall where women visitors will be made welcome and provided for. The exercises will conclude with a military ball in Germania Hall at night.

The golf committee of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club has arranged an attractive programme of events for Labor Day, in addition to the regular competitions for the Holiday cup and Green's Committees Tankard. In the morning at 10 o'clock there will be a men's kickers' handicap, for active members only. A cup will be offered as a prize.

NEW MARKET SCHOOL DESTROYED BY FIRE

Flames Threaten Adjoining Buildings and Plainfield is Called Upon for Help.

LOSS WILL REACH $6,000

BLAZE DISCOVERED AT 8:30 AND EVIDENTLY OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN.

Structure Was Erected Thirteen Years Ago and Had Up-to-Date Equipments—"Mayor" Bill Offers New Building.

For the second time within a few months, New Market again underwent a fire scare early last evening and the Plainfield department was called upon for aid. Evidently of incendiary origin, flames broke out in the village's brick school house, which provides accommodation for pupils from all over Piscataway township, and within a short time the structure was a heap of smoldering ruins. Composed of inflammable material, the interior burned fiercely and on several occasions the residence and barn of John Shepperd and the residence of "Mayor" Bill Smith were threatened. Residents of the village formed a bucket brigade and their efforts were all that prevented a general conflagration. The loss aggregates $6,000 with half that amount of insurance.

The fire was first noticed by several boys at 8:30 and before they could give the alarm at Hotel Nelson the interior was all ablaze. When it was seen how dangerous the flames were becoming telephone messages were sent to Dunellen and Plainfield for help and both departments responded. Dunellen was unable to do anything as it has no steamer and there is no water pressure in the village. The members of the department joined the bucket brigade and helped keep the flames from spreading. Chief Doane sent No. 2 engine and hose wagon from local headquarters in charge of Captain Townley, and the run to the village by way of Dunellen was made in twenty minutes. Water was secured from the brook which forms the lake's outlet and what was left of the fire was soon put out.

The school was a one and-a-half story building and was erected thirteen years ago. An addition was put on two years ago and it was made into one of the most modern structures in Plainfield's suburbs, with large classrooms and up-to-date equipment. The fall session was to have commenced next Tuesday and it is probable that Friendship Hall will be rented until provision can be made for a new building. The school was insured for $2,000 and the contents for $400, the policies being placed by Howard Bird, of Dunellen. Included in the destruction was thirty tons of coal just put in the bins.

An investigation as to the cause of the blaze has been started by the township authorities but there is practically no clue to follow up. Several men were working in the building during the day but it is not believed that they had anything to do with its starting.

"Mayor" Bill informed the school authorities this morning that he would bear the expense of a new building provided a statue of himself would be placed in the front yard as a memorial. His offer is to be acted upon at once and will probably be accepted.

TODAY'S GAME.

A report was received from Westfield last night that Manager Denman proposes to have Killian, of the Detroit Americans, "Red" Waller and "Lefty" Davis on hand today to occupy the slab, if necessary to win today's contest with Plainfield. Many other rumors are in circulation as to what Manager Denman will do. Manager Johnston announced this morning that Garvin will pitch for Plainfield and that otherwise his regular team will be the same.

MOURNED AS DEAD, HUSBAND REAPPEARS

Plainfield Woman Finds That Body Interred in Family Plot is Not That of Her Spouse.

INSURANCE COLLECTED

SHE IS A NIECE OF JUSTICE OF THE PEACE HEZEKIAH HAND.

Mrs. Frank Holborn Believed Man She Wedded Had Been Drowned—He is Back in Brooklyn Now.

Legally dead and buried for more than four years, Frank Holborn, whose wife, formerly Miss Mary Hand, is now living in Brooklyn, has again turned up again at Brooklyn and called on his "widow" this week for the first time. Mrs. Frank Holborn is the daughter of Henry Hand, one of the five Hand brothers, four of whom live in this city. They are Capt. William Hand, David Hand, Justice Hezekiah Hand and Thomas Hand. Henry Hand, who is a residents of Sandford, Florida, was among those present at the Hand family reunion in July at Scotch Plains.

Holborn married Miss Mary Hand in this city when he was twenty-one years of age. They had four children, two of whom, both boys, are still living. The couple lived for many years in Brooklyn, but in 1900 Mr. Holborn disappeared. His wife notified the metropolitan police, but no trace could be found of the missing man. In March of that year, Mrs. Holborn saw in a daily paper a picture of a body that day discovered in the ice of the Hackensack river. She recognized the features as those of her husband. Together with her cousin, Edward Hand, of Scotch Plains, and the family physician, Mrs. Holborn went at once to the morgue where the body was being retained, and identified it as that of her husband from a peculiar scar on the left shoulder.

She took possession of the body, and it was subsequently buried in the family plot in Cypress Hill cemetery. The supposed dead man's affairs were adjusted by executors and $2,000 life insurance was paid by the American Legion of Honor.

What possessed Holborn to desert his wife as he did is not definitely known. His story shows that he had travelled abroad and had been living in China, the Philippine Islands, and various other countries. About three years ago, Mr. Holborn wrote to his wife in Brooklyn and told her he intended to settle in San Jose, California, and wished her to come on with the children. Thinking, as she did, that he husband was certainly dead, Mrs. Holborn supposed that the letter was bogus.

About a month ago, Holborn, who thought his wife had turned against him by her refusal to live with him, returned to Brooklyn to look her up. After two weeks' search, he located her Tuesday at her home on Glenada place, Brooklyn. Mrs. Holborn believes her husband's story now, and sees the mistake she made in burying a stranger in the family cemetery. It is understood that she will make an effort to pay back the life insurance awarded her by the false identification at the morgue.

GETS ANOTHER MANAGER

BOROUGH NOW HAS TWO PROMINENT RAILROAD MEN AS RESIDENTS.

Through the efforts of Mayor N. B. Smalley, George H. Campbell, general manager of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, yesterday leased the Thorn property on Grove street, next to Charles Matthews' residence and will take possession October 1. This will give the borough the unique distinction of numbering among its residents two railroad managers, the other being W. G. Besler who directs the affairs of the New Jersey Central and who first introduced Mr. Campbell to Plainfield. The latter has been living in Baltimore but as his offices have been transferred to New York he wished to locate in this vicinity. His family consists of his wife and four children.

Within the past few days several other important residential leases have been effected in the borough, among them being three of the largest houses in its limist. Mayor Smalley has devoted much personal attention to them and he is greatly pleased with the boom property has taken.

STRONG OPPOSITION TO DOUBLE TRACK LINE

Majority of Property Owners on East Front Street and and Watchung Ave. Protest.

TROLLEY CO.'S PLANS

IF SCHEME IS FUSTRATED, IT WILL PRESENT ANOTHER PROPOSITION.

P. S. C.'s Idea is to Run a Spur Through Central Avenue From Fourth to Front Streets.

In opposition to the petition being circulated by Charles H. Hand to gain the consent of property owners for the laying of an additional street car track on Watchung avenue and East Front street, another one was started yesterday by J. Fred MacDonald. Mr. Hand's asks that the necessary permission be given the Public Service Corporation, the only stipulation being that it pave inside the double tracks and for a distance of eighteen inches each side with vitrified brick. He had secured a large number of signers when Mr. MacDonald placed his in circulation and by many of the property owners it is believed to be the better of the two.

It urges the property owners not to act in favor of a double track and the signatures of every affected person on Watchung avenue, between Front and Second streets, with the exception of Mr. Hand, and several of those on Front street, were secured. Some of the signers favor consenting for two tracks providing the company pave the streets from curb to curb with vitrified brick.

The company has announced that if it is not allowed to get through with the two tracks as planned, it will continue its effort to gain consent for a single spur through Central avenue from Fourth to Front streets. Counsellor Harry C. Runyon has been securing the necessary permits and has met with ready response. Application will then be made to the Common Council and if it gets the franchise, the Dunellen and through line cars will diverge at Watchung avenue and Fourth street and follow the new loop through to Front street. This would make it inconvenient for people in the business district to get cars on the main line east or west, but the Public Service officials maintain it will relieve the Watchung avenue terminus congestion.

The petition being circulated by Charles H. Hand has been signed by the following property owners and merchants: Woodhull & Martin, H. W. Marshall, Horace M. Sherwin, H. E. Gayle, H. B. MacDonald, Dr. Albert Pittis, James Hansen, Louis Becker, Henry Windham, John I. Brokaw, Schwed Brothers, Frank H. Smith, J. C. Pope, John J. Kenney, M. C. VanArsdale and Robert Gardner.

ANDREW M'CARDELL, A FACTORY INSPECTOR

Governor Murphy Appoints Plainfielder to An Important Position in State Service.

A GENERAL SURPRISE

MR. M'CARDELL HAS NOT ACCEPTED THE HONOR.

Duties of the Office Are Outlined by Mr. Murphy—Eight Other Inspectors.

Governor Murphy made known yesterday that he has appointed Andrew McCardell, of this city, and eight others as factory inspectors. Lewis T. Bryant, of Atlantic City, is continued in office as chief of the department. The new factory law, enacted by the last Legislature, went into effect a month ago.

When asked this morning by a reporter for The Daily Press whether he would accept the appointment, Mr. McArdell declared that the query brought to him the first intimation that Governor Murphy had even considered his name. "I was not a candidate for the position and had no idea that the honor would come to Plainfield. Personally I favored an

BIG BALL TEAMS MAY FORM LEAGUE

Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth, Summit, Madison and Somerville in the Scheme.

TWO GAMES A WEEK

ELIZABETH STARS MANAGER FAVORS THE COMBINATION.

Trenton May be Invited to Become a Member—Belief That it Would Pay.

As has been previously stated in The Daily Press, Manager Frank Burke, of the Elizabeth Stars, is enthusiastically in favor of organizing a strong baseball league in New Jersey, one in which semi-professional teams can take part and which would include such places as Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth, Summit, Madison, Somerville and possibly Trenton. He thoroughly believes that such a scheme would be a paying one and would tend to arouse interest in the county as nothing else would.

To a reporter for The Daily Press, Manager Burke spoke heartily in support of a league. It would give each town at least a couple of games a week, he said, and he believed that in most instances the towns named would support the game and result in first-class contests.

The scheme has received considerable encouragement from those who have learned of it. One strong advantage is the ease with which the various towns can be reached and the expense for travel would be very small in comparison. Having such a league would form an incentive and the winning of the series of contests for a pennant would mean something and it would give each team an object to work for, which is not the case at present.

Under the present circumstances there are two or three teams in the county, Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth, who are out for county championship honors. The matter resolves itself into a battle between Plainfield and Westfield and yet the winner of the series cannot claim championship honors, until after all other claimants have been defeated. Westfield is already beginning to crow about the honors, but inasmuch as the Aeolians have won their series with Westfield, it is hard to understand what right Manager Denman would have to supremacy, even by winning the series with Plainfield.

Then the Elizabeth Stars are yet to be heard from. Plainfield has a series of three games with Manager Burke later in the season, but Westfield thus far has not arranged a series. The Stars are certainly entitled to some consideration in the championship matter, while Summit might also lay claim to a series for the honors.

In each of the towns mentioned as possible for a league team, there are at present strong aggregations and it would only require a little bracing to make them all of about equal strength. Some years ago when the Crescents were members of the Central Jersey League, Elizabeth, Westfield and Somerville as rival towns helped to make the game mighty interesting and some great contests were witnessed. The towns were close enough together to allow the supporters of a team to follow their favorites and thus patronage was accorded at home and abroad. It is hoped that the Plainfield A. C. management will favor the scheme to give the fans good ball. Open dates could be arranged for so that outside teams could occasionally be brought to this city for a change and the same arrangement could be made in the other towns.

Selecting Headquarters.

The committee recently appointed for the selection of Republican campaign headquarters in this city, is at present undecided between two locations. It is possible for them to secure the Casino or the Babcock building store formerly occupied by Woodhull & Martin for mass meetings.

DESPERATE BATTLE BETWEEN SIX TRAMPS

Posse of Dunellen Citizens Also Join in Affray at Greenbrook Tanks.

FIVE MEN CAPTURED

ANOTHER IS SENT TO MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL WITH SCALP WOUNDS.

Gang Engaged in Quarrel Over Sleeping Quarters—Quartette Sent to County Jail for Sixty Days.

Many pistol shots were exchanged and clubs and stones were freely used in a pitched battle between six tramps at the Greenbrook tanks, last evening. Subsequently a posse of Dunellen citizens headed by Mayor Wyckoff charged on the crowd and captured five of them, while a sixth man was so badly hurt he had to be sent to Muhlenberg Hospital. The tramps were arraigned before Justice VonMinden this morning and four of them were sent to the county jail for sixty days. The fifth, who gave his name as William Riley, of Allentown, Pa., was held for the Grand Jury. The man in the hospital is Robert Mansfield, thirty-two years old, of Philadelphia. He sustained several slight scalp wounds and severe cuts about the face but is not badly hurt and will soon be discharged.

The tramps had been hanging about the tanks all afternoon and the fight followed a quarrel as to who should sleep in an old factory just outside of Lincoln. Two of them suddenly turned upon Mansfield and were pummeling him with their fists when the others joined the fracas. Clubs and stones were picked up and used and when revolvers were whipped out, the railroad employes telephoned to Dunellen and also this city for help. A special engine conveyed the Dunellenites to the tanks and on their arrival the fighting men started to run away. They paid no attention to Mayor Wyckoff's cries to halt and two of them turned and fired upon their pursuers. The Dunellen crowd only ran the harder and finally rounded up the whole gang.

Mansfield was found lying on the ground and he was first removed to Dunellen. His hurts were patched up temporarily by Dr. Brakeley and he was then sent on to Plainfield in a carriage. He will be held as a witness against Riley, who is said to have done most of the shooting.

'PHONE CO. GETS NON-SUIT

ISAAC LAMBERT LOOSES HIS SUIT AGAINST THE CORPORATION.

In the suit brought against the Northeastern Telegraph and Telephone Company by Isaac Lambert, of Fanwood, a non-suit was granted the company yesterday by Justice of the Peace Clark, at Scotch Plains. Harry C. Runyon, Esq., counsel for the defendant company, asked for the non-suit on the grounds of a defective summons. In bringing the action the plaintiff named the defendants as the Philadelphia and New York Telephone Company.

The action was brought against the company for the alleged cutting down of several trees on Mr. Lambert's property, although it is said the company has paid the privilege of setting its poles. Immediately after the non-suit was granted, a new suit was started by the plaintiff and he now says that he will engage a lawyer to look after his interests. The summons are returnable Saturday, Sept. 10.

The Northeastern Telegraph and Telephone Company is a part of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company and it is now establishing a through trunk line service. The company will give no local service.

BOROUGH TO PROCEED AGAINST DR. COOLEY

The Council Authorizes Legal Steps Taken to Prevent the Flooding of Somerset St.

BLAME LAID TO DAM

SAYS IT MUST BE REMOVED OR RETAINING WALL BUILT.

Various Other Business Matters Transacted at Last Evening's Meeting—Changes in the Fire Department.

After a lengthy discussion which occupied the greater part of its meeting, the Borough Council last evening, authorized its counsel, Charles A. Reed, to institute legal proceedings against Dr. J. H. Cooley if he did not at once take steps to prevent further damage to Somerset street from the overflowing of Stony brook. According to Councilman Arnold, Dr. Cooley recently promised that he would either remove the dam on his premises, which is said to be the cause of the flooding, or erect a retaining wall at the point where the rush of water is greatest. As he has done neither, Mr. Arnold recommended that this action be taken and a resolution was offered to that effect.

The Stony brook trouble has frequently been spoken of in The Daily Press columns and the question of who is responsible for the damage caused on upper Somerset street after every freshet has been a matter in dispute for a long time. At the present time this thoroughfare is in a deplorable condition but the borough street committee did not deem it advisable to make repairs while there is a likelihood that the brook will again overflow. Chairman Arnold went over the ground carefully and it was after he and Dr. Cooley had a conference that the latter agreed to make the necessary alterations. Mayor Smalley expressed the opinion that Herrmann' dam in the Notch also had something to do with the brook rushing into the street and this is also to be investigated.

The remainder of the business transacted at the meeting was commonplace. John McCullough resigned as borough electrician and F. Mortimer Slater was appointed in his place. Milton Miller was appointed a regular fireman to succeed Peter Dooley, resigned, and Peter Dooley and John Mowry were made call men in place of Michael Kennedy and Charles Messenger.

Theodore Smith and others presented a petition for an electric light on Allen place and Mr. Arnold offered a resolution that a fire hydrant be located on Belmont avenue, near Manning avenue. Mr. Arnold also reported that Plainfield residents are filling in Green brook along Brook avenue and forcing the water into borough territory in a way that might prove damaging in case of a heavy rain. He was authorized to investigate the matter and report for action at the next meeting.

Mr. VanArsdale reported that twenty-two arrests had been made in the police department during the month and that $60 had been collected in fines. Mr. Arnold reported the expenditure of $917.55 in street repairs and Mr. Lee offered a resolution that $1,000 be borrowed to meet claims. Adjournment followed, the next meeting to be at the call of the chair.

AMUSEMENTS.

After Labor Day, next Monday, and continuing until the close of the Luna Park on September 25, the management will inaugurate a series of fete or carnival days, throwing open the Streets of Delhi to the public and giving the Durbar parade and other features free. On special carnival days confetti and other missiles that are conducive to fun and harmlessness will be sold on the grounds for the use of the visitors, who will be invited to enjoy themselves. It is the avowed intention of the management to have the season close with a hurrah and a flash of light and crash of brass bands that will be heard and realized all over the country. Fire and Flames, which drew larger crowds last week than ever before, on Sunday last played to crowded houses at every performance, and on one occasion the sign "standing room only" had to be put on the front. Miss Rose Sendermann, the sixteen-year-old cornetist who has been giving free concerts at the entrance to the Streets of India, will continue during the week. Her playing has been highly commended by many musicians who have heard her during the last two weeks.

Edwin Holt, who has been engaged by Henry W. Savage to play one of the leading roles in George Ade's new comedy, "The College Widow," which will be produced September 12 in Washington, had just signed the contract when he met a stranger, who rushed toward the actor and shook hands with him. "Isn't this Edwin Holt?" asked the stranger. "I am so glad to see you again. I saw you play Dick Deadeye in 'Pinafore' at an open-air performance at Washington Park Lake near Kansas City. You were a poor actor, but the way you swam ashore from the good ship Pinafore at every performance was the finest feat of swimming I ever saw." Mr. Holt thanked the stranger, but neglected to inform him that the man who swam from the ship to the shore of the lake was a professional swimmer hired for the purpose. Mr. Holt gave a realistic performance of Dick Deadeye, but was compelled to hire a substitute when the management insisted on throwing Deadeye overboard every night.

FIRED ON A SULTANA.

Death of Former Consul Recalls a Celebrated Incident.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—William G. Riley of Virginia is dead here at the Washington Asylum hospital, aged seventy. He was the only man in the history of the American consular service who did personal violence to the sovereign of the country to which he was accredited.

President Grant appointed Mr. Riley consul at Zanzibar, where American consuls had long been subjected to gross indignities by the natives.

Mr. Riley was presented to the sultan, but found that the sultana was the real power. Mr. Riley was informed that he would not be permitted to display the American flag over the consulate, as its appearance was distasteful to the sultan and his subjects. The consul's hot southern blood boiled at this restriction, and he retorted in vigorous fashion.

The flag did fly. Mr. Riley related that he shot to death with his fowling piece two members of a guard of soldiers sent to cut down the colors. The sultana sent word if the flag flew twenty minutes longer she would haul it down in person. Mr. Riley sent a courteous message insisting that the flag remain and warning her majesty that if she assumed the offices of a man and insulted the stars and stripes she must accept the consequences.

According to Mr. Riley's story, which he declared was authenticated by state department records, the sultana charged the consulate with such desperation that he was obliged to fire upon her and her military escort, with the result that the sultana's robes were pierced by forty bird shot and she was borne away and was unable to sit beside her husband on the royal throne for many days.

A commission was sent to Zanzibar to settle the incident. Mr. Riley remained there and became persona grata at court and a favorite of the sultana. He later served under President Harrison as American consul at Puerto Cabello. In 1896 he left the consular service.

Senator Vest of Missouri made the "Zanzibar vendetta" famous by a version in which Mr. Riley shot the sultana because she persisted in bathing without a single garment in full view of the household of the American consulate.

Eloping Princess Not at Como.

ROME, Sept. 3.—The report cabled from Rome and circulated in the United States that Princess Louise of Coburg, who escaped from her hotel at Bad Elster, Saxony, had arrived at Como, accompanied by Lieutenant Mattasich-Keglevitch, and that the couple were staying at the Hotel Plinius under the name of Von Ruff and wife is altogether untrue.

SCHEME MEAT FAMINE

President Donnelly's Favorite Weapon a Big Boycott.

FREIGHT HANDLERS ARE CALLED IN

It Is Stated That No More Beef Will Be Handled on Railroads After Today—Strike Leaders Will Fight to a Finish.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—"A meat famine will be forced at all costs. It is the best weapon with which to fight the trust packers, although it may not be welcomed by the independents."

In these words President Donnelly of the Butchers' national organization has declared a boycott against all meat and announced that union men will quit in all packing establishments regardless of where live stock is secured.

Donnelly's announcement was made at the conclusion of a meeting of the Allied Trades' conference board.

The executive board of the Retail Meat Dealers' association of Chicago had just been in conference with Mr. Donnelly and his associates, having come to ask certain concessions for the independent packers and to seek authority to attempt to bring about a meeting between the packers and representatives of the strikers.

With the beginning of a general strike against all the packing companies the freight handlers employed by railroads throughout the country will be called upon to cease handling meat. President Donnelly has stated that the freight handlers will handle no meat after today. This was based on action taken by the Freight Handlers' union three weeks ago when that organization voted to support the stockyards strikers to the extent of boycotting meat shipped by the strike affected packers.

By ignoring the latest attempts at peace and by adopting such an aggressive step the strike leaders have demonstrated their intention to make it a fight to a finish.

ONLY TWO CHICKENS.

Gratifying Surprise Given by the Army of Virginia.

GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 3.—Five thousand regular army troops have been roaming a territory comprising 35,000 acres of Virginia farms for nearly two weeks. The only depredation reported thus far has been the loss of two chickens.

This record is a gratifying surprise even to the regular army officers and is an example to the militiamen who are to pour into the two maneuver camps today.

When the farmers of the maneuver zone were approached by army officers with a proposition to lease their lands for the maneuvers they were given pledges that there would be no depredations. These promises have been fulfilled to the letter.

Big Lumber Plant Burned.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 3.—The plant of the Mitchell & Rowland Lumber company has been completely destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $150,000. The plant occupied about sixty acres abutting on the river front. Sparks from a locomotive ignited sawdust in the unused portion of the yard. The flames were brought to have been extinguished, but a sudden breeze fanned them to life, and a sheet of flame spread over the yard and ignited lumber piles, buildings and mills at the other end, and in three hours all were consumed. The steamer Vernon, owned by Gilchrist & Co. of Cleveland, which was cast high up on a wharf of the lumber company by the flood of last winter, was burned.

Told Roosevelt of Woodland Trip.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 3.—After his conference with the president, which he said was principally of a personal nature, Senator Beveridge said: "I told the president of some of my experiences in the Maine woods, one of the features of which was a trip of 220 miles in a canoe. I dislike to make political predictions, but it appears to me that the fight practically has been won by the Republicans. Unless there should be a Democratic landslide, and there are no indications of such a thing, I believe Roosevelt will be elected by the biggest majority a president has received since the civil war."

Senator Platt Named Delegate.

OWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 3.—The Tioga county Republican convention held here elected Senator T. C. Platt, W. A. Smyth, Assemblyman E. S. Hanford, former State Senator W. E. Johnson, former Assemblyman D. P. Witter and W. S. Moore delegates to the state convention. H. A. Clark, J. T. Gridley, W. H. Clark, H. C. Bruster, T. T. Chamberlain, James Holmes and William Finn were elected delegates to the senatorial convention which is to name State Senator George E. Green's successor.

Mine Fire Still Burns.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 3.—The fire in the Avondale mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company, near Plymouth, continues to burn. All the timber work between the red ash and the Ross shafts, on the red ash level, in the locality where a squeeze occurred nine years ago, has been destroyed by the flames, and another cave-in is reported from there last night.

ATTACK HEIYINGTAI

Kuropatkin's Great Struggle to Hold Russian Positions.

GREAT BATTLE ALONG TAITSE RIVER

Liaoyang Reported In Flames—Kuroki Pressing Fierce Charges to Surround and Cut Off Czar's Troops From Mukden.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—From the latest dispatches it would seem that General Kuropatkin, the Russian commander, has effected a partial retirement, placing the river between himself and the main body of the Japanese and at the same time establishing a position that will enable him to oppose the force under General Kuroki, which has succeeded in crossing the river and is now attacking the Russian left.

The fate of the great bulk of the retreating Russian army hinges, therefore, upon the bravery and fortitude of its left flank.

It is the hope of the Russians to check General Kuroki's advance around General Kuropatkin's flank so as to protect their line of retreat, despite the fierce assaults of the Japanese. If the latter should succeed in striking a hard blow at the flank of the retreating Russian army it may place the forces of the czar in a predicament from which it will be difficult for them to escape.

The greater portion of Kuropatkin's protecting force seems to have been massed in the neighborhood of Heiyingtai, twelve miles northeast of Liaoyang, where it is being fiercely assaulted by General Kuroki.

Advices from Tokyo say that General Kuroki's right is continuing to press the attack at Heiyingtai, seeking ground whence their guns will dominate the railroad. The troops under General Kuroki are jaded and weary. They have been marching and fighting since Aug. 23, but in spite of this they attacked with spirit. The Japanese are confident that they have already swept back the strong Russian force with which they have been engaged, and it is probable that when the details are known it will be found that a great tragedy has been enacted along the Taitse river.

The river is flooded and cannot be forded. General Oku, in command of the Japanese left army, has directed his energies to forcing the Russians to the Taitse, and it is probable that many were drowned there.

Dispatches lately received report that great fires are raging at Liaoyang. The fires are believed to result from Japanese shells or from the Russians' attempts to destroy their stores with the hope of injuring the city as a future Japanese base.

Unofficial estimates place the Russian forces in the vicinity of Liaoyang at fifteen divisions of 15,000 men each. These are probably excessive, but it is evident that numerically the Russians exceed the Japanese.

The opinion that the Russian casualties in the recent fighting will reach 80,000 is confidently expected in high quarters here. Neither Field Marshal Oyama nor the Japanese army commanders have yet estimated the Russian losses.

It seems that the Japanese avoided a direct assault upon Liaoyang itself, but devoted their energies to the troops outside the city and an effort to cut off the Russian retreat. Liaoyang is strongly fortified, and the Japanese did not attack the city directly until they had succeeded in isolating it.

Nemirovitch Danchenko, the well known Russian correspondent, in a dispatch from Liaoyang says:

"The Russian balloon corps has been of the greatest service throughout the several days' fighting in locating the Japanese advance.

"The Japanese are using lyddite and Chinese powder. The latter is terrific in its effects, and its brown haze is easily distinguishable on the curtain slopes of the hills, where hundreds of Japanese guns all day long pour in a deadly rain of fire. In some of the batteries it was impossible to remove the killed or wounded for three days."

There seems to be an air of considerable confidence at the Peterhof palace. An official who saw the emperor said that his majesty is extremely confident and in good spirits.

Experts who are familiar with the nature of the intricate and powerful defenses constructed north of the Taitse by General Velitchko, one of Russia's foremost army engineers, believe that the Japanese are facing an almost impossible task in attacking them, especially with divided forces.

The bridge heads abutting on the north bank of the Taitse river are strongly defended by intrenched artillery, while it is understood that there is a strong rear guard still on the south bank to contest the Japanese advance, thus making the bridge utterly impracticable for Japanese crossing. The river itself, therefore, becomes an important factor in the general scheme of defense.

A temporary lull in the fighting would not be surprising. The men on both sides have already made almost superhuman efforts, and it is thought that there must soon be a let-up of some sort.

The report that Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky, now in command of the naval forces at Port Arthur, is to be court martialed utterly lacks confirmation.

Kuropatkin Trying to Reach Mukden

PARIS, Sept. 3.—The foreign office has no confirmation of the report of the Japanese occupation of Liaoyang, but its advices lead the officials to say it is probable that General Kuropatkin decided to carry out his original plan to retreat on Mukden. This plan, it is added, was temporarily abandoned, as Kuropatkin believed that the defenses of Liaoyang would permit him to hold back the Japanese. This failing, it is stated, the Russian commander will attempt to revert to his first plan, that of effecting a concentration at Mukden.

RELYING ON KUROPATKIN.

Silence at St. Petersburg as to Liaoyang Battle.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3.—The text of the dispatch sent to the emperor by General Kuropatkin was not made public last night as expected. It was promised to the local press and was awaited with feverish impatience until 2 o'clock this morning. Then it was announced that it would be issued today. All the news, therefore, as far as St. Petersburg is concerned is contained in telegrams from foreign sources, and there is painful suspense awaiting news from Russian sources.

Continued and dogged confidence in General Kuropatkin is expressed in many quarters, and the public generally, as well as many of the military authorities, absolutely refuse to believe that Liaoyang has been abandoned, or if it has been abandoned that General Kuropatkin is not in a better position to make a strong stand north of the Taitse river.

SPAHR'S DISAPPEARANCE.

Traveling Companion Throws Some Light on English Channel Mystery.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Regarding the disappearance of C. B. Spahr of Kingsbridge, N. Y., E. W. Ordway of Brooklyn, his traveling companion, has made the following statement:

"Accompanied by Mrs. Ordway and myself, Mr. Spahr left New York July 7 for Triest. From Triest we went through Austria and Germany to the Rhine and thence to Brussels, which we left on the morning of Aug. 30 for Ostend. During our journey Mr. Spahr suffered from fits of nervous depression, but they gradually became less frequent. At Ostend, where we remained three hours, he evinced considerable interest in the sights. We eventually took the steamer Prince Albert for Dover. We had obtained some New York papers, and while crossing the channel Mr. Spahr discussed in a natural manner the news contained in them. Occasionally he would leave us for a minute or two and then return.

"We missed him soon after we passed the lightship, not far from Dover, and immediately instituted a search. We informed the captain when we arrived at Dover, and he began a thorough search for Mr. Spahr, but found no trace of him. A sailor reported that he had seen Mr. Spahr standing at the stern at just about the time we came to the lightship, but subsequently he rejoined Mrs. Ordway and myself. The sailor said he ordered Mr. Spahr from the stern three different times. No person saw him after he left us the last time. Mrs. Ordway and myself saw nothing unusual in his demeanor."

DEATH OF WAY AND LATTIMER.

Alcalde Torres and Two Mexican Commissioners Under Arrest.

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—In connection with the shooting of Clarence Way and Edward Lattimer, two Americans, in the state of Sinaloa, Mexico, some time ago, Colonel William A. Gaston of this city, executor of Way's estate, received word from the state department at Washington that a thorough investigation is being made into the deaths of the two men.

Colonel Gaston was informed that the Mexican authorities had taken prompt action in apprehending Alcalde Torres and two commissioners concerned in the shooting and that Mexico has promised that the guilty persons shall be brought to justice.

Way was a native of this city and had many relatives here.

Elevator Fell Three Stories.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Two people were killed and six seriously injured by the falling of an elevator in the store of Sears, Roebuck & Co. here. The passenger elevator ordinarily used in the building was out of repair, and the freight elevator was used during the day by the customers and employees. While a load of passengers were being carried up the cable parted, allowing the elevator with its load of ten people to fall three stories. The conductor of the elevator, Philip Caldwell, was instantly killed, and Mrs. Kate Hayes, forty years of age, was so badly hurt that she died.

Clam Digger Found Woman's Body.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 3.—While digging clams off the Woodmont shore a clam digger came across the body of a well dressed and stylish woman about twenty years of age lying on the rocks. The body was taken to the West Haven morgue, where up to a late hour last night it had not been identified. The woman had been drowned not more than twelve hours before, according to the coroner's statement.

CARBUNCLE WON TURF STAKE.

Gunfire Made Good Running, but Got Only Third Place.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Carbuncle, at 4 to 1, won the Turf handicap, one mile and a quarter on the turf, at Sheepshead Bay. Gunfire, the 4 to 5 favorite, made the running to the stretch, where Gold Money and Carbuncle both moved up. In a hard drive Carbuncle won by half a length from Gold Money, who was a length and a half in front of the favorite.

Jockey Salling, who had the mount on Atwood in the second race, had his leg fractured by being kicked by Canajoharie while at the post. He was removed to the Emergency hospital at Coney Island. After a twenty minutes' delay H. Callahan was substituted.

Sir Brillar in the first race was played for a good thing, his price dropping from 30 to 1 down to 8 to 1 at the close, but he ran third to Quadrille and Bulwark. Counterpoise, Dekaber, Broomstick and Oiseau were the other winners.

Mudlarks Had a Day.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 3.—The Highland track was very heavy, and the mudlarks played havoc with the hopes of the form followers. The finishes in most of the races were close and exciting, and in the last race only the judges could separate Little Boy and Edward Hale, the former getting the decision. He was the only first choice to earn brackets. The handicap for two-year-olds at five furlongs, which featured the programme, resulted in a splendid finish, in which Panamanian nosed out the favorite, Mum.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 3.—New Jersey day at the interstate shooting tournament resulted in victory for the team representing the First regiment of the New Jersey national guard, the headquarters of which is at Newark. The contest was the Columbia trophy match, open to teams of six men from each regiment, troop, battery and separate company of the national guard or battalion of the naval reserve of New Jersey.

Ran All Over the Favorite.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Shawana proved the best in the feature event at Harlem and ran all over the favorite, Princess Tulane. She had only a length the best of the field at the head of the stretch, but increased it to three and won easily in 1:39 3-5 for the mile. Major Mansir, a prohibitive favorite at 3 to 10 in the sixth race, won without trouble. Sarilla, to whom he gave ten pounds, was in second place.

Triangular Motor Boat Race.

THOUSAND ISLAND HOUSE, Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Sept. 3.—In the triangular motor boat race which was to have taken place here between three of the fastest motor boats in the world, the Standard, the Vingt-et-un II. and the Adios, only the Standard was able to start, and she ran against time, making twenty miles in 49 minutes. The other boats had their engines disabled.

Tuckerman of Washington. The Governor's cup was won by W. J. Brown of Great Barrington, who defeated C. H. Kenzer, Jr., of New York.

Ring Got a Scorching.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 3.—Joe Graham, backed from 30 to 10 to 1, was the medium of a heavy play in the second race at the fair grounds. His victory gave the ring a severe scorching. In some books Graham was as good as 100 to 1 on the opening betting. Responsive was backed from 10 to 1 to 11 to 2 in the fourth, but finished in the ruck.

Rocchiggiani's Last Testament.

ROME, Sept. 3.—Beside the body of Rocchiggiani, the photographer who was arrested Aug. 17 in connection with the theft from the Cathedral of Ascoli of a priceless Cope and who afterward committed suicide by hanging, was found a paper on which was written with a burned match: "I am innocent. Search for the guilty, but when he is found he will be too powerful to be touched."

FAIRBANKS ON STUMP

Twin Kansas Cities Hear From Candidate.

PANAMA CANAL POLICY DEFENDED

Vice Presidential Nominee Heralded as Head of the Nation In 1908. Would Have Been President Had McKinley Lived.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 3.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks at Convention hall here formally opened the Republican campaign in Missouri last night.

Senator Fairbanks did not enter the hall until a number of others had spoken, including C. P. Walbridge, the Republican candidate for governor. When the senator arrived he was received with a tremendous burst of applause from the vast throng present.

Senator Fairbanks spoke only for about twenty-five minutes. He received the closest attention, notwithstanding the lateness of the hour. His address, which was punctuated throughout with applause, was in part as follows:

"The protective tariff and the gold standard are well suited to our requirements. The people demanded good money. We have it. They demanded that good relations with other nations should be preserved. They were never better.

"They demanded an isthmian canal. It is now in course of construction. No act of dishonor attaches to it. What has been done in connection with it involved no violation of international faith. There was no executive usurpation. President Roosevelt merely protected American interests. He acted in a prompt and firm way, clearly within our national rights, and thereby made secure the early completion of the great enterprise so important to our commerce and to our country.

"We did our duty well in the last two national campaigns. Let us not now jeopardize the fruit of those splendid victories. Let us not give over the administration of national affairs to the opposition which has for so many years antagonized every great measure which has made for our present prosperity and strength and power."

The time during the day was devoted largely by Senator Fairbanks to meeting personal and political friends and to a visit to Kansas City, Kan., where he made a brief address.

At the meeting in Kansas City, Kan., reference was made to Senator Fairbanks' availability as a presidential candidate. It came from State Senator Cubbison in the following terms: "If President McKinley had lived Senator Fairbanks would almost certainly have been the presidential nominee at this time, but, under the circumstances, all we can do for him now is to elect him to the vice presidency and then nominate and elect him president four years hence."

Colonel Clem Reprimanded.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Colonel John L. Clem, chief quartermaster of the Philippine division, has been reprimanded by General Humphrey, quartermaster general, for his action in turning into the United States treasury the sum of $423,000 as "unexpended balance" of the appropriations for the last fiscal year, when, as stated at the war department, the money was actually needed to meet necessary expenses for army transportation and other work of the quartermaster's department. It is said the service will be embarrassed by Colonel Clem's action.

Parker Will Not Go to St. Louis.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—There was considerable surprise at Rosemount last night when a statement was made to the effect that Judge and Mrs. Parker had canceled their arrangements for a St. Louis trip. It is now announced that Judge Parker has changed his mind in regard to the trip and in all probability will not leave Rosemount again during the campaign. It is understood that good reasons were presented to Judge Parker in argument against the proposed trip and that the abandonment of the programme is the result.

Drowned In Jamaica Bay.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The body of W. G. Jones, a well known telegrapher and newspaper man, has been found in Jamaica bay. For several years Mr. Jones was Western Union manager at Philadelphia, later coming to this city, where he was day manager of the United Press, afterward filling an editorial position with the Associated Press. He was a native of Pennsylvania and about fifty-five years of age.

Hangs Was Refused Protection.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Sept. 3.—Frank J. Hangs, attorney for the Western Federation of Miners, who was deported from this district Aug. 20 and who had returned here, went out again on the afternoon train to avoid another deportation. He said that Sheriff Bell had refused to give him protection.

Accused of Dreyfus Crime.

TARANTO, Italy, Sept. 3.—A Montenegran telegraph operator here has been arrested and accused of the abstraction of documents regarding the defenses of the country, which were to be sold to a foreign power. The country to which the documents were to have been sold is not known.

Colored Murderer Hanged.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 3.—John Joiner, colored, has been hanged at the county workhouse for the murder of John R. Taylor, colored. The drop fell at 10:18, and death ensued in seven minutes.

When in doubt follow the "wants." You can't go wrong if you put your advertisement in the newspaper which carries the "wants" of the city in which it is printed.—Kansas City Star.

The appointment of Andrew McCardell as a State factory inspector is a fitting recognition of the services he has rendered his party He is well qualified to discharge the duties of the position and should accept the honor.

Chairman Gourley has called a meeting of the Democratic County chairmen for this afternoon. Inasmuch as Bob Davis has already assured Tom Taggert that the State will be in the Parker column, it may be expected that today's session will resolve itself into a celebration of the coming victory.

Drawing their inference from remarks made by Governor Murphy at a agriculturists' fair yesterday, some New York papers are inclined to believe that horse racing will be legalised in New Jersey and that there will be a return of the track events which brought disgrace to the State. Governor Murphy's influence in New Jersey doesn't amount to much and it will take bigger men than the one who unfortunately sits in the gubernatorial chair to have racing legalized.

There's a Difference in DRUGS.

There's a greater difference in drugs than most people are aware of.

For instance—Common table salt costs ten cents for a 3 lb bag at the grocery; but the same thing, only purified, costs 27c a lb. Commercial Sulphuric Acid costs 2 cents, while chemically pure costs 35 cents. Commercial Murate of Ammonia costs 11 cents, but the chemically pure costs 55 cents. So it is all along the list.

For ordinary purposes the regular is all right—but when it comes to using it medicinally, then the BEST should always be used.

When we fill your prescription you always get the PUREST and BEST carefully compounded.

THE CHICAGO LETTER

SOME OF THE THINGS THAT STRIKE THE OBSERVER.

BIG DEMAND FOR FICTION

Fish Proves Popular Since the Strike —Club Women Seek Pure Milk for Babes — Fresh Crusade Against the Cigarette.

Chicago.—Sir Fiction leads a strenuous life in Chicago. He works seven days out of every week. He often sits up late at night with his wide circle of admirers, he is ready to open for business again early in the morning and he always does his best to entertain and amuse. He is the most popular fellow in the book line in Chicago, and at his headquarters at the public library, we were able to learn some very interesting facts regarding his personality and habits. The only weak points which books possess are those which their authors inject into them, and for this reason, despite the popularity of Sir Fiction, he remains the same affable, cheerful, obliging fellow, never developing the proud, haughty spirit that so often spoils the human animal under similar circumstances. Of every 100 persons who take books from the library 46 of them demand fiction, 28 juvenile literature, a large part of which would be classed with fiction, while the remaining 26 would be divided in their tastes between history, travel, technical subjects of all kinds, foreign languages, classic literature, etc. The circulation of the library for the past year has reached a total of 1,721,166, an increase of 39,924 volumes over last year. There are 290,277 volumes in the library, so that the circulation of the past year would require that each book of the library be turned over six times during that time. But there are, of course, many hundreds of volumes which have not left the shelves at all and many hundreds, yes, thousands more, which have not been called for more than once or twice, so that it can be seen how very hard the popular books of the library are worked. Scattered throughout the city are 69 free delivery stations of the library, and from them have been distributed 662,896 volumes. It cost $10,000 for new bindings during the year and a large part of this went to keep Sir Fiction in respectable dress.

The Taste for Fish.

Another popular fellow in Chicago just at the present time, while the meat strike is on and meats of all kinds are soaring in price is Mr. Fish. He is a welcome guest in many homes where he had long been a stranger. His regular Friday reception day, which religious scruples established many years ago, has been extended so as to include most of the other days of the week, and when Mr. Fish Fresh is out, people find it convenient to cultivate the acquaintance of Mr. Fish Smoked or Mr. Fish Canned, or Mr. Fish Salt, or some other member of the Fish family. Time was when the beefy, hoggy smell from the stock yards permeated the thick, smoky atmosphere of patient Chicago, but that over-worked characteristic of the city has given place to the fishy smell, the fishy taste and the fishy sign. All the big fish houses display various announcements in regard to the desirability and availability of Mr. Fish as a household guest. They declare with evident satisfaction that "There is no fish strike," and if one were to judge from the bulging safes the over-worked cashiers and clerks and the self-satisfied smiles of the proprietors of the fish markets, the latter are in no hurry to have peace patched up between the packers and their men. Every market in the city, nearly, bears some sign suggesting the eating of fish, and whitefish and pike, salmon and trout, black bass and halibut and the score or more of other varieties which find their way into the Chicago market are going to the same place where little Jacky Horner stored his plum pudding. If the strike keeps up and Chicago continues to eat fish she may become so brainy as to affect eyeglasses, compound and hyphenated words and esthetic tastes that will excite envy within speaking distance of Boston.

Pure Milk for the Babes.

The city's milk supply is something that is receiving special attention from more than one quarter at this time. The shipper and the dealer have been pretty well educated after seeing can after can of below-grade milk poured in a chalky river into the sewer by the city milk inspectors, and the milk supply is, generally speaking, pure and wholesome, at least until after it reaches the small retail dealer. Then the possibilities are infinite, and it is here that prominent club women of the city have come to the rescue of the defenseless babes and children of the poor, and are exerting their efforts to providing milk, pure and good. The movement is organized under the name of the Milk Commission of the Children's Hospital Society of Chicago, and the plan is to provide a sterilized milk in bottles to the poorer classes of the city during the hot months of August and September. It has been declared time and time again that the increased infant mortality during the summer is largely traceable to the poor and contaminated milk supply, which reaches the homes of the poor in the congested portions of the city. The milk commission aims as far as possible to overcome this condition; and to secure funds for the work a milk booth, where the pasteurized milk will be disposed of by the glass to thirsty customers, has been established right in the heart of the business district. A booth has been erected in Ritter park, as the space between the city hall and the county building on Washington street is called, and from it fair society women will daily dispense lacteal fluid, which is positively germ free and a total stranger to the pump handle. Three grades of this beverage will be sold for two cents, and it is expected that the thirsty public will be acceptably served, while at the same time a sufficient revenue will be derived to enlarge the fund for furnishing pure milk in the poor districts.

Fresh Crusade Against the Cigarette.

August may not be a good month to launch some reform movements, but it certainly seems that it is when it has to do with the cigarette. This enemy of childhood, "home and native land," is being given a good, warm time by the Anti-Cigarette league, with Miss Lucy Page Gaston as the inspiration and promoter of the determined war. A talented reader and impersonator has been engaged to hold meetings for boys wherever possible and to impress them with the evil results of cigarette smoking. Then Louis Grossman has taken personal charge of the detective work of the crusade and will seek to ferret out all violators of the law, which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to boys. Hull house is to cooperate with the league in its crusade, and one of the features of the work is to be the invasion of the red-light district to prosecute the reform among the female inmates.

But the efforts are not to stop with the boys and the enforcing of the present laws, for it is expected to have an ordinance passed by the council, and finally a bill by the state legislature, prohibiting not only the sale of cigarettes to minors, but also the manufacture of them by boys. This would stop the sale of cigarette paper and the tobacco used in their make-up. What is accomplished in Chicago this month will determine largely the success of the campaign, which it is hoped to carry on throughout the state during September and October. In November Indiana and Ohio are to be the battleground of the league and in December Kentucky and Tennessee are to witness the efforts to put Mr. Deadly Cigarette out of business.

Proof of Chicago's Healthfulness.

The healthfulness of Chicago is becoming noteworthy, and those who are familiar with the death figures of the great city by the lakes are ready to boast that no city of its size can show a better record. Chicago continues to refuse to cultivate close acquaintance with death's emissaries. Her percentage of deaths continues to decrease. The death rate per 1,000 in July of this year was 11.95, while that for the corresponding month last year was 15.02. The total number of deaths from all causes in July of this year was 1,958, those for the same month last year amounted to 2,390. According to philosophers, lay and professional, who have been puzzling over Chicago's low death rate, the cause of this remarkable reduction is Chicago's wonderful climate," and to a certain extent this is true. But the health department officials are not willing to concede all credit to the weather and would like an explanation of the following figures:

During June and July of the world's fair year, 1893, the weather—that is to say, the "climate"—was almost identical as to temperature, precipitation, humidity, percentage of sunshine and atmospheric pressure with those factors of climate of June and July, 1904. Yet in June, 1893, there were 1,935 deaths reported and the mortality rate was 18.41 per 1,000 of the increased population caused by the world's fair; in June, 1904, there were 1,745 deaths reported, with an annual rate of 11.02 per 1,000 of the conservatively estimated population of less than 1,933,000. In July, 1893, the corresponding figures were 2,928 deaths reported; annual rate 26.94 per 1,000; for July, 1904, the figures have been already given, 1,958 deaths reported; annual rate, 11.95 per 1,000—a reduction of 970, or one-third in actual numbers and of more than one-half (55.6 per cent.) in the rate per 1,000. The health department believes it is something more than "fine climate" that has caused this difference, and a good many of the hearses of the city as a consequence are taking enforced vacations. WILLIS S. EDSON.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

A SHREWD WOMAN.

How She Built Up a Flourishing Wholesale Flower Trade.

One summer day a lady who lived in New York went driving with her husband in the country north of the city. She had no thought of anything except enjoying the drive, the air and scenery. Suddenly she came upon a monster bed of purple irises growing along the roadside. A sudden idea occurred to the lady.

"How much will you take for the whole lot of these flags?" she asked the owner of the ground. He said he would take 25 cents.

The lady called her husband and began to gather the blue flags carefully, breaking those off with long stems. She filled her husband's arms with the exquisite purple blue blossoms, he protesting against the nonsense of it, but yielding pleasantly, as all good husbands do. After he had been loaded with all he could carry the wife gathered the rest of them.

In New York the lady took the whole lot of them, ten dozen in all, to a prominent New York florist. He in turn gazed in admiration at the graceful flowers of purple blue, so vivid one could fairly feel the color vibrations from them. The florist offered her $5 for the lot. She took the $5 note home and flourished it before the eyes of her husband, who could scarcely believe she had got so much money from that buggy load of trash. He declared she had bunkoed the florist.

"Indeed I did not," she answered. "What is more, he told me he would take all the flower novelties I could find from this time on, on condition that I sold none to anybody else."

When she carried the flags to the florist, the lady had no idea that here was the beginning of a thriving business in the wholesaling of old fashioned flowers, just common flowers that are always beautiful.

She remembered having noticed about fifteen miles out of the city a whole field of magnificent flaming red poppies which for gorgeousness she had never seen excelled. She brought a single one of these flowers to the retail florist to know if he would take them. This flower was four inches in diameter. The dealer told her he would give her a high price for them. She secured them and sent some of them, but had not yet learned how to pack them, so that when they reached the florist's shop nearly all their petals had shelled off. Not discouraged, she packed another lot, this time in pasteboard boxes, and brought them in whole. On the lot of poppies she realized very handsomely.

She got her hint and her start. She began a series of investigation trips among the old fashioned gardens and waste fields around New York city. She was thorough in the search. Having time that no one retail dealer could spare, she presently made the acquaintance of all the small flower growers, the farm people who were willing to sell the "weeds," like goldenrod and tiger lilies, upon their places, the amateurs who raised flowers for their own pleasure, but were willing to dispose of the overplus, also the beauty loving German garden women, who planted flowers along the borders of their beet and cabbage beds. All these were ready to sell such blossoms as they could spare. The lady always paid cash on the spot for the flowers, so that whether she lost or gained they were safe.

Before long she had control of more floral output than one dealer cared for, so she extended her acquaintance among them, and in a short time they learned to send for her when they had an emergency order to fill. They knew that from her superior knowledge of floral possibilities around the city she would be able to fish up what they wanted if anybody could. And she never disappointed them.

One of the most interesting orders she ever had was for a great quantity of the wild sweetbrier. This order was from her first patron, the man who had bought the blue flags. The sweetbrier does not grow wild to any great extent around New York. But the woman flower broker remembered having seen a hedge of it in front of an old mansion in the country a considerable distance out. At once she went there, and the mistress of the mansion, seeing it was a woman who wanted the scented branches, kindly let her take away all she could carry and would not accept a cent for them. The woman flower broker has a lucrative business.

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1903, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

She opened the door into the adjoining room. Grafton, pressing a kiss upon Anne's cold cheek, sprang through it and closed it after him. He felt himself safe in that peaceful haven of her maiden innocence, as if he had stepped into a sanctuary, before a shrine. He remained standing by the door, which he had left slightly ajar, so that he could both see and hear all that went on in the other room.

"Sit, mademoiselle, control yourself!" cried Josette, as some one tapped at the door.

Anne, trembling violently, sank down on the fauteuil, turning her face from the light, and struggled resolutely for composure, while Josette opened the door. Instantly a young man dashed by her.

"Monsieur de Vitre," cried Anne, rising to her feet in haughty surprise, "how dare you come to my apartments uninvited, sir?"

"Mademoiselle," cried the Frenchman, "I am so desperate I could go anywhere! I have sat silent too long. I heard you engaged to Monsieur de Kersaint in the hall below, yet your troth is plighted to me. Forgive me, I am mad, crazy! To see you, to love you, to have you promised to me, and then to listen to this announcement to-night. I know not what I do. You are mine, mademoiselle, and yet you have scarcely allowed me to kiss your hand. Is this the fidelity of a de Rohan? Your hand is promised, you were not free. He shall not have you. You are mine by every right!"

"Stop, Monsieur de Vitre! My word is—was—yours, and I had honestly meant to keep it, but do you not recall that in the hall of the Chateau St. Louis I told you when I first permitted you to consider yourself engaged to me that it all depended upon the marquis;—a declaration, sir, that I repeated in my own house in Quebec, when you were released from confinement, that I have said over and over again to you in the ship? He would not hear of it, sir, even when we broached the subject tentatively. 'Tis impossible. And there is one right, sir, that you never had."

"And what is that, pray?"

"I do not love you, sir, nor did I ever pretend to do so."

"Do you love this de Kersaint, then, mademoiselle?" cried the Frenchman furiously.

"Monsieur, you have no right to question me."

"Right? Are you not my promised wife? But I remember you told me you loved no gentleman of France. Is there any one else? You blush, mademoiselle. That Englishman? What a blind fool I have been. But he has no more chance than I. De Kersaint takes the prize. Did you plight Capt. Grafton your troth, too? And I can not resent it. I can not kill him. I owe him too much—life, honor, I was going to add—you. You!" She shivered under the scorn in his voice. "But I pity him, too," he went on. "He depends on your love, and I on your honor. The love of a traitress, the honor of the Rohans, mademoiselle!"

He laughed bitterly in a way not good to hear. Suddenly his glance fell upon the table by the window. There was something there. He stopped as if petrified with astonishment.

"What's that?" he cried.

"Sir!" said Anne, furious with indignation, and yet, in her heart, a certain pity for this unfortunate lover, as he made a sudden dart past her. "How dare you? Retire from my apartments, or——"

"I came in alone, mademoiselle, but I shall go out with the wearer of this," he exclaimed fiercely, lifting a hat from the table. "Whose head fits this chapeau, I wonder—the marquis? De Kersaint's? Ha, 'tis laced—a naval hat! An English hat, mademoiselle. Who is here?"

"Grafton," murmured Anne in surprise, taken off her guard.

"He is here, then?" he cried jealously. "Where is he? Mon Dieu, in that room, your chamber? Stand aside, mademoiselle. Let me pass!"

"Never!" answered the girl resolutely. "You presume too much, sir, upon my forbearance. Leave my room instantly!"

Another second and Grafton had broken forth; a new sound checked him, however, some one else was coming. He listened once more.

"Who speaks thus roughly to the Demoiselle de Rohan?" said a deep, harsh voice, as old Jean-Renaud entered the room. "Monsieur de Vitre, how dare you address my mistress in this way? Did I not hear the Countess Anne beg you to retire, sir? Her will is law here. Monsieur, will you go, or not?"

He stepped toward the young man threateningly, all his rough Breton fidelity at the service of his fair young mistress.

"The marquis!" whispered Josette, whose acute ear had caught the tramp of feet in the hall, whose glance had recognized her master. "He is coming!"

"I am lost!" said de Vitre.

"Nay," cried the quick-witted maid, "step behind that screen yonder and be silent as you fear your life. They suspect something, I am sure. Oh, what escape is there for us!"

With feelings that can scarcely be imagined, Anne sank down in her chair again, striving vainly to compose herself for the expected entrance of her grandfather. The room swam before her, yet she strained herself to meet the situation. What was the cause and what would be the outcome of this visit.

She could hear him outside her door in the hall now. He had not come alone, evidently, for there was the sound of many steps upon the stone flagging of the corridor. Presently there came a tap upon the door. Josette, at a nod from her mistress, opened it. The marquis entered, followed by de Kersaint and one or two attendants with lights.

Anne rose to her feet as both gentlemen bowed profoundly to her.

"Mademoiselle," began the marquis in his stateliest manner, "I have brought with me your old friend and new lover——"

"Nay, my dear marquis," interrupted de Kersaint, who was not without the gallantry of his race, "pray say, old lover as well as old friend."

"As you will. At any rate, my dear granddaughter, Monsieur de Kersaint has come hither to bid you farewell."

"Be seated, gentlemen," said Anne. "Does Monsieur de Kersaint go farther than Brest, monsieur?"

"Mademoiselle," answered the sailor, "he who starts upon a cruise in war knows not how long his journey nor where it ends."

"Does your ship sail, then?"

"Yes, mademoiselle, at six o'clock in the morning."

"And the other vessels?"

"The whole fleet goes out under Monsieur de Conflans himself to fight the English."

"I hope God may have you in his keeping, monsieur."

"Thank you mademoiselle, but have you no kinder wish with which to send me on my way? The marquis, your grandfather, has announced our engagement. May I not seal it upon your lips before I go, Mademoiselle Anne?"

The two men who were listening, the one behind the screen, the other behind the door, were filled with jealous rage at this, and, with an absolute parallelism of thought, would have given worlds to rush forth upon the Frenchman who proffered this natural request.

"I would rather not, monsieur," faintly answered the girl, shaking her head.

"But, my dear, when you were a child I carried you many times and kissed you often."

"Yes, monsieur, but I am a child no longer. You will wait, I am sure, until—you have a better claim—a more binding tie."

The two listeners breathed a sigh of relief as they heard Anne's resolute denial. Indeed, had she yielded, or had de Kersaint pressed the point, Grafton, for one, would have broken forth and killed him before he had touched her lips.

"You will respect the scruples of a maiden, de Kersaint," said the marquis. "I rejoice that her long absence in Canada has not weakened her adherence to the principles which I have endeavored to inculcate in her when she was a child. The demoiselles de Rohan were ever chary of kisses, but you will find that they are lavish in honor, and when you come back you may claim her as your bride, and then——"

Grafton ground his teeth over this significant hiatus.

"Mademoiselle, it costs you little to say No, and me much to say Yes, but for you I will do it. I can refuse you nothing," responded de Kersaint, bowing low over her hand. "I shall long for the day when, the last barrier broken down, I may claim you as my own."

"God speed that time, say I," remarked the marquis.

"Thank you, de Chabot," answered de Kersaint, "but now I must set forth Good-bye, mademoiselle."

"Adieu, Monsieur de Kersaint."

"Nay, nay, not adieu, but au revoir."

"Au revoir, then, monsieur, and may God protect you."

"May the prayer of the beautiful be heard," answered de Kersaint, turning slowly away.

CHAPTER XXV.

DE VITRE PAYS FOR HIS LIFE AND HONOR.

"ATTEND Monsieur de Kersaint, Jean-Renaud," said the marquis to the old retainer, who had been an interested spectator of the whole transaction, as the count stepped to the door. But before either the sailor or the servant had passed through the entrance, the marquis' steward appeared in the way.

"Pardon this intrusion, Monsieur le Marquis," he said in great agitation, "but there is something which monsieur should know. There is a stranger—a spy, perhaps, somewhere in the chateau. One of the servants told me that he saw a woman, or some one, in the armory during the dinner listening; and others have said that one cloaked and hooded flitted along the hall and came up these stairs after the dinner. I thought monsieur would not wish any one to know what passed at the table and I ventured to come here."

"And you did well, Basile," answered the marquis. "A cloaked figure, a woman, then. What sort of a cloak?"

"One like mademoiselle the countess' foster sister wears," answered the man slowly.

"What, Josette!" exclaimed the marquis. "De Kersaint, stay a moment until we look into this. Come hither, woman!" he cried to the affrighted maid. "Know you aught of this?"

"SPEAK, WOMAN!"

The girl was almost paralyzed with terror as she slowly stumbled nearer him. As for Anne, she sank back in her chair as if stricken. Was Grafton about to be discovered, then? Fortunately, no one noticed her at the time.

Josette stopped before her master, white with fear, dumb with apprehension.

"Answer me!" cried the marquis. "Speak! Ha! what is this?" he exclaimed, stepping across the room and picking up the cloak from a chair where Grafton had thrown it. "Was this it?"

"I judge so, Monsieur le Marquis," answered Basile.

"Speak, woman!" thundered the old man. "Whose cloak is this?"

"Mine sir," faltered the girl.

"And who wore it to-night?"

"I—I did myself, sir."

"Were you in the armory listening?"

"I—yes—sir. Oh, mon Dieu, mon Dieu!"

She sank on her knees on the floor, covered her face with her hands, and burst into tears.

"Will Monsieur le Marquis pardon me?" said Basile insistently. "The person, a man, perhaps, was seen with Madame Josette."

"Ah, so!" cried the marquis, turning fiercely to the prostrate woman. "You have lied to me then?"

"Yes, monsieur," she sobbed.

"Who was it? Speak, you fool!"

But the girl only shook her head and sobbed and wailed at his feet. The marquis could get nothing further from her.

"Curse these women!" he exclaimed in deep disgust. "Where did they go, Basile?"

"They came up this stair, monsieur."

"Have you men outside the door?"

"Yes, Monsieur le Marquis."

"Bid them search every chamber in this corridor. Now, Mademoiselle Anne," he said, turning to the countess, "perhaps you can help us. Know you aught of this strange visitor? Has anyone been here?"

Anne's tongue clave to the roof of her mouth, her knees trembled beneath her, her heart stopped its breathing in terror, but she could not lie, even to save her lover. She looked at the marquis in silence.

"There is no one in the other rooms, Monsieur le Marquis," said the steward as the men reported to him.

"Ha! He must be here, then. Anne, tell me—Why are you silent? What is it child?" her grandfather bent over her. "Speak! I will have an answer! Did any one come here? Is there any one here now? By heaven, these women exasperate me beyond endurance! Jean-Renaud, you were here when I came in. How long had you been here?"

"But a few moments, Monsieur le Marquis."

"Did any one come in while you were here?"

"No, monsieur."

"You have been a faithful servant for 50 years, you would not lie to me. I ask you again, did anyone come while you were here?"

"No, monsieur."

"Your pardon, de Chabot," interrupted the Comte de Kersaint, "let me ask another question. Jean-Renaud, was there any one here besides mademoiselle and her maid when you came in?"

HAS HAD STORMY HISTORY

Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes Has Been in Many Strikes.

Detroit (Mich.) Special.

The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes of America was organized in September, 1892, at a convention called by President Gompers, of the A. F. of L., which was held in Indianapolis. At that time there were but a few local unions of street car men in the country, and hardly any established scales of wages or regulation of working hours. Probably few organizations in the country has had a stormier career and few have made more substantial progress in the way of bettering conditions for their members. In almost every city of the country there is now an established scale of wages and a maximum working day of ten hours. Largely through the agitation of the union, closed vestibules to protect motormen and gripmen have been adopted in nearly all cities.

WILLIAM D. MAHON,
(President of Street and Electric Railway Employes.)

In the 12 years since the union was organized wages have increased from an average of 14 cents an hour to 22 cents, while a higher rate than that is paid in all the large cities. In Chicago the wages are from 23 to 25 cents an hour, most of the men being paid 24 cents. This is an increase of from three to five cents an hour in the past two years, brought about since the men organized here. The history of the Amalgamated association is so identified with that of the national president, W. D. Mahon, that one cannot be written without the other. Mahon represented the Columbus union at the convention where the national organization was formed, and a year afterward became the ruling power. He is a powerful speaker and a splendid organiser, and has done much in the labor movement of the country, not only for his own organization, but for others. During the memorable struggle of the coal miners in 1897 Mahon, with other labor leaders, left the work of his own organization and went into West Virginia, on the firing line. Injunctions were immediately procured to land him in jail, but "Bill" eluded the deputies and carried on the work of organization.

The strike proved to be the starting point of the United Mine Workers, now the greatest labor union in the world. Mahon has piloted his organization through many stormy struggles, but he has learned to avoid strikes wherever possible and resort to arbitration. It is under that policy, adopted a few years ago, that the organization has prospered until it now has over 50,000 members.

JEWELL NOW IN TURKEY.

American Admiral's Squadron May Bring the Sultan and His Advisers to Time.

Washington (D. C.) Special.

The European squadron, in command of Rear Admiral Theodore F. Jewell, is now at anchor in the harbor of Smyrna. The squadron consists of the Olympia, Baltimore and Cleveland. Primarily the object of the expedition is to collect money due to American citizens from the sublime porte, but the real aim is more important. Turkey is not giving American schools and missions within her dominions as liberal treatment as she accords to similar institutions and interests of France or Germany. The American demand has long been for equality of rights and opportunities with the most favored nation in this and several other respects. It is now proposed to put the demand through to a successful issue.

REAR ADMIRAL JEWELL.
(In Command of American Squadron Now in Harbor of Smyrna.)

When Tea Was a Luxury.

Tea first became a general beverage among the wealthy in England in the year 1657. At that time it cost about $50 a pound.

BEAUTIFUL MR. TOAD

THE NATURALIST FINDS MANY POINTS IN HIM TO ADMIRE.

Silly Superstition Has Blinded the Eyes of Many to the Splendid Dress and Conduct of the Gardener's Friend.

Walk where you will in the twilight of these warm summer evenings, and the chances are that you will meet a toad. He may be hopping along the garden path, with a dignified pause after each hop; he may be skipping out of your way, across a dusty country road, or he may be moving back and forth in the bright field of an electric light. Watch him for a few minutes, and you will begin to take an interest in this lowly, homely, much-despised and often much-abused little creature, for you will find him leading a busy, useful life. To the average person he is simply a toad, very loathsome, probably venomous, and capable of producing warts on the hands of those who are indelicate enough to touch his rough and unclean body. But give him fair play; judge him on twentieth-century evidence, and not only will these old superstitions be dispelled, but you will find your subject a harmless being, scrupulously clean, and, especially after he has shed his old skin, wonderfully beautiful. Yes, I see that smile of incredulity, but pick him up and look at his eyes, and perhaps you will no longer wonder that it was said that every toad had a jewel in his head; you may be willing to admit that every toad has two jewels in his head, when you look with appreciation at those dark, lustrous orbs with their rings of powdered gold. And that skin, which once you feared to touch, you will find on careful examination to be beautifully marked and tinted. The beauty was there all the time, but the evil of superstition had hidden it from your view.

Now set him gently on the ground, and follow him about at a reasonable distance; watch him off and on for the rest of the summer, and I think you will come to the conclusion that you have many neighbors who do less and talk more about it than your funny old friend the toad. Just make a list of the creatures he eats during the year, and you will find, as Prof. A. H. Kirkland did, that it includes such things as ants, cutworms, thousand-legged worms, tent caterpillars, ground beetles, May beetles, wireworm beetles, weevils, grasshoppers, crickets, spiders, sow-bugs, potato beetles, carrion beetles, snails and angleworms.

When you remember that most of these creatures are injurious to crops, and that during a large part of the year the toad fills his stomach about four times a day with them, you will admit that he does a pretty good season's work for the farmer.

It is in the spring and during the breeding season that toads have the most to say for themselves. At this season hundreds of these little creatures gather in quiet ponds, which are soon awakened into life by the love-song of the males; a musical, rippling song which William Hamilton Gibson describes as the "sweetest sound in nature." Here the females deposit their eggs, very small and black, and set at short intervals in long strings of transparent jelly. Thousands of these eggs may be found lying upon the mud at the bottom of the ponds or twined about the water plants which grow there. In about two weeks, the period of incubation depending somewhat on the temperature of the water, the eggs are hatched, and the polywogs wriggle out and begin to feed on the strings of jelly which lately encompassed them. They grow rapidly, and in the course of a few weeks more the legs are developed, the tail is resorbed, and the tiny toads leave the water for a life on dry land. They are very sensitive to the sun's rays, and during the day they hide away under all sorts of objects which afford them shade, until evening or until a shower of rain tempts them out into the cool, moist air. In some cases, after rain, they come out in great numbers, and the country newspapers report that they came down in the shower itself. While thus small, they are picked up and eaten by many species of birds, and even after they are full grown they are regarded as regular prey by hawks, owls, snakes, and probably skunks and many other nocturnal creatures. The fact that they usually spend their days under cover, doubtless saves them from many creatures which would otherwise prey upon them. Their only means of defense seems to be an acrid secretion of the skin, which is very distasteful to dogs and some other animals, but which quite fails to discourage the birds of prey.

Some time ago I saw a toad shed his old skin. First the skin split in a straight line down the middle of the back, and the toad with his hind legs pulled it down and off as one might pull off a coat. Then rolling up the skin into a sort of ball, he promptly swallowed it, showing his disinclination to waste anything—even his cast-off clothes.

ROD AND GUN.

E. L. Smith, familiarly known as "Pop" Smith, spent Thursday at Giffords, S. I. fishing. After landing some 26 weak fish, "Pop" hooked a big shark, which bolted with his tackle and broke his steel fishing rod. Hanging onto the rod, Smith was pulled into the water, upsetting the boat. A neighboring boat party came to his assistance and helped him right the boat and get in. His rod and his entire catch were lost.

Elizabeth man for the position and would have liked to have seen the appointment given to that city. As for accepting the position, I can say this much and that is that I will accept no position from the State or from any corporation or private individual that will interfere with my duties at the Pond Machine Tool Company. All my time is taken up with my work for that concern and I have few spare hours." Mr. McCardell scanned the dispatch announcing his appointment and then added that he would not announce his decision for a day or two.

The other inspectors are Edward E. McClintock, of Newark; William Schlacter, of Orange; James E. Stanton, of Newton; Henry B. Kuehnle, of Atlantic City; Lewis Haller, of Camden, W. H. Dodd, of Hoboken; Joseph Milburn, of Trenton, and Heber Wells, of Paterson.

To each of his appointments the Governor sent the following letter this morning:

"I have appointed you inspector of the Department of Labor, under what is known as the factory inspection law, which goes into effect September 1.

"Your first duty will be to study the law so as to become familiar with what it requires on the part of those whom it affects, and what is your duty under it.

"The law must be enforced, not in a way to annoy, but in a fair and considerate manner. But it must be enforced, and your duty under it must be faithfully and continuously performed. I have appointed a chief commissioner who is in full sympathy with its provisions, and who will give you instructions concerning the detail of your work. These instructions he will expect you to follow implicitly.

"It is believed that the proper enforcement of the law will prove of great advantage to the people of the State, and I count upon your loyal and unfailing support in the discharge of your duties."

Ringler was represented by Francis J. Biats, Esq., while S. S. Swackhamer, Esq., was attorney for Endress. Bail was furnished later in the day.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a women's clock gold tournament, for members only. The prize will be a cup. No practice putting will be allowed after 1 o'clock in the afternoon. At 4 o'clock there will be a men's clock golf tournament for active members only, a cup being offered as a prize.

There will be a unique event at 4 o'clock, a scratch obstacle competition or men who are active members and for women members, the prize beipg a cup. In this competition four holes will be played as follows:

No. 1, a pitch over long grass and a put, par 2; No. 2, four puts around four stakes, par 4; No. 3, two pitches over fences and a put, par 3; No. 4, a put through a barrel, par 1, total par, 10.

As most of the members will be home from their vacations by Labor Day it is expected that a very large crowd will be on the course and at the clubhouse. There will be many social events for those who do not play the game and no doubt there will be a dinner-dance at the clubhouse at night. The course is now in the best of condition, as recent scores show. During this week several of the best players have been practicing on the course for the National amateur championship tournament to be held at Baltimore next week and some very low scores have been returned, notably among them being that made by Morris J. Dumont yesterday. He made a 73 and a 78.

Something new has been planned for Labor Day at the Park Golf Club. There will be play for one of the Holiday cups, as is usual on holidays, but the conditions are materially different. Each contestant may play 36 holes, the best selected 18 holes to count, provided the first 18 holes are started before 11 o'clock that morning. If 27 or 36 holes are played the contestnat may take the two best scores made for each hole. If 18 holes only are played, the scores will count as usual. This will permit those who wish to compete both morning and afternoon to play with the chance of improving their scores which will also allow others to play either morning or afternoon and still have a chance of winning. This plan has been tried with success in the past. A handsome silver cup will go to the winner in the event.

There will also be a ball sweepstakes approaching and putting contest for mixed couples. This event will start at 4:30 o'clock. There will also be the usual informal reception for the members and their friends under the direction of the house committee.

The circulating department of the Public Library will be closed. The reading room will be open from 2 to 6 o'clock.

All the local banking institutions will be closed all day Monday.

FIRST ENGINEER WAS A PLAINFIELD MAN

Levi Shattuck at the Throttle of the First Train Run on the Jersey Central's Road.

WHY HE STEPPED OUT

THEN CALLED THE SOMERVILLE AND ELIZABETHTOWN RAILROAD.

Declined to Work on Sundays—He Rose to the Position of Superintendent of a Line.

But very few Plainfielders and probably only one or two of the New Jersey Central's great number of conductors are aware of the fact that the first man to don the uniform and run the engine for the local road was at one time a resident of this city. He was Levi Shattuck and the facts of his trials and tribulations as a railroad man have only recently been made known. The details have been published by the Railroad Employe in its last issue as follows:

"Mr. Shattuck was born at Fayston, Vt., in 1816. When he was 2 years of age his father removed the family to Massachusetts, where, at Amherst and North Hadley he lived with his parents until 1836. In that year he moved to New Brunswick, N. J., and engaged in the broom-corn business.

"In November, 1838, Mr. Shattuck removed to Plainfield and became an employee of the Somerville and Elizabeth-town Railroad, which at that time extended no further west than that town. Desiring to become a locomotive engineer, Mr. Shattuck engaged to fire for Joshua Martin, on the engine 'Philadelphia,' for eleven weeks, at the end of which time he was placed in charge of the 'Eagle,' as engineer. When the road was extended to Bound Brook Mr. Shattuck moved to that town, and while there the question of Sunday work came up. Mr. Shattuck told the then superintendent, Mr. John O. Stearns, that his conscience would not allow him to work on Sundays. The superintendent replied that if that was the case, a locomotive was no place for him, and so Mr. Shattuck, true to his convictions, stepped down and out. His place was filled by Samuel Pangborn, whose conscience was, probably, a little more elastic.

"For a short time Mr. Shattuck worked for the farmers near Bound Brook, but soon Mr. Stearns sent for him and gave him the contract to saw wood and pump water at Bound Brook for locomotive use. He also occupied the position of freight agent at that station. About this time he was married to Miss Sarah L. Pack, of New York city.

"When the road was extended to Somerville, on January 2, 1842, Mr. Shattuck went with it, and for a while boarded with the family of Judge Taylor. After acting as freight agent at Somerville for a short time he was appointed to the position of conductor, and ran a train from Somerville to Elizabethport and return every day, Sunday excepted.

"For some time there was no ticket agent at Somerville, and the tickets were sold on the train by the conductors. These were collected on the boat on the way from Elizabethport to New York. The company then ran two boats, the 'Waterwitch' and the 'Cinderella,' between these points.

"On one end of the frame building, then occupied as a station at Somerville, was a bell, which Mr. Shattuck used to ring a few minutes before the time for the train to depart. This bell was afterwards taken to the fair grounds, where for some years it was used as a starting bell for the races. It should have been preserved as a historic relic.

"When the road was extended to Whitehouse, in 1848, and again to Phillipsburg, in 1852, Mr. Shattuck was compelled to go with it. Soon after this he received and accepted a proposition to become superintendent of the Corning, Blossburg and Tioga Railroad. He resided at Corning for fifteen years and then moved to Blossburg.

"About 1882 he resigned his position and retired to private life, residing at Mansfield, Pa. His last visit to Somerville was in September, 1888. While on his way home from that trip he was stricken with apoplexy and passed away November 1 of that year."

SOMERVILLE DOES ITSELF PROUD IN ENTERTAINING VISITORS.

For making the best appearance in a procession where scores of organizations were represented, Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of this city, was awarded a prize of $15 at the Pythian field day exercises at Somerville, yesterday. Wearing natty yachting caps and carrying canes of uniform design, the Plainfielders won plaudits all along the line and the judges had no difficulty in making the selection. When they passed the reviewing stand with Marshal Asa D. Pope at their head they were greeted with prolonged cheers. Crescent Company, Perseverance's uniformed rank, also presented a very pleasing appearance and executed the military manoeuvres with a dispatch and precision that called for favorable comment from the officers of the day.

The field day as a whole was an entire success and by many Pythians is believed to have surpassed most of those held within recent years. Fully 3,000 men were in line and the parade was a credit to the order. Somerville was in holiday attire with double emphasis and the decorations were far in advance of those at Asbury Park and Long Branch, where the two previous field day exercises took place.

Brigadier-General Hitchcock, of Jersey City, was in general charge at the head of the column and his aides were composed of some of the best known Pythians in the State. One of them was Quartermaster Charles McGinley, of this city. Grand Marshal Nelson Y. Dungan attended to the details of formation and started the procession off without the slightest hitch. It began at 1:30 and lasted nearly two hours, many Plainfield people being among those who witnessed it.

The reviewing stand was on West High street and the judges selected the prize winners as they passed. In addition to Perseverance those which were honored were the following: For the lodge having the largest number of men in line, prize $25, Neschanic lodge, of Neschanic; for the one having the second largest number in line, prize $10, Enterprise lodge, of South River; for the lodge having the largest percentage of members in line, prize $25, Neschanic lodge, of Neschanic; for the lodge having the second largest percentage of members in line, Enterprise lodge, of South River; for the lodge sending a delegation the longest distance, prize $25, Montana lodge, of Montana. For the uniform companies the only prizes offered were in the competitive drill. Several organizations tried for it and the first award of $60 was made to Palestine Company, of Jersey City. Unity Company, No. 4, of Elizabeth, was second.

During the day there were two ball games for the amusement of the crowds, the competing nines in each instance being the Clintons and the Somerville West Ends, the latter virtually being the Scotch Plains nine. The first game took place in the morning and was won by the West Ends by a score of 4 to 2. They lost in the afternoon by 7 to 5. "Jimmy" Montross, of this city, and George Allen, of Scotch Plains, formed the battery in each instance. Duke's farm at South Somerville and Washington's headquarters were visited by hundreds of people during the day and at night, beside the many impromptu band concerts, there was a dance in Germania Hall, which brought the formal exercises to close. It was a banner day for Somerville and the various committees from Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, which had affairs in charge, deserve unstinted credit for the way in which everything passed off.

Honor for the showing made by Perseverance lodge is due Marshal Asa D. Pope who planned the dress adopted and who worked unceasingly for a good turnout. Unity lodge, No. 102, of this city, had a good representation in line in charge of Jere Van Winkle, Jr., and Chancellor Commander Harry Werner. Captain Flannery and Lieutenant Oliver Pearson commanded Crescent Company.

DR. BUCHANAN GRAND CHIEF

PLAINFIELDER ELECTED TO HIGHEST OFFICE IN KNIGHTS OF GOLDEN EAGLE.

At the twentieth annual session of the Grand Castle of New Jersey, Knights of the Golden Eagle, held yesterday and today at Trenton, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, was elected Grand Chief, succeeding Charles K. Gano, of Long Branch. The new Chief is a member of Freedom Castle, No. 42, of this city, and has been a most enthusiastic worker ever since he has been connected with the order. His election was greeted with enthusiasm and in response to calls he addressed the gathering.

Two proposed amendments to the Grand Castle's constitution were defeated. The first had reference to allowing only one representative from each castle at the annual sessions and the other was to change the place of meeting. Reports were submitted by the various officers and it showed the total membership of the order in the State to be 7,187, divided among seventy-two castles. The presents assets are $103,356.41.

It will be a great game. Music will be furnished by an Italian band. Admission is twenty-five cents.

Former Plainfielder Held Up.

Miss Miriam Raymond, daughter of President A. V. V. Raymond, of Union College, was held up by two young men while out walking at Schenectady, N. Y., last Tuesday, and was robbed of a hand bag and pocketbook. Miss Raymond was with Miss Doretta VanVoast, daughter of a prominent lawyer there. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond was for several years pastor of Trinity Reformed church in this city. His daughter is well known here.

Mr. Benstein's Generosity.

Through the kindness of Mr. Bernstein, superintendent of the Sunday-school at Dr. McCloud's Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, who is summering at New Market, the 275 children and mothers of the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home, Netherwood, were given a long straw ride in three big stages Saturday morning. Mr. Bernstein subsequently presented the Home with 200 cakes and 500 pounds of candy.

575 Plainfielders at Coney.

The seventeenth annual excursion of the Plainfield Grocers' Association to Coney Island, yesterday, was a great success. There were 575 Plainfielders in the crowd and the trip to and from Coney Island was made within a mishap of any kind. The excursionists reached home at midnight.

CRAP GAME QUARREL LEADS TO STABBING

An Unknown Colored Man Plunges Knife Into "Sue" Newman's Abdomen.

VICTIM IN HOSPITAL

CLAIMS HE DOES NOT KNOW IDENTITY OF HIS ASSAILANT.

Affray Occurred Outside of City Limits on Grant Avenue, and Local Police Unable to Follow It Up.

In a wrangle over a crap game which took place on Grant avenue just over the city line, Sunday afternoon, John Newman, of West Third street, familiarly known as "Sue," was almost fatally stabbed. A colored man, whose name the victim does not know or refuses to divulge, plunged a knife into his abdomen three times and then slashed one arm in a fearful manner. As Newman fell to the ground with blood pouring from him, the entire crowd beat a retreat with the exception of one young man who ran to Dr. Oregar's office and asked him to go to the scene.

The physician called a cab before going out and he had fixed Newman's wounds temporarily before its arrival. He was placed in it and taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he hovered between life and death until last night. He was then declared out of danger although the knife thrusts in the stomach were ugly ones and only by the fraction of an inch escaped piercing the vital organs.

It has been the custom for Plainfield young men to congregate on the outskirts of the city Sundays to play crap and poker and the gathering which preceded the stabbing was an unusually large one. There had been bad feeling between the negroes and whites in the crowd and finally a colored man and Robert Scott, of Muhlenberg place, got into an altercation about a bet. The negro drew a knife and made a lunge at Scott and as he did so, Newman jumped between them. The blade of the weapon entered his body to the hilt. The infuriated colored man then struck out desperately and his victim was unable to ward off the blows, while his friends were so frightened there would be a general fracas they fled in every direction.

The city police were notified of the affair but as it took place outside of their jurisdiction they could do nothing, although Sergeant Frederickson and several patrolmen scoured the vicinity in the hope of landing some of the gang. Newman maintains that he does not know the identity of the stabber and the other white men are non-committal. It is believed by the authorities that Newman and his friends intend keeping still until he recovers and then seek their own revenge. The Middlesex county officials have been apprised of the affair but as yet have made no move to capture the assailant.

BATTLED WITH STONES.

In Doing So West End Boys Smash a Window and Wind Up in the Police Court.

Morris and Joseph Gaiman, Erik Erickson and Charles Lyons, all small boys, engaged in a quarrel on Liberty street, near Third, Sunday afternoon. Following the use of words and fists all four began hurling stones at each other and one rock thrown by Lyons was sent through a large plate glass window in Clark's saloon. The police gave chase to the crowd and captured all but Lyons.

In the city court this morning, the two Gaiman's were discharged and Erikson, who has been before Judge Runyon many times before, was fined $5. Lyons was shipped off to Rahway by relatives and Justice Mosher has issued a county warrant for his arrest.

K. of C.'s Annual Clambake.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, held its annual outing and clambake at Sebring's Mills, Sunday afternoon. It was attended by members and friends to the number of 200. The committee which had charge consisted of William O'Keefe, Thomas Carty, John Traynor, Thomas Gough and David Mack.

—Henry Hess, of Pearl street, has been appointed janitor of the German Reformed church on Craig place, by the consistory of the church.

—Nowhere in the city is there to be found better tomatoes than those at Neuman Brothers'. A new lot of splendid ones go on sale tomorrow.

By a circumstance of good fortune Westfield defeated Plainfield A. C. in an exhibition game at Recreation Park yesterday morning. The Plainfield team got five hits to four for its opponents, but they had eleven men left on bases. Things looked serious for Westfield in the ninth and Waller replaced Cooney, of the Boston Athletics, in the box. "Larry" Battam twirled a fine game for Plainfield.

TWO GAMES EACH IN SERIES

The Clinton Avenue team met defeat on Saturday by the Dunellen A. C., at Dunellen, the score being 2 to 0. The pitching of VanArsdale and Smith was a feature. This makes the series even, each team having won two contests. The rubber will be played on Clinton avenue Saturday, September 24. This was the score by innings of Saturday's contest:

Dun. A. C.	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—2	8	2

Batteries—Smith and Graham, VanArsdale and Herman.

CLINTON AVENUE WINS

The Clinton Avenue team played two games yesterday with the Deltas, of Perth Amboy, on the local grounds, the home team taking both, the morning contest by a score of 7 to 0 and the afternoon by a score of 9 to 1. The batteries in the morning were VanArsdale and Nelson for Clinton Avenue, Olsen and Yates for the Deltas. In the afternoon Scott and O'Loughlin was the battery for the home team and Mullin and Yates for the visitors. Only thirty men faced each pitcher in both games. Next Saturday the locals will play the team from Stevens' car works, Elizabeth, for $10 a side. The game will be played here.

HOYT'S TEAM GOT SPANKED

Marcus Hoyt's team was walloped for the first time this season on Crescent Oval, yesterday morning, the victors being the Sampstown Navy Yard team, by a score of 12 to 6. Hoyt's team was outclassed from the fall of the flag, but for the brilliant work of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, the score would have been much larger. If the voters of the borough could have seen him play he would have a cinch for any office.

The lineup:

Hoyt's team—Howard Woolston, lf;

FAIR EXCHANGE.

A New Back for An Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen:

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across my back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such trouble as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Moffett, constable, Charles A. Westerfield; city council, Charles Yaeger.

Yesterday the county election board met to fill vacancies that exist in the boards of registry and election. Today the boards of registry and election in districts outside of cities having over 30,000 inhabitants have their first meeting and proceed to make a house-to-house canvass, completing it on or before September 9.

The district boards of election are required to organize by electing one member as judge and one as inspector, who shall be of opposite political parties. The judge shall be the chairman of the board. The remaining two members are to act as clerks. If the board fails to elect a judge after voting three times, then the oldest member in years shall be judge, and if the inspector is not elected after three ballots, the oldest member in years in the party opposite to the judge shall be the inspector.

WAR AT MIDNIGHT.

Virginia Campaign Opened at Manassas.

THIRTY THOUSAND IN THE FIELD

Corbin Is at Headquarters of General Grant, Chief of Blue Army—Tomorrow He Will "Go Over" to the Enemy.

GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 6.—Orders for a rush to positions were given in both maneuver camps exactly at midnight last night. The "blue" army, under General Grant, has commenced its attack on the "brown" army, under General Bell. The orders of General Bell sent his forces toward his adversary at double quick. It is his desire to reach a position near the center of the maneuver field and stop the attacking force, whose duty it is to force a passage through Thoroughfare gap. At daybreak a collision between the opposing forces took place near Groveton, a memorable spot in the Bull Run battles. From this first collision the brown army can fall back if beaten to successive positions toward Thoroughfare gap. General Corbin has joined General Grant and witnessed the opening operation of his army. Tomorrow he will be with General Bell.

The plans of neither commander have been divulged, but the problem makes plain to military strategists the course that is being followed, in all likelihood. Every regiment participating in the maneuvers is in its place of defense or is advancing to the attack. Outpost duty, regimental and brigade drills, have been canceled and all the final arrangements made for leaving camp for the battle, which is to continue until 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with a truce from 3 o'clock this afternoon until midnight. While the armies were preparing for their contest last night in maneuver camps Nos. 1 and 2 corps headquarters presented a scene quite in contrast to warfare. General Corbin and his distinguished guests gathered in the mess tent for dinner at 7 o'clock, and the function was prolonged until 9 o'clock, while speeches in response to toasts were made. A toast to the president was drank standing, a toast to Spain was responded to by Colonel Monteverde, the Spanish military attache, who is an observer of the maneuvers. Colonel Raspopoff, the Russian observer, raised his glass to the president. Governor Warfield of Maryland spoke for his state.

BIG STRIKE TO END

Packers and Stockyards Men May Settle Trouble.

BASIS MAY BE AGREED ON TODAY

Workers Will Meet and Vote on the Question of Calling Off Strike. Indications Point to an Affirmative Result.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Indications are that the stockyards strike, begun two months ago, may be called off within twenty-four hours. Through the medium of a middleman negotiations have been begun in an effort to secure an understanding with the packers on which the striking unions can rely as a basis for abandoning the strike today. It was admitted last night by Secretary Tracey of the Allied Trades council of unions on strike that a message opening such negotiations had been delivered to representatives of the packing firms by W. E. Skinner, general agent of the Union Stockyards and Transit company, acting as a middleman.

According to the plans an answer is to be submitted today by the packers in time for it to be reported at a special meeting of the Allied Trades council. This meeting has been called for this morning. Special meetings for all the local unions involved in the strike have been called for today. If the packers give encouraging assurances to the strikers messengers will be sent at once to the gatherings of the local bodies. The unions, it is said, will then vote on discontinuing the strike, and their referendum vote will be reported at once to the meeting of the Allied Trades council.

An understanding was arrived at by which the men will meet and vote on the question of calling off the strike. According to the plans made, they will be instructed to cast their ballots in the affirmative.

These plans have been made with secrecy and care. They originated a week ago in Chicago with certain of the packers and of the conservative labor leaders. Fearing the execution of the scheme would fail if attempted in Chicago, it was determined to make the first move in New York.

The ending of the strike in the eastern city by the vote of the men was this first step. The settlement there made is the same as that now proposed for Chicago.

The following are the chief points of the arrangement:

The unions to call off the strike.

The packers to re-employ as many of the strikers as they can give work to and to give preference to the former employees in the future, as many of the new workers who wish to remain to be retained.

Wages of the skilled men to remain at the rate paid before the strike.

The packers, who have often declared they would not meet the labor men, will undoubtedly deny that a conference has been held. But the fact remains that duly authorized representatives of the owners of the packing plants did meet the labor men.

What doubt existed as to the position of the switchmen in the strike has been dispelled by Grand Master Frank Hawley of the organization. Hawley at a meeting of the union said the men would remain at work.

The first serious break in the stockyards strike in Chicago came Sunday night, when fifty striking live stock handlers were reinstated.

The Dubois Mystery.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 6.—The investigation into the death of Louise Dubois, whose dead body was found on the Woodmont shore last Friday, was continued by Coroner Mix. He stated last night that he had not reached a conclusion as to how the girl met her death, but that he expected to render his finding today. Coroner Mix will examine the girl's lungs and will question Ernest La Point of Newark, the girl's suitor. The body has been buried in South Meriden.

Brooklyn Sawmill Burned.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Fire from an unknown cause in John Pearsall's sawmill on North Eleventh street, Brooklyn, damaged that structure to the extent of $6,000 or $7,000. The fire spread to another frame building leased by David McKnight, a mining engineer, who had valuable machinery in a testing plant used for testing metals. The loss on the machinery was about $30,000. Part of this was insured. There was no loss of life.

Dead Soldier Was of Bamburg.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 6.—The soldier whose body was found near Fayetteville, N. C., is thought to be F. S. Snyder, a member of Company G of Bamburg. He was in the baggage car and is supposed to have lost his balance, falling out of the baggage car door. One man in the baggage car says that he saw a man lose his hold and fall from the car when near Fayetteville. Snyder was not missed until the soldiers arrived at camp.

Beat Negro to Death.

STATESBORO, Ga., Sept. 6.—Perry Barnes, Henry Barnes and Wesley Waters, charged with the beating and killing of the negro, Sebastine McBride, here, have surrendered to Sheriff J. Z. Kendrick. They will be given a preliminary hearing today.

William Exum Captured.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 6.—A special from La Grange, N. C., says that Willima Exum has been captured at the house of a relative. He slew his stepson, young Walstin. He offered resistance, but was overpowered and put in jail.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS ON LOCAL GOLF LINKS

In the afternoon there were clock golf competitions for men and women. Leighton Calkins and C. B. Morgan were tie with a score of 21, and in the play-off Morgan won with a 22. Miss Marjorie Fleming won the women's competition with a score of 22.

Probably the most unique event ever held on the course, was a scratch obstacle competition, the conditions for which were:

No. 1, a pitch over long grass and a put, par 2; No. 2, four puts around four stakes, par 4; No. 3, two pitches over fences and a put, par 3; No. 4, a put through a barrel, par 1, total par, 10.

Leighton Calkins won the event with a score of 15, the scores by holes being 4, 5, 3, 3. Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was second with a score of 17. Her score by holes were 3, 6, 2, 6.

In the evening there was a dinner-dance, which proved to be one of the most pleasant features of the day's programme.

The chief competition at the Park Golf Club yesterday was the play for the Holiday cup. Each contestant was given the choice of playing thirty-six holes, chosing his best scores for each hole which were to count in the two rounds for the cup. The play resulted in a tie between Gus. W. Faber, scratch, and John L. Watson, who had a handicap of thirty. The course and weather conditions were ideal for the game and many contestants were out.

Instead of the approaching and putting contest for mixed doubles, there was a ball sweepstakes for members. T. U. Dudley won first honors and P. H. Pheland second, while Samuel Townsend, Dr. H. K. Carroll, L. R. Thurlow and Charles B. Morse were tie for third honors. Thurlow won in the play-off. These scores were posted for the Holiday cup:

Gus. W. Faber, 76, 0—76; John L. Watson, 106, 30—76; Nelson A. Miller, 95, 18—77; Herbert S. Rogers, 88, 7—81; T. U. Dudley, 93, 12—81; Samuel Townsend, 100, 17—83; Charles A. Reed, 97, 11—86; Henry C. Wells, 104, 16—88.

The event at the Westfield Golf Club yesterday was a thirty-six hole match competition or first and second eights. J. A. Woodward won the cup for the first eight by 2 up. E. B. Floyd was runner-up. S. A. Trevvette won the second cup by 3 up, the runner-up being H. W. Gladwin. In the evening there was a dance at the club-house.

There's a Difference In DRUGS.

There's a greater difference in drugs than most people are aware of.

For instance—Common table salt costs ten cents for a 3 lb bag at the grocery; but the same thing, only purified, costs 27c a lb. Commercial Sulphuric Acid costs 2 cents, while chemically pure costs 35 cents. Commercial Murate of Ammonia costs 11 cents, but the chemically pure costs 55 cents. So it is all along the list.

For ordinary purposes the regular is all right—but when it comes to using it medicinally, then the BEST should always be used.

When we fill your prescription you always get the PUREST and BEST carefully compounded.

WOVEN WIND WON IN 2:23 TROT

Plainfield horses showed up well in the races at New Brunswick under the auspices of the Raritan Driving Association yesterday afternoon. In the 2:23 trot, H. F. Brandon's "Albert L." led all along to the finish and then lost to J. Wesley Johnston's "Woven Wind," getting first money, $150. "Albert L" was driven by Charles Brower and his horsemanship called for frequent applause. This race was the most exciting of the four on the card.

In the 2:17 pace, Adam Blair's "Rex" got second money, standing second in all three heats. The meet concluded with a running race in which a Plainfield horse was entered but did not take part.

The attendance at the track was very large and the crowd included many Plainfield enthusiasts.

CZAR FOR THE WAR

Russian Army In Full Retreat on Mukden.

OYAMA PRESSING HOT PURSUIT

Russia's Losses at Liaoyang Estimated at 16,000.

MAY HAVE TO ABANDON MUKDEN

Whole Japanese Army Across Taitse River—Is Hanging on to Rear of Retreating Foe—Kuroki Attempting to Surround and Cut Off the Enemy From Mukden Base.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that the emperor himself will go to the front to take part in the war. It is known that the imperial train has been fitted out for a long journey.

Field Marshal Oyama's whole army is across the Tai river in pursuit of General Kuropatkin's forces. This is taken to indicate that General Kuropatkin, far from being free of the pursuing Japanese forces, is again in serious straits and may have difficulty in safely covering his retreat. Previous reports that part of Oyama's army had crossed the Taitse were not regarded in as serious a light as is the news that all of his immense force is across the stream in hot pursuit.

It is reported at a late hour that General Kuropatkin's rear guard has been almost annihilated and that the main Russian army is in imminent danger of being surrounded.

The entire effective army or at least the main portion of it is already above Yentai station and is pushing on toward Mukden.

The whole of Field Marshal Oyama's army is in pursuit, and its advance corps are hanging on to Kuropatkin's flank.

A strong flanking column on the east is pushing rapidly north in the effort to head off the Russians.

Against this column Kuropatkin has sent out a strong cavalry division to the northeast, which, it is believed, is already in position to check the Japanese flankers, while to the westward Kuropatkin is moving a division toward Sinmintin, thirty miles west of Mukden, to meet any interference that may be attempted from the direction of Yinkow or Newchwang.

Oyama's advance is reported to be engaging the Russian rear, but it is not expected to develop anything more serious than a series of rear guard actions tending to harass Kuropatkin's retreat.

A late Mukden report says that preparations for the evacuation of that city are proceeding.

A dispatch from Sinmintin says that General Kuropatkin's retreat has been cut off.

The Russian troops have advanced in strong force to the southeast of Mukden as far as Neping hill to oppose any possible attack in the direction of their advance.

A Chinese official who has arrived from Mukden says that the Russian troops are leaving for the north, that there are 18,000 men ten miles to the east of the city, that the officers and men have become dispirited and that much sickness prevails.

The Japanese have thrown a strong flanking column across the Taitse river at Benitzu, about thirty miles northeast of Liaoyang, which is hurrying to the northeast and endeavoring to get in between the Russian army and Mukden. It is against this movement that Kuropatkin has dispatched Lieutenant General Rennenkampf with a strong Cossack division, which, it is believed, is already blocking the eastern highroad.

Kuropatkin has three roads over which he is marching toward Mukden besides the double tracked railway.

General Kuropatkin in a telegram to the general staff from north of Yentai says the Japanese on Sunday engaged his rear guard south of Yentai, the fight continuing until Monday.

Kuropatkin estimates his losses up to and including Sept. 4 at 16,000. This is considered to be a very conservative figure. The loss to the Japanese probably will be double this number owing to their position as attackers.

There is no truth either in the report that Kuropatkin has been wounded or that Lieutenant General Linevitch is moving to his support. General Linevitch is still at Vladivostok.

General Kuropatkin has telegraphed the emperor as follows:

"The retreat of our troops from Liaoyang on the right bank of the Taitse river on the night of Sunday, Sept. 4, was carried out in good order.

"The enemy's insignificant attempts at pursuit were stopped by our rear guard.

"During Sept. 4 the Japanese strengthened their forces operating against our left flank, extending their line from the Yentai mines northward.

"A large Japanese force also on Sept. 4 crossed the Taitse river from Liaoyang and its environs."

The Japanese repeatedly attacked the Russian rear on Sunday, but in every case they were repulsed.

The Russian losses during the fighting at Liaoyang are estimated at 16,000.

There is no doubt that a number of guns, especially siege artillery, have been abandoned.

It is reported, but not yet confirmed, that General Kuropatkin was obliged to abandon 200 guns at Liaoyang. Some of them, it is added, were damaged in the fighting and the rest disabled by order of the Russian commander in chief.

A dispatch from General Kuropatkin indicates that Kuropatkin's army and General Kuroki's army are racing for Mukden and that the result is in doubt.

The bulk of the Japanese forces is marching direct on Mukden.

Among the Japanese officers reported killed in the battle of Liaoyang are Lieutenant Tevenchi, a son of Lieutenant General Tsuruchi, minister of war, and Lieutenants Hikaki and Muratta, both sons of Japanese generals.

Official figures of the Japanese losses and a list of the wounded captured are expected to reach Tokio today.

It is believed that General Kuropatkin's next stand will be made at Mukden, although there are defensible grounds south of there.

A Chefu report says that following the terrific bombardment of Port Arthur for the first time heaps of Japanese dead were observed by the Chinese on the hills near the Port Arthur authorities.

It is reported that the Baltic squadron will sail a week from date by way of the Mediterranean, but that it will not proceed to the far east if Port Arthur falls.

It is impossible at this hour to obtain any statement from the St. Petersburg authorities regarding the reported preparations for the abandonment of Mukden.

This is the first intimation that such a course is contemplated. If it turns out to be true it means the abandonment of the whole of southern Manchuria and the winding up of the present campaign.

In fact, should Mukden be evacuated there would be no point for wintering the army of a quarter of a million, with its many wounded, short of Harbin.

On the other hand, the evacuation of Mukden would give Field Marshal Oyama commodious winter quarters and the practical control of two lines of railway. The Kinchou-Sinmintin line, tapping rich Chinese territory, stops little short of Mukden, with which it is connected by a good wagon road.

Want Release of Cargoes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The United States government is asking for the release of the cargoes of the steamers Arabia and Calchas, seized by the Vladivostok squadron. The Calchas, though a British vessel, had an American cargo aboard. The state department all along has contended that foodstuffs not directly consigned to the forces of a belligerent are not contraband of war and has pressed this view on the Russian government.

POINT TO JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Election Returns In Arkansas Indicate Democratic Ticket Won.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6.—Early returns from the state election in Arkansas indicate the re-election for governor of Jefferson Davis, the Democratic incumbent, over Hon. Harry Myers, Republican, by the usual large Democratic majority. The Democrats easily elected their entire state ticket, and the interest centered in the vote in large towns, where the regular Democrats were opposed in many instances by independents.

Returns are necessarily slow, as many voting places are remote from railroad and telegraph stations.

In Crittenden county, where trouble was anticipated because of a bitter factional fight and where a pistol duel was fought recently between Sheriff F. M. Williamson and former Sheriff Werner, the election passed off quietly.

McGraw's Leg Broken.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—During a wild demonstration following the double victory of the New York National league team a solid mass of baseball enthusiasts rushed upon the diamond. John J. McGraw, the victorious Giants' manager, in trying to escape the fans who wished to carry him to the clubhouse on their shoulders fell. He was trampled upon, and his right leg was broken below the knee.

Pawtucket Textile Mills Open.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 6.—After a brief period of idleness three of the textile mills in this city resumed operations today—the thread mill of the J. & P. Coates company, employing 2,200 hands; the Dexter Yarn company, employing 300 hands, and the cotton mill of Green & Daniels, employing 800 hands.

Boy Killed by Batted Ball.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Wendell Miller, twelve years old, son of George M. Miller, president of Ruskin university at Glen Ellyn, Ill., was killed here by a batted ball while watching a baseball game. Miller was sitting in the grand stand when the ball struck him on the temple. He died in three minutes.

Oyster Bay Man Stabbed.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Dr. James H. Hall, manager of the Oyster Bay baseball team, was stabbed in the leg while attempting to settle a dispute here between his team and one from Stamford, Conn. No serious results are anticipated. The assailant is unknown.

King Leopold's Walk at Dover.

DOVER, England, Sept. 6.—King Leopold, who is cruising on board the Belgian royal yacht Alberta, quietly landed here last night. After a short walk, accompanied only by a secretary, his majesty went on board the yacht which then sailed for Ostend.

Grace of Motion

Some Suggestions on How to Attain It

THE first thing to know in connection with grace of body is that every woman may possess it unless she is paralyzed or deformed. Now, fix that knowledge firmly and permanently in your mind. After that a hint or two by Edwin Wooton, the English writer on health and exercise, will be helpful in the pursuit of gracefulness.

In brief, physical grace results from muscular control and exact judgment. It would be better to put the mental part of the process first. Every aim must be clearly defined in the mind before it can be manifest outwardly, no matter what the aim is. Let us apply this principle. A stiff, clumsy, heavy going girl or woman makes up her mind to transform her clumsiness into grace. Let her watch the most graceful little child she knows. Little children unless malformed are always graceful. There never was an awkward baby.

With the idea of easy motion in her mind, the clumsy woman will naturally think first of her hampering dress and corset. For physical exercising these must be changed for a costume that will not hamper the muscles. One step toward grace of motion has been taken. Next let the victim of awkwardness try if she can relax her muscles. Not one in five hundred can do this at first. The stiffness and awkwardness come from muscles held tense or perhaps choked with fat. To relax the muscles is to withdraw all feeling temporarily from them. Here is a good way to do that:

Let the clumsy woman attire herself in a perfectly loose garment, say a Mother Hubbard. Now let her lie down on her back on a flat couch or the floor, stretch her arms and limbs out and get her consciousness away from every part of her body. From any sense of feeling she must not recognize that she has fingers, toes, limbs, back, stomach or even face and eyes.

When the girl can cease to realize any part of her body, then she has learned to relax her muscles and a long step toward gracefulness and ease of motion has been gained. Then, having thought the knots out of her muscles, she may begin to train certain motions into them. The secret of muscular training is to get all tenseness and consciousness out of all the muscles except just those which are to be used in the exercise lesson, then put all one's mental attention into those particular muscles.

One essential of physical grace is to hold the chest up and the head erect, chin in. To train for doing this habitually relax all the muscles except those of the legs on which you are to stand. Get all the consciousness of stiffness from the back of your neck and shoulders. Withdraw from the base of the brain the tense feeling that so often lodges there. Now you are ready to send the right kind of an impulse, that of steady erectness, to the back of your neck. So send it. Next the chest. Let loose the muscles around the waist in front. By a mental movement set them all free. Now lift the chest. Simply draw it up from around the waist and hold it so. You are to have no consciousness of your body except in the chest and rear neck muscles. Put your will power into these and hold them firmly. Do this continually. Ere long you will have educated the muscles till of themselves they will hold this pose.

The balancing exercise shown in the illustration is to correct the sloppy, wabbling gait so many women have let themselves fall into. Mr. Wooton's instruction for this exercise is to balance the body on one leg, throwing the body forward. Extend the free leg backward, raise the arms until the finger tips meet above the head, then extend them like the arms of a cross. Now bring the arms to the sides, the hands resting on the hips, and with the free leg kick backward and forward alternately. Repeat with the other leg. When fairly expert try to go through the exercise while standing on tiptoe.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The Breton looked stubbornly at the sailor.

"You are not my master, Monsieur de Kersaint," he answered.

"Answer his question, Jean-Renaud," said the marquis sharply.

The old man stared at the two gentlemen in silence.

"Answer it to me, then."

The lips of the old servant remained sealed.

"You dog!" shouted the marquis furiously. "How dare you disobey my orders! And to what end? Your silence proves that some one was here. Who was it? Speak, I command you! On your allegiance, by your faith, by the duty you owe me, I charge you. I wish to know who was here. I will know it! Ten thousand devils!" he roared, exasperated beyond measure at the man's stubborn silence. "Will you speak, or not? As God hears me, if you do not answer immediately, I shall pass my sword through you!"

"That is as monsieur pleases," answered Jean-Renaud sturdily. "Monsieur is a gentleman, and I am only a Breton peasant, but I have my ideas of honor, too. Serving monsieur and his son for 50 years in this house, how could it be otherwise? And my honor bids me be silent. Monsieur may kill me, I am his man, my life is his, but monsieur can not make me speak!"

Furious with rage the marquis shortened his arm and drew back his sword.

"Strike not, de Chabot!" cried de Kersaint interposing, laying his hand upon the other's arm. "What need? 'Tis certain some one is here. The silence of the maid, the acquiescence of mademoiselle, and the refusal of this old man to confirm or deny, prove it beyond a doubt. There is no exit from this or the other chamber, if I remember the castle, save by the door through which we came. The man or woman must be there. Let us search. Honor your servant for his ancient fidelity, de Chabot. He would not betray a woman. There is some one here—some one in the room of the woman I love, the woman who is this night plighted to me. Let us search. That door, yonder! What room is that?"

"Monsieur," cried Anne, stepping across to the door, her face aflame, "'tis my bed-chamber. You may not pass within it but over my body."

She had not remembered de Vitre, but she was on fire to protect Grafton. Yet it was a desperate, a hopeless situation. No matter, she would fight for him to the end—they should not harm him.

"Mademoiselle, assure me on the honor of a de Rohan that there is no one there and I withdraw."

She endeavored to speak, vainly moistening her dry lips, but she could not, so she stood silent and determined between him, and the door behind which Grafton, his sword out, his blood up, was in readiness to make a dash for liberty. But his time was not yet.

"Enough, de Kersaint," exclaimed the marquis, "you may not enter those sacred precincts, but I, an old man, grandfather to this wayward child, may go anywhere. Stand aside, Anne—or——"

"Mercy! mercy!" cried the girl, dropping to her knees before the door. "Mere de Dieu! Help me, have pity upon me!"

"Oh, he is in there, then? A moment, de Kersaint, and you shall have him before your sword," cried the marquis springing forward.

Grafton thought his hour was come But no, not yet!

"Search no farther," exclaimed a sharp voice from the other side of the room, as de Vitre, pale as death, threw down the screen and revealed himself. He had heard all, divined all. Anne loved him not. He would sacrifice himself for her, for her lover, pay back some of the debt he owed to Grafton.

"Oh, thank God, thank God!" cried Anne, rising to her feet and shrinking back against the door-frame.

"Monsieur de Vitre!" the marquis called out, in great surprise.

"Capt. de Vitre by heaven, what do you here," demanded de Kersaint, springing forward threateningly.

"Messieurs, I came here as the rightful betrothed of Mademoiselle Rohan, as the man who had received her troth in New France. Resolved to make one more appeal to her, I left the banquet hall to throw myself at her feet."

"Did you come by the invitation of mademoiselle?" asked de Kersaint.

"No, monsieur. I came unannounced."

"You love this man, mademoiselle?"

"Alas! no, Monsieur de Kersaint," answered Anne. "I esteem him. He sought my hand under peculiar circumstances in New France. I consented, subject to the acquiescence of Monsieur le Marquis, and when I told him of it he laughed at me."

"'Twas but a boy and girl affair, de Kersaint, not worth mentioning," answered the marquis.

"But he came here?"

"Yes, yes, monsieur," cried Anne. "But without an invitation, and, indeed, unwelcome. The mystery is now over. Retire, gentlemen, I beg of you. This has been too much for me."

The marquis started to speak, when something caught his eye and he stopped as if petrified. Resisting his first impulse to cry out, he slipped around to the table near the screen, and covering it with his person remained silent, his gaze fixed in cold suspicion upon his granddaughter. As for de Kersaint, he would let him fight his own battle; afterward he had other plans. De Kersaint stopped and thought a moment.

"You came," he said at last to de Vitre, who stood pale and haggard with folded arms before him, "without invitation?"

"I have said so."

"Unwelcome?"

"Alas! yes."

"Mademoiselle did beg him to retire," broke in Jean-Renaud. "I heard her."

"And monsieur would not go away," added Josette, who had regained her voice.

"Your attentions were not pleasing to mademoiselle, then?"

"No, monsieur, I fear not."

"By God, sir!" cried the Frenchman in sudden passion, "you are my executive officer, my trusted subordinate, but if I were not about to sail I would challenge you so that I might pass my sword through you! As it is, sir, you shall be dismissed the ship. I'll not sail with you, you disgrace your uniform!"

In his anger and surprise de Kersaint had forgotten about the cloak and the spy, it seemed.

"Monsieur," cried de Vitre, desperately, at this threat, "think a moment. I was mad with love for mademoiselle. She was my promised bride. Never had she permitted me a greater privilege than to touch my lips to her hand. No one would consider me. I saw happiness slipping from me. Her beauty crazed me. I forgot myself. But 'tis all over now. She does not love me. She has rejected me. Oh, monsieur, for God's sake, crush not a broken man! I ask no forgiveness, only an opportunity. We sail to-night. Give me my place upon the ship. Perchance some fortunate bullet may find my heavy heart. Monsieur, you were a young man once. If you love mademoiselle now, think what I have felt and find some excuse. —Mademoiselle," he continued, turning to Anne with a meaning glance, "you will not have me, it seems. All the dreams I have cherished are broken and shattered. My heart is dust and ashes within me. There is left me but one desire, one hope: since I may not live and love you, I wish to die in France. I have done you some slight service, perhaps, in days gone by," he went on pleadingly, "will you not intercede for me with Monsieur de Kersaint?"

"Monsieur de Kersaint," cried the girl, touched by the plea, realizing that he had given himself up to save her and her lover, sorry for his misery, "will you not heed the request of Monsieur de Vitre? You were ever generous, kind. Oh, monsieur, may not that which has moved you—to want—me"—she stretched out her arms toward him—"plead with you to excuse him?"

"Mademoiselle," said the count, looking at her with eyes full of admiration, "I can refuse you nothing. I can not forget this, but I can forgive Monsieur de Vitre. You are excuse enough for anything. By heaven, your beauty would make any man mad! Rejoin your ship, Capt. de Vitre. Perhaps there may be no more friendship between us, but at least you may do your duty."

"Thank you, Monsieur de Kersaint. Monsieur le Marquis, Mademoiselle de Rohan, farewell!"

"Nay, Monsieur de Vitre. I can not part from an old friend thus lightly!" exclaimed the girl, stretching out her arm. He seized her hand, dropped on his knees before her, and rested his forehead upon it.

"This for life and honor," he whispered, so that none but she could hear. "Think of me sometimes. Farewell!"

"Go, monsieur," she said, "and may God bless you! You have the gratitude, the eternal remembrance," she whispered, "of Anne de Rohan."

"Farewell, mademoiselle," said Kersaint, approaching in his turn, "may God speed the day when I may come to claim you again. De Chabot, goodbye. En avant, de Vitre."

"Jean-Renaud, attend Monsieur de Kersaint," cried the marquis again as they passed out. "Basile, withdraw the servants and wait for me at the end of the passage-way by the staircase."

CHAPTER XXVI.

GRAFTON WINS AND LOSES.

As the three men and the servants left the room, with an expression of relief so great that she could not describe it, Anne sank down in the chair by the table. She thought her lover extricated at last from his precarious position. Her emotions during the last few moments, when she feared that the marquis would discover his presence, and then when de Vitre had so nobly interfered in his behalf, had been almost more than she could bear. She forgot for the moment that the marquis had not gone with the others. She had not remarked his suspicious silence, his strange movement, in the excitement of the passing moments.

"Now, Modemoiselle de Rohan," he said harshly, "since this play has been played out and the actors in the little comedy have departed, will you be good enough to explain the situation? Will you tell me who it was that wore Josette's cloak; who listened in the armory; whom you have entertained in this room, whom you conceal in your chamber?"

"What mean you, monsieur?" she faltered, all her terror coming back again. "Monsieur de Vitre——"

"De Vitre is a fool," exclaimed the marquis angrily, "and yet I admire the man. He took it all upon himself like a gallant gentleman."

"Monsieur de Vitre told nothing but the truth, monsieur."

"Quite so," answered the marquis, with difficulty restraining himself. He was in deadly earnest, with the suppressed fury of his most dangerous moment. "Quite so. I have no doubt he told the truth. It spoke in his eyes. But did he tell it all? You answer not. But what need? Did Monsieur de Vitre leave this hat on the table? I have seen hats like that, mademoiselle, but upon English heads."

"Monsieur," stammered the girl.

"No more faltering!" continued the marquis, pacing back and forth before her. "He is here. A lover in your room, an Englishman, and you have betrayed me, betrayed your honor; you——" he used a harsh word from the camps. "Stand aside!"

He laid his hand roughly on her arm. She struggled to bar the way, moaning faintly. The door was thrown open, the hangings dashed apart, and Grafton, sword in hand, sprang into the room. At last!

"Monsieur le Marquis!" he cried, "release mademoiselle! By heaven, no man lays a hand upon her when I am by, not even though he be her father!"

"Captain Grafton!" exclaimed the marquis involuntarily letting go his granddaughter's wrist and falling back in great surprise, "you here, sir?"

"Why not? I love the Countess de Rohan, and, presumptuous as I may seem, I dare to affirm that she loves me as well. Indeed, sir, since the moment I held her in my arms five years ago in this very chamber at midnight, and kissed away her tears, I have loved her. The fortune of war brought me wounded to her feet in Canada, sir, and there I found I loved her still; and, what was more, I learned that she had not forgotten me. She left me behind wounded and ill, but I followed her here. Sir, I have come to claim her."

"My God!" faltered the marquis, as if dazed by this sudden development of the situation, "and I trusted her to your honor!" He looked years older at that instant, his face blanched and working. Grafton pitied him.

"Monsieur, I pledge you that honor that I left her as sweet and innocent a child as when I first knew her."

"And yet you came from her bed-chamber even now, and you kissed her at midnight?"

"'Twas five years since, sir."

"Do you love this man, Anne?"

"More than heaven itself!" she answered, stepping to his side.

"And you came to take her away, sir, like a thief in the night?" sneered the marquis, his color coming back as he mastered his surprise and regained a portion of his self-command.

"We had gone, sir, a moment since," broke in Grafton ruthlessly, irritated by the sneer, "had we not been interrupted."

"Mon Dieu, 'tis impossible you can love this Englishman, Anne!"

"An American, sir——"

"Peace! 'Tis all one. This officer, this enemy of France, this commoner!"

"Yes," murmured the girl.

"You love him more than family, than country, than rank, than station, than honor?"

"More than all the world, monsieur."

"And you were here alone with him at midnight in this tower? He kissed you?"

"Yes, monsieur, but I was only a child."

"You nursed him in sickness in Canada?"

"Yes, monsieur."

"Were you about to fly with him this evening, as he says?"

"Yes."

"And he came from your bed-chamber! Oh, mon Dieu, mon Dieu!" screamed the old man, passion, despair, wounded pride, quenched ambition, frantic rage in his voice. "The deep dishonor of it! This from my granddaughter, this from a child of my ancient house! An innocence gone, a reputation blasted, a character compromised!"

"S'death, sir!" burst out Grafton. "Speak you thus to your own? She is as pure as an angel from heaven! As I live, were you not her grandsire, and an old man, I'd strike you down!"

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Dainty, with Hildebrand in the saddle, won the Ocean handicap, one mile, at Sheepshead Bay. She covered the distance in the fast time of 1:39 and was quoted at 4 to 1 in the betting. Alan-a-Dale, the favorite, made the running to the stretch, where Lyne swung wide with the favorite, allowing Hildebrand an Dainty to come up on the rail. In a driving finish Dainty won by a head. Agile, at 7 to 1, easily won the Sapphire stakes. Handzarra, an added starter, was second and Bedouin third. Heart's Desire was the leader to the bend, where Burns brought Agile up and won by six lengths. Two lengths separated second and third.

Tokalon's Brilliant Performance.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—J. W. Fuller's filly Tokalon won the Twentieth Century handicap at Harlem in a gallop, beating Huzzah, which was second by six lengths. Miss Crawford was third, a nose behind Huzzah and having a length to spare over Prince Silver Wings. The stake was worth $6,820 to the winner. Tokalon's performance was a brilliant one. She took command at the first quarter and held it to the wire.

Spencerian at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 6.—Five favorites and two second choices were returned winners at Highland park. The crowd in attendance was the largest in the history of the track, and the brisk betting left the ring with the balance slightly on the bad side when the day was over. The Labor Day handicap, which featured the programme, had eight starters, and it was won by Spencerian, a strong choice in the betting.

BOX CAR HONEYMOON.

New Jersey Bride of Denver Engineer Will Live In Moving House.

MILLBURN, N. J., Sept. 6.—From a home of refining influences and urban surroundings to life in a remodeled box car along the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, through the rough country of Colorado, is the transition which will be experienced by Mrs. Tepper, nee Hannah Harrison Whittingham of Millburn, who was married last Wednesday in Pueblo, Colo. to Arthur Tepper, formerly of Wyoming, N. J. For the past eight months, since Mr. Tepper left the east, he has been connected with the Denver and Rio Grande company in the capacity of civil engineer and has charge of the concrete part of the company's bridge construction.

Frequent changes from place to place are made necessary by the completion of one job and the commencement of another, so that under any other arrangement Mr. Tepper would be isolated from his bride because of the lack of public accommodations. The road extends through an unsettled country, and box cars have been transformed into rough houses on wheels, and the Teppers will spend their honeymoon in one of these.

Mrs. Tepper is the daughter of the late Dr. Edward T. Whittingham, a civil war veteran, and a granddaughter of the Rev. William Rollinson Whittingham, who was bishop of Baltimore.

MIDDLE STATES REGATTA.

Feature Won by the Union Club of New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The fifteenth annual regatta of the Middle States Regatta association was held on the speedway course of the Harlem river. The feature was the junior octuple sculls, won by the Union Club of New York. In this race, the first ever rowed in this country, each man used a pair of sculls instead of the usual sweep oar. The seventy entries included the majority of the crack oarsmen of the east. The races were closely contested, the only walkover being the senior double sculls, which were won by Atalanta, with much room to spare. The Philadelphia oarsmen, who entered in liberal numbers, did not capture a single event. Titus, the former champion, won the senior single race in masterly style from a field of five competitors, one of whom, Duffield of Detroit, was the winner of the association single event in the recent national regatta.

In intermediate eights the Argonaut Rowing club of Toronto won a well earned victory over the Union and Staten Island crews. The Potomac Boat club of Washington won the senior eight oared race from the Malta of Philadelphia and the Argonauts and Staten Island clubs.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 6.—A special from Mazatlan, Mexico, says: "Governor Canedo has notified Louis Kaiser, American consul in this city, that the preliminary trial of Herman Torres, Fidel Carrasco and Francisco Castro for the murder of Clarence Way and Edward Latimer, the Americans shot at Augua Calientes, Sinaloa, has been concluded and the case turned over to the state authorities. It is not known what punishment will be meted out to the men, but it is not believed they will be executed."

Among the speakers were United States Senator Martin, Governor Montague and Congressman Claud Swanson, each of whom received an ovation. Rain poured in torrents all day until nightfall.

FRANK E. KESSELRING AND MISS MABEL G. DEAN PLIGHT THEIR TROTH.

Miss Mabel G. Dean, daughter of Mrs. Laura Dean, of East Front street, and Frank E. Kesselring, of the borough, were married last evening at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck and was witnessed by a large number of guests from this city, New York, Passaic, Newark, Bayonne, Ocean Grove, Long Island and Clifton, S. I.

Miss Dean was attended by her sister, Miss Laura Dean, as bridesmaid, and Harry Kesselring, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was attired in a gown of white net over white silk and wore a veil. Her bouquet was of bridal roses. While the party was assembling beneath a pretty floral bell in the parlor the wedding march was played by Herbert Harold.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the conclusion of which Mr. and Mrs. Kesselring departed for a wedding trip. On returning they will make their home in this city. Both young people are very well known and they were remembered with a large array of handsome presents consisting of silverware, cut glass, bric-a-brac and furniture. The bride presented her attendant with a gold locket and the groom's gift to his best man was a pearl stick pin.

JUDGMENT FOR $66,907.98

In the United States Circuit Court at Trenton, on Saturday last, Isaac P. Runyon, Esq., counsel for Roland M. Smythe, the plaintiff, who is suing the inhabitants of the Township of New Providence, obtained an order from Judge Lanning to enter a judgment against the township for $66,907.98, besides costs of suit, which costs will amount to hundreds of dollars because of the voluminous pleadings filed in the cause.

This is the largest judgment obtained by any of the local attorneys. The suit grew out of the issue of bonds by the township to take stock in the Passaic Valley Railroad Company.

FRESH AIR HOME IS CLOSED FOR SEASON

During the Summer Months 1,700 East Side Children and Mothers Were Guests.

THE FINAL EXERCISES

ADDRESSES MADE BY MISS CURRY AND OTHERS INTERESTED.

Handsome Medical Case for Dr. Currie—Music a Feature of the Closing Services.

With the singing of the hymn "God be With You Till we Meet Again" by the 275 children of the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home and close to 600 visitors interested in the summer's work, the last formal service of the season was concluded at the Home late Sunday afternoon. The meeting was a general one lead by James F. Parker, of the Plymouth Brethren, and consisted of addresses by several interested in the work at the Home, and of special singing and recitations by the children.

As chairman of the Home committee, Mrs. D. M. Runyon gave a general summary of the summer's work at the Home, a work carried on most successfully since July 7. During the two months when the Home has been open 1,700 children and mothers from the tenement districts of the East Side, of New York city, have been received at the camp. Some of these visitors have been so benefitted by a week or so of country life, and others have been at the Home all summer. At the Home yesterday all seemed healthy, rosy-cheeked and brown after the vacation, yet each earnestly regretting the close of the Home, an event which takes place a week earlier than last year.

Other speakers at the meeting were Miss Florence G. Hawkins, chairman of the entertainment and devotional committees and one who through persistent and untiring efforts for the pleasure of the life campers, has won the thanks of all in any way connected with the Home, "Papa" D. M. Torrey, "Mother" Curry's co-worker and each child's friend, David Hand, chairman of the building and grounds committee, George V. Taylor, superintendent of the Green Avenue Baptist Sunday-school, of Brooklyn; Dr. Arthur Basler, the children's physician in New York city at the Little Missionaries' Day Nursery, and finally Miss Sara Curry herself. She was greeted with long handclapping and spoke briefly in thanks for those who had in any way assisted in the work at the Home. Louis B. Rolston, president of the Home, was unable to be present and so Alexander C. Morgan, the vice president of the Home and owner of the house. Both tendered their regrets by letter.

Dr. Norman W. Currie, who has gratuitously volunteered his medical assistance at the home during the entire summer, was remembered by Miss Curry and the mothers in the presentation of a handsome medical case, fully equipped. He has made 55 visits to the Home during the two months.

The singing which was a feature of the service was augmented by the work of ten members of the Baptist church choir. Miss May Voorhees was at the melodian, and cornet music was furnished by DeWitt Frazee and E. D. Young, of Trinity Reformed church. The grounds and the Home itself were beautifully decorated with strings of leaves, cut flowers and large American flags, hung between the trees. During the course of the programme, there were recitations by Mary Ropsky, Rosie Ropsky, Olga Cramer and Herman Ott, four little East Siders.

All the children at the Home were taken back to their home in New York city yesterday morning on the 9:59 train from the North Avenue station. There were 275 in the delegation and they were transported to the station in rigs belonging to Mr. Stewart, of Netherwood. Miss Curry and Mr. Torrey and Clarence Titus will immediately take up the winter work at the Little Missionaries' Day Nursery in New York.

His Head Split Open.

Alexander Vettra, an Italian, was struck on the head by a croquet ball at the home of Michael Pellicos on North avenue, Scotch Plains, yesterday, and perhaps fatally injured. The ball, it is said, was thrown by a man because Vettra would not pay for a bottle of beer which, it is alleged, he had drank in the place. Pellicos was captured by Officer McCarthy at noon today.

Mr. Skiff's Musicale.

J. Edmund Skiff will give a musicale this evening at his studio and those who will take part in the programme are Mr. Skiff, Mrs. Skiff and Mrs. A. W. Daniels, of Danbury, Conn. Miss May Whitney will be the pianist.

Ed. Martin at Hospital.

Edward Martin, porter at the North Avenue station, entered Muhlenberg Hospital today to have an operation performed upon his hand which was injured by a fall some time ago. He will be detained at the institution a week.

Took Wife's Savings.

Charged by his wife with stealing $38 from her, saved while he was serving a term in jail, Richard Carpenter, of Scotch Plains, was arraigned before Justice Clark Saturday night. He denied the accusation but the evidence was against him and he was committed to Elisabeth in default of $200 bail.

Borough Police News.

John Barry, arrested for reckless driving, fined $10; Henry Kreisel, in from Brooklyn to pass the holiday, arrested for disorderly conduct, fined $5. Frank Moncton, just out of jail, arrested for drunkenness, will be given a hearing tonight.

E. Arthur Jenke, of West Ninth street, is spending a few days at Lake Hopatcong.

Miss Edna Yawger, of Bound Brook, is visiting her cousin, Miss Ethel Webster, of Duer street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Meeker, of West Front street, expect to go to St. Louis tomorrow or Thursday.

FOWLER SAYS HE WILL RUN

Will Accept Renomination If Tendered by His Party's Congressional Convention.

REPLY TO MR. KEAN

Dignified Answer to County Chairman's Curious Letter, Which Sets at Rest a Newspaper Yarn—The Communications.

The current newspaper story that Hon. Charles N. Fowler had failed to answer a letter from Hamilton F. Kean, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, asking whether he was a candidate for renomination, has caused a feeling of uncertainty in the Fifth Congressional District as to Mr. Fowler's candidacy.

Congressman Charles N. Fowler.

A representative of The Daily Press, in the interest of truth, brought the prevailing rumors to Mr. Fowler's attention, this morning, and asked him whether he would not state his position.

Mr. Fowler said:

"I did receive such an inquiry from Mr. Kean. It arrived during my absence from town, and, on my return, was duly answered. Out of justice, both to Mr. Kean and myself, and as the best way of complying with the very courteous suggestions of The Daily Press, I will furnish you with copies of these letters."

Mr. Kean's letter to Mr. Fowler, and Mr. Fowler's reply thereto are as follows:

"New York, August 19, 1904.

"Hon. Charles N. Fowler,
"Elizabeth, N. J.

"Dear Sir:

"Some people have told me that you have decided not to run this year for Congress from the Fifth District; others of your friends assure me that this is a mistake, that you expect to be nominated and elected. I would like very much to hear from you if you are a candidate for re-nomination, as I desire to know whether the 22d of September would be a satisfactory day to hold the Congressional Convention.

"Yours very truly,
"Hamilton F. Kean."

"Aug. 24, 1904.

"Hamilton F. Kean, Esq.,
"New York City.

"My Dear Sir:

"Replying to your favor of Aug. 19, I desire to say, as I have said in answer to other inquiries as to whether I was a candidate this year for the office of Representative from the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, that if the Republican party of that district, through its regularly constituted delegates, do me the honor to nominate me, I shall accept such nomination.

"I had supposed that the setting of a date for the Congressional Convention was a matter that rested entirely with the Republican Congressional Committee. At all events, I shall be satisfied with whatever date is agreed upon by that Committee.

"Very truly yours,
"Charles N. Fowler."

SCHOOL PLANS REVISED

BOARD OF EDUCATION MAKES MINOR ALTERATIONS IN ARRANGEMENTS.

Further consideration of the plans for the new High School occupied the attention of the Board of Education at its meeting last evening. In company with Architect Morse, representing Mr. Hale, the designer of the building, the members went over the heating and lighting arrangements and made a number of changes. The number of lights was reduced from 900 to 450 and the positions were changed. No decision was made relative to the heating as the system has not yet been decided upon.

Acting on suggestions made by Building Inspector Doane, some slight alterations were made in the auditorium to insure the safety of pupils. Fire escapes will also be placed on all sides but in front. Bids for the electrical work will be advertised for and they will be opened on Thursday, September 15.

The building committee reported that the work of excavating for the foundation of the structure had been commenced and that satisfactory progress is being made.

FOR STREET IMPROVEMENT

ORDINANCE ADOPTED AFTER LEE PLACE RESIDENT ENTERS PROTEST.

Chairman Gloak, of the street committee, at the September meeting of the Common Council held last night, called up the ordinance providing for the permanent improvement of certain streets, which have heretofore been published in The Daily Press, and it was adopted, after a public hearing was granted.

J. F. Walsh, of Lee place, was present to enter a protest against the macadamizing of his street this year. He stated that he represented nearly every property-owner on the street and all were in favor of the matter being laid over until next fall. He said that those affected were not now able to stand the expense of the work.

Mr. Gloak assured Mr. Walsh that it would probably be next fall before the work on that street is done and that the improvement would not call for any money from the property-owners there before that time. With this explanation Mr. Walsh seemed satisfied and he expressed the opinion that the other residents on Lee place would be also. It will be some time before this work is completed.

Wife Beater Gets Sixty Days.

In the city court yesterday morning, John Tetzleff, of Webster place, who finds diversion in beating his wife, was sent to jail for sixty days. He was before the court for this offense a short time ago but escaped punishment at the time.

MANY PROPERTY OWNERS INSIST ON P.S.C. PAVING WHOLE THOROUGHFARE.

Ordinance for Vitrified Brick Experiment at Watchung Trolley Station Passes on Third Reading.

The most important matter to come before the Common Council at the September meeting held last night was that in reference to the proposed laying of a double track for the trolley between the corner of Front and Somerset streets to Watchung avenue and Fourth street. The Council received several petitions on the subject, the first of which was from Woodhull & Martin and many other property-owners along the line prescribed, asking that in return for the privilege of laying double tracks, the Public Service Corporation be required to pave the street its entire width with vitrified brick.

Two petitions, signed by some of the same property-owners and others, and evidently prepared in advance of the first one, asked that the trolley company pave with brick between the tracks and eighteen inches outside.

Another petition was received from J. Fred MacDonald, Dr. J. B. Probasco, Powlison & Jones, A. B. Summers, A. M. Griffen, Peter B. Hodge and others, protesting against the laying of double tracks. They argued that the improvement would not relieve the congested condition and that it would be a detriment inasmuch as more of the street would be occupied. All of the petitions were referred to the street committee for further consideration. The petitioners with the exception of the last one presented asked that the trolley company be allowed to lay the double tracks, believing that it would be the means of obviating the present difficulty complained of and it is thought that the majority of the Council is of the same opinion. An early report is expected in the matter.

Mr. Gloak called up on third reading the ordinance providing for the paving of Watchung avenue, between Second street and North avenue, with vitrified brick, and it was unanimously adopted. The Public Service Corporation, according to the terms of the agreement with the city, must deposit $1,100 with the city treasurer before the work be commenced, and the corporation is not anxious to start the work until the question of a double track is decided one way or the other. This will probably be settled within a short time.

JEFFERY'S SUCCESS.

Plainfield Man Continues His Efforts for Tax Reform.

William Jeffery, the real estate agent, who is engaged in tax reform work in New York State, left yesterday for Port Jervis. From there he will go to Monticello. From reports gathered, Mr. Jeffery has been successful to a remarkable degree in his work. The New York Tax Reform Association of New York city, by whom Mr. Jeffery is employed, has been quick to recognize his energy and capacity for organizing.

Being a student of economics in addition to almost twenty years' experience in the real estate business, gives Mr. Jeffery qualifications needed for this important work. Among the subscribers of this association are such well known persons as J. Pierpont Morgan and A. D. Juliard. Wm. G. Low, brother of Seth Low, former Mayor of New York, is president of the association.

Police Recover Stolen Horse.

A horse stolen from the barn of James Wheeler, a hay carter living on Clinton avenue, was recovered by the Newark police Monday. Word was sent to local headquarters and in company with Patrolman McCarthy, Wheeler went to the State metropolis and identified the animal. It was taken on the night of August 26 and was left by the thief in a Newark stable.

Twenty-Eight Suits Involved.

Announcement is made that the remaining twenty-eight suits in the celebrated Pangborn case at Williamsport, Pa., will be called for trial on Monday, October 10, in the Lycoming County court.

PROGRESS OF BOARD OF HEALTH INSPECTIONS

Thus Far 779 Premises Have Been Examined in the House-to-House Canvass.

NO CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

MANY NUISANCES ARE ABATED BY THE HEALTH OFFICIALS.

Formaldehyde Discovered in One Supply of Milk—Several Milk Permits Granted.

Twenty-seven dairies were inspected during August by Health Officer L. R. Thurlow, five being new ones, and all were found to be in good condition. On August 26 and 27 samples were taken of every milk sold in Plainfield to test for formaldehyde. But one sample out of thirty-five was found to contain formaldehyde and the necessary steps were taken to prevent the use of this concoction. These facts were presented at the September meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday afternoon.

Numerous communications were received regarding the very unsanitary condition of the Italian settlement on East Front street and the Board ordered notices to be served to have the place cleaned up.

It was reported that the work of house-to-house inspection had been pushed with as much energy as possible. The total number of house inspections during August were 273 and there were found about 143 cases of violations of the ordinances. This inspection was stopped for the year on September 1. In the two months and a half that this work has been carried on, 779 premises have been inspected at an expense of about eleven cents per house. The results obtained have show the great need of this work and the Board hopes to complete it next year. The results of the inspection from June 20 to September 1 are as follows:

Total number of premises inspected, 779; defective plumbing systems found, 38; accumulation of ashes and garbage, 27; accumulation of garbage, 25; accumulation of manure, 10; privy vaults which required cleaning, 198; cesspools which required cleaning, 15; abandoned privy vaults not properly filled, 83; abandoned cesspools not properly filled, 1; cesspools too near house, 4; privy vaults too near well, 1.

These notices have been served in connection with the above:

Notices to abate nuisance, 90; to abolish vaults, 144; to abolish cesspools, 50; to connect with sewer, 76. There still remains over one hundred notices yet to be served. These have been delayed because of the great amount of work of the plumbers and scavengers. They will, however, be served shortly. Milk permits were granted to Charles E. Williams, Harry H. Smith, John C. Cooper and Fred W. Dunn.

At the present time the city is free from contagious disease and there were but few cases reported during the month.

There were reported fifteen marriages, fifty-three births, two stillbirths and a total of thirty-seven deaths.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

Miss Nellie Larew Becomes the Wife of David M. Gugel, of Long Branch.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Nellie Larew, daughter of Mrs. Lydia Larew, of West Fourth street, to David M. Gugel, of Long Branch. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. J. Yerkes at his home in West Seventh street, Aug. 20. Miss Emma Gugel, sister of the groom, and Theodore Lorew, brother of the bride, acted as attendants.

A quiet reception followed at the home of the bride's mother and Mr. and Mrs. Gugel are now residing at Elizabeth, where the former is employed.

Dr. Brown's Wife Dead.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lydia Brown, wife of the late Rev. Theodore S. Brown, formerly of this city, died Friday evening at her home in Chatham, N. Y. She was 79 years of age. The funeral was held Monday afternoon and the interment was in the family plot at Chatham. Rev. Theodore S. Brown was pastor of the Second Presbyterian church (now the Crescent Avenue church) for nearly twenty years previous to the accession of Dr. William R. Richards.

Elston Leonard, of Madison avenue, is home from a stay at Asbury Park.

PLAINFIELD'S COPS ARE AGAIN DEFEATED

This Time Newark's First Precinct Men Show the Locals How to Play Ball.

ON CRESCENT OVAL

VISITORS' PITCHER STRIKES OUT NINETEEN MEN.

McCarthy and McGinley Each Fan Four Times—The Newark Nine a Fast Aggregation.

The local police nine went down to defeat yesterday on Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon, the team from the First Precinct, of Newark, winning by a score of 7 to 5. The visiting blue coats are considered very fast, having defeated many of the best semi-professional teams in the Metropolitan district. The local team was strengthened by the addition of Montross and Allen, the West End's battery.

A feature of the contest was the pitching of Goodwin for the Newarkers. He struck out a total of nineteen men, McCarthy and McGinley each fanning four times. Daily, formerly of the Dunellen team, covered first base in good style, and Winn, formerly of the St. Mary team, put up a good game at short.

The Newark nine started the ball a-rolling in the first inning by scoring two runs. McCabe and Schott, the first two men at the bat, singled and were advanced a base when Montross dropped Steele's easy pop fly. Jimmie then hit Hummell forcing a run in. Allen threw to second to catch Hummell and Schott reached home, being safe by a small margin. In the mix-up Steele started for third and was thrown out by Allen. Goodwin and Jackson were easily retired.

After two strikes were called on Hamilton, he secured a slashing two base hit in left-field, but was left on second, the next three batters being easy outs. Plainfield scored in the third inning. Montross was given a free pass, stole second when Hummell rolled the ball to Goodwin. He scored on Hamilton's hot grounder.

A single, a double, a three-base hit and four errors netted the Newark team four runs in the fifth inning. Plainfield scored in the eighth on two base on balls. Montross was hit by a pitched ball, a hit by Winn and an error by Troy netted the locals four runs. Goodwin got a two base hit and scored on an error.

MIDDLEKAUFF MUST FACE GRAVE CHARGE

Vineland Woman Declares Her Father Was Defrauded of $11,882 by Plainfielder.

ARREST MADE TODAY

A MAN'S DEATH SAID TO HAVE BEEN CAUSED FROM GRIEF OVER MATTER.

Middlekauff Taken to Millville for Hearing—Bail to be $10,000—The Alleged Crooked Deals.

As he stepped from his front door this morning, E. D. Middlekauff, of Watchung avenue, was placed under arrest by Detective McCarthy, of the local police force, on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Ellen VanEvra Updyke, of Vineland, who alleges that he defrauded her father, Theodore Van Erva, out of $11,882. He was taken to police headquarters and turned over to Chief of Police Bullock, of Millville, who came on here with the warrant last night. The prisoner said that he would accompany the officer to Millville, telegraphing in advance for friends there to secure $10,000 bail for him.

Theodore VanErva, Mrs. Opdyke's father, died three months ago as a result, it is alleged, of worrying over the investments made by Middlekrauff for him. A month later Middlekauff removed to this city from Millville, where he has since resided with his wife and three children. When placed under arrest he denied any wrongdoing. It is said that he succeeded in getting VanEvra to buy 100,000 shares of stock in the National Oil and Development Company upon false representations of dividends, and this was followed by other alleged poor investments.

"SPITE HOUSE" OWNER IN JAIL

ANTONIA MARRO TO ANSWER FOR VIOLATING CITY'S ORDINANCES.

Antonio Marro, who owns and occupies the alleged "spite house" property in East Front street, was arrested this morning on four separate charges, each of which is for an alleged violation of several city ordinances. Two of the complaints are made by former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, who occupies a large estate in the neighborhood, and two by Health Officer Leon Thurlow.

One complaint is that he has a dog that disturbs neighbors, another is that he throws swill on his premises, a third that he erected an outhouse without a permit and the fourth that filthy odors come from the premises. At the request of Walter Hetfield, Jr., Marro's counsel, the trial was postponed this morning until September 19.

REINHART'S POOR SHOWING

BARELY QUALIFIES IN BALTUSROL GOLF CONTEST.

There were surprises great and plenty at Baltusrol, yesterday, when the opening play in the National amateur golf championship was held. According to the opinion of an expert, the qualifying round was worse than a horse race. Form was knocked to smithereens. When all of the cards were in it was found that eight contestants had tied for the last two places and included in this number was Frank O. Reinhart, who was picked as a low-score man. He returned a score of 92, as did also Findlay Douglas, two favorites for the title. Reinhart just qualified and that is all. It is hoped that he will do better today.

Among the other Plainfielders to qualify were Robert Abbott, 85; W. L. Glenney, 90. Those from here who did not qualify were Dudley H. Barrows, 95; R. S. Rowland, 95; F. C. Talmadge, 97, and J. Whitney Baker, 98.

The best sixty-four scores will continue today at medal play.

Mrs. Hyde's Funeral.

The funeral services of Mrs. Edith Godfrey Hyde, wife of Charles Livingston Hyde, who died in Vitznau, Switzerland, on July 24 last, will be held at St. Thomas' church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, New York, tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon. Interment will be private.

WANT OLD GLORY ON CITY'S FLAG POLE

Fraternal Order Petition City Fathers to Let the People See the National Emblem.

CALL MAN APPOINTED

ROUTINE BUSINESS BEFORE THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Decide to Borrow $5,000 for Sewer Extension Work—Clerk for Tax Collector.

Matters of more or less importance were transacted at the monthly meeting of the Common Council held last night. A communication was received from the members of Franklin, Somerset and Benevolent Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., asking the Common Council to see that an American flag is displayed every day but Sunday from the city flag pole. The communication stated that there are about seven hundred members in the three councils, and asks for favorable consideration. The petition was referred to the finance committee with power.

A communication was received from Peter V. Weaver and others asking that the fire limits be changed from New to Liberty street. The matter was referred to the fire committee.

William M. Stillman petitioned the Council to install an eight inch sanitary sewer in Madison avenue to provide for the new building erected on that avenue between Front street and the brook. The petition was referred to the street committee.

The resignation of Sydney E. Frazee as a regular fireman was received and accepted, and the Board of Engineers recommended the appointment of William Jaeger, a call man, to fill the vacancy. Mayor Jenkins then appointed Mr. Jaeger to the position and the appointment was confirmed. This, it is believed, will cause some changes among the regular firemen in the various houses.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that during August sixteen building permits were granted. City Physician Lufburrow in submitting his report for May, June, July and August, stated that he had made 120 visits and that two deaths had occurred. The report was referred to the alms committee.

Mr. Daniel reported on the petition of Watson Whittlesey, who owned property in Netherwood, and who asked for an adjustment of taxes on the same. Mr. Daniel stated that the corporation counsel had informed him that the request could not be granted as the property had been sold for taxes. He advised Mr. Whittlesey to redeem the property soon or else he would lose the title to it.

In response to a petition from Elston M. French and others asking for the location of a fire hydrant on Evergreen avenue, near Hillside avenue, Mr. Lee moved that the same be granted. This will be a two-way hydrant. Mr. Lee also reported on the petition for a fire alarm box near the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home. He stated that as the season is late he did not believe an alarm box at that point a necessity at present, besides there is a telephone in the Home which can be used in case of fire. Later on he thought the committee might see its way clear to locate a box at the point mentioned.

Under the head of new business Mr. Daniel offered a resolution which called for the borrowing of $5,000 for the improvements of the present system of sanitary sewers, the loan to be secured by city notes. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Daniel asked that a sum not to exceed $100 be allowed for the employment of help in the tax collectors' office to assist Mr. Smith in getting the tax bills out on time. He stated that the time now allowed for preparing the bills before the Commissioners of Appeal meet is much shorter than usual and with the present help it would be impossible to get them out as required. The request was granted.

Mr. Gloak called up on third reading the ordinance which establishes the building line between Central avenue and Evona thirty feet from the centre line and the same was adopted.

President Tolles appointed George H. Frost a member of the Park Commission in place of Jan. vanHerwerden, who is away from the city most of the time. J. F. Buckle is chairman of the commission and it is the intention to hold a meeting tomorrow night. For that reason a new member was substituted in place of Mr. vanHerwerden. It is the intention of the commission to get together and formulate plans for work.

After the auditing of the usual batch of bills the Council adjourned.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Peaches are coming it rather lively, according to the High Bridge Gazette correspondent from Annandale. He says that about 1,000 baskets were shipped from his town on Monday and 800 baskets on Tuesday. There were 881 baskets sold at the Exchange early in the week at an average of seventy-five cents each. On Tuesday there were 771 baskets sold and the average price was seventy-eight cents. The sales on Wednesday amounted to 711 baskets, the price being eighty cents.

According to the report there are plenty of buyers at Annandale and good fruit brings fancy prices. One day this week a peach grower sold his entire load of peaches at $1.05 a basket. The fruit now being received here is good, being a decided improvement over last season's crop. The local prices are fairly high, it being impossible to get good peaches for much less than $1 or $1.25 a basket. Of course, there are smaller peaches which sell for less money. The height of the season will soon be reached and lovers of peaches would do well to purchase now if they want desirable fruit

CAPTURED BIG DRUM FISH

With only a small line used in ordinary angling, John Butler, of this city, landed off Gifford's, S. I., Monday, one of the largest specimens of a black drum fish ever seen in this section. It weighed forty pounds and measures from tip to tip just forty inches. Butler was with Ephraim Compton and Frank Cleaves at the time and it required the efforts of all three to make the capture. The fish was gamey and they played it for an hour before it tired out.

Butler presented his prize to the men at Fire Headquarters and they anticipated a fish bake until it was learned that there was no oven in the city capable of holding it. They had it taken to Ivamy's market and today it was divided into steaks and distributed.

CZAR'S ARMY ROUTED

Kuropatkin Reports That the Army Is Advancing North.

JAPANESE ARE CLOSE TO MUKDEN

Russian Chief May Attempt Another Stand at Mukden Base or at a Strong Position Close to It.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Routed at every point, their rear guard battling desperately against the pursuing Japanese, the Russian army is in full retreat. Already the commissariat and columns of artillery have arrived at Mukden and are continuing their march northward.

The Japanese guns are now only fourteen miles away from Mukden. The mikado's troops are rushing for the goal by eastern roads in an endeavor to cut off Kuropatkin.

Viceroy Alexeieff is on his way from Harbin to Mukden.

The emperor has received the following dispatch from General Kuropatkin:

"The army is advancing northward. It has extricated itself from the dangerous position in which it was placed, being threatened by the enemy and having a narrow front.

"The enemy throughout the day cannonaded our rear guard, especially its left flank, but without much effect.

"We lost about 100 men."

Fighting a continuous rear guard action with the Japanese, who hang to his flanks, Kuropatkin continues to fall back over roads made sodden by two days' heavy rain.

It is reported that in spite of the bad roads and persistent attacks on the Russian rear the retreat is orderly.

The Russian general staff denies the report that Kuropatkin's rear guard has been annihilated.

Whether or not Kuropatkin will make another stand at Mukden is not indicated. In St. Petersburg it is argued that the fact that his commissary trains passed on through Mukden does not indicate that the Russian commander proposes to evacuate that city without a struggle, but only that they are taking up their proper position in the rear.

Field Marshal Oyama's report, as contained in dispatches from Tokyo, indicates that if the Russians attempt to retain possession of the Yentai collieries, the only ones in northern Manchuria, one of the most desperate battles of the campaign may be fought there immediately. Oyama states that Kuroki's right is now in close touch and pressing the Russians hard.

A Chefu report says that firing at Port Arthur was heard there last night. Two Chinese interpreters belonging to the official household of Lieutenant General Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur, have been caught spying at Shushiyen and Palungshan. They were executed by the Japanese.

Chinese who have arrived here from Port Arthur declare that the Russian garrison expects a general land and sea attack today.

A special Zanzibar dispatch says that the British cruiser Forte found the Russian volunteer fleet steamers St. Petersburg and Smolensk within the three mile limit and communicated to them the orders of the Russian government to desist from interference with neutral shipping. The commanders of the Russian vessels said they would forthwith proceed to Europe.

It is stated at St. Petersburg that by the end of October the Fourth, Eighth and Thirteenth army corps, totaling 192,000 men, will reach the front and that before the end of September 1,100 guns will have been dispatched to General Kuropatkin.

RUSSIAN STAFF SANGUINE.

Apparently Not Afraid That Kuroki Will Head Off Kuropatkin.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 7.—Apparently the war office is not disturbed by fear that Field Marshal Oyama will cut off General Kuropatkin before he reaches Mukden. According to the latest advices the Russian retreat is being effected in good order. The heads of transport trains have passed through Mukden, and the fact that the baggage trains continued on their way northward of Mukden, the war office explains, does not mean that Kuropatkin is bound farther north at this time, but is simply a natural measure of precaution, even if he intended to hold Mukden, the Russian formation during the operations of an army locating the baggage train fourteen miles and the ambulance corps four miles in the rear of the main body of troops.

The news from the front indicates that Oyama, having failed to surround Kuropatkin's rear with all the power of his tired troops, while hurrying forward a column which crossed the Taitse river at Bensihu, thirty miles northeast of Liaoyang and five miles due east of Yentai station, in the hope of cutting the Russian line of retreat below Mukden. This column may consist of fresh troops th light marching order.

The Bensihu road joins the main road from Yentai where the latter is intersected by the Hun river, three miles below Mukden. Once this point is passed Kuropatkin will have the Hun river between it and Oyama. The only uneasiness is due to the possibility that Japanese light draft gunboats, which, according to reports, are coming up from Newchwang, might suddenly make their appearance, the river being navigable to this point.

As Kuropatkin was just north of Yentai when the heads of transport entered Mukden, it is evident that the retreating column is more than fifteen miles long.

WATERSIDE AT SHEEPSHEAD.

In Autumn Stakes Favorite Led All the Way.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Waterside the 13 to 10 favorite, won the Autumn stakes at Sheepshead Bay. He won handily by a length from Pasadena with Jack Lory, the second choice, third. Waterside took the lead at the lifting of the barrier and led all the way, winning in the fast time of 1 minute 12 3-5 seconds for six furlongs.

Dick Bernard, winner of the first race, was bid up to $3,000, an advance of $1,300 over his entered selling price. The stable representative bid the customary $5 and retained the horse. Eagle in the last race was bid up to $1,500, at which figure he was bought by the owner.

Raynor, who had the mount on Dekaber in the fourth race, was thrown on to the fence and badly hurt, receiving a severe gash in his left leg.

Brooklynite, who finished second in the first race, also started in the last race and finished tenth.

Grand Circuit at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—Another large crowd attended the second day's racing in the grand circuit meet here and saw some good racing. Considerable interest centered in the Capital City trot. J. Harmer Bronson's Texas ran away with the first heat, but things did not look right to the judges, who caused a shake-up of drivers. Thompson, who was behind John Caldwell, and Renick, who was driving Texas, were set down, and the claim was made that they were not trying to win. Andrews took Thompson's place and Walker went behind Texas. Alexander won the second, third and fourth heats.

Racing at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 7.—The good thing players reaped their harvests in the fourth and sixth races, won respectively by Arrah Gowan and Rowland M., both of which were heavily played at long prices. Gallithea, a 4 to 1 choice, won the opening event, in which Gearholm, a debutant at the racing game, was a wild tip. Manfred was the only winning favorite. Beckart and McIlvain, both second choices in their fields, taking the other races.

New Jersey Riflemen Won.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 7.—The sixth day of the big interstate shooting tournament in progress here was devoted almost entirely to firing in the regimental team match. The first prize comprises the interstate trophy, a medal to each member of the winning team and $150.

Foncasta at Harlem.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Sad Sam, Proofreader and Alma Dufour were the winning favorites at Harlem. The other four events went to two long shots and two third choices. The feature event, a handicap at one mile and seventy yards, was won by Foncasta, a 7 to 1 shot. William Wright was second and Fossil third.

Ed Ball at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—Ed Ball, second choice, easily won the feature of the Delmar card. Icewater, favorite, was second. Tally H. was cut down and will be forced to retire for some time.

Bug Army Stopped Car.

UXBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 7.—An army of potato bugs stopped an Uxbridge and Blackstone trolley car at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It took the car crew fifteen minutes to spread sand enough on the rails so that the car could get up headway. The bugs were emigrating from a large potato field toward Millville.

IN HOSTILE ARRAY.

Battle of Bull Run Opened by Skirmishes.

GRANT MAKING A FLANK MOVEMENT

New York Companies Ruled Out of Action For Crossing Open Space Under Fire From General Lee's Texans.

CORPS HEADQUARTERS, GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 7.—The blue and the brown armies are facing each other in hostile array. It is the work of the blue army, under General F. D. Grant, operating from Manassas, to strike and drive the brown army, under General J. Franklin Bell, operating from Thoroughfare, back through the gap of that name in the Bull Run mountains.

The lines of battle have been formed. Military experts look for the main engagement today.

General Bell has advanced his line at least two miles farther east than the one he originally took up. He has gone a little more than halfway to meet the attacking party and has established an exceedingly strong succession of lines bisecting the maneuver zone, the right resting about two and a half miles north of Gainesville and extending from that point due north to the limit of the zone.

The attacking forces are being marshaled in front of this line on the east. Between the two forces is a stretch of open country of about a mile. This country is rolling, and on either side are woods and cornfields.

The opposite posts of General Grant's advance were stopped in their forward movement. Four companies of the Seventy-fourth New York and one company of the Fifth infantry, regulars, under Brigadier General Wint, commanding the First brigade of the blue army, were ruled out of action for attempting to cross an open space under supposed fire. They were subject to the concentrated fire of a long line of the Second Texas regiment under General Lee, commanding the First brigade of the brown army.

After a brisk skirmish, which developed much strength on the part of the brown army, hostilities seemed to cease entirely. This would indicate two things—either General Grant was preparing to make a strong attack or that he was making a swift move to flank General Bell on the right. This will require a strong force, as General Grant's left up to this time has been composed entirely of the cavalry line. An early action near Haymarket is looked for.

French Clergy Side With the Pope.

ROME, Sept. 7.—In private audience with the pope Mgr. Le Nordez resigned the bishopric of Dijon. The Vatican authorities consider this an answer to the speech of Premier Combes at Auxerre Sunday last. The resignations of Bishop Le Nordez and Mgr. Geay demonstrate as far as the Vatican authorities are concerned that all the clergy of France, even the members who have heretofore been considered as wavering, side with the pope in the present conflict. The summoning to Rome of the bishop of Dijon and the bishop of Laval for trial without consulting the French government led to the rupture of relations between France and the Vatican.

Moody Calls on Roosevelt.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Attorney General W. H. Moody has arrived to confer with the president regarding both government and political matters in which they are interested. Mr. Moody had just returned from a campaign tour of Vermont and Maine and desired to talk with the president about the situation in those states. National Chairman George B. Cortelyou, after a night's conference with the president on matters pertaining to the campaign, left for New York. He gave assurance that there was no significance attached to his visit to the president.

Fairbanks at Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Sept. 7.—Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican candidate for vice president, came from Boston here to address a large meeting at Merrymeeting park. The Republican town committee met him at the railroad station and escorted him to the park. Herbert N. Heath of Augusta and William T. Cobb of Rockland, Republican candidate for governor, were the first speakers. Then Senator Fairbanks delivered an address, discussing politics in a general way.

Canal Commissioners For Home.

PANAMA, Sept. 7.—The government has ordered Ricardo Arias and Jose Eusebio Morales, the special Panama financial commissioners, now in the United States, to present to President Roosevelt a collection of the first issue of the coins of the republic as a souvenir. The members of the canal commission will sail for the United States today after having enacted laws for the government of the zone and deciding questions of urgent importance.

Active After Sleeping Four Years.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—A telegram to General Passenger Agent Cleland of the Northern Pacific railway from Yellowstone National park announces that "Splendid" geyser, at the upper basin, which has been dormant for four years, has again become active, playing regularly every three hours.

Unions Will Fight It Out.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 7.—The local unions of the packing trades in the two Kansas Cities have voted to continue the present strike until the packers are brought to terms.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 7, 1904.

That petition to the Common Council, last night, which demanded that if the trolley people are allowed to run a double track system over parts of Front street and Watchung avenue, it be compelled to pave those sections with vitrified brick, is a reasonable one, and it is hoped that the street committee will see it in that light. Why should not the trolley company be compelled to make some just return for a valuable franchise?

If the Common Council orders that the National emblem be displayed from the city flag pole as requested by the local councils of a patriotic fraternal order, it will be carrying out the wishes of the general public. The excuse heretofore given is that when the flag is continually unfurled it is soon worn out. What difference does that make, isn't this city rich enough to afford the expense of a couple of flags every year? Let it be displayed every weekday and on Sundays too.

In an interview with a reporter for The Daily Press today, Congressman Fowler sets at rest a story that has been going the rounds of the State press. To make political capital for his enemies, a report has been spread broadcast that the dignified representative of the Fifth Congressional district had refused to answer County Chairman Hamilton Kean's answer as to whether he would be a candidate to succeed himself. In another column will be found the full text of the letters which passed between the two. Mr. Fowler's reply shows that he has a thorough understanding of political etiquette and respect for party rules and customs. Past elections have shown that Plainfield is a Fowler stronghold and the announcement that he will be a candidate, when the nomination is tendered through the proper channels, will be welcomed by his friends here.

Supporters of the Dunellen A. C. all unite in claiming the amateur championship of this district for the locals, as they have easily defeated all teams having any pretension to the title. New Market has won only one out of seven games and Clinton Avenue has won only two out of five. One more game is to be played with Clinton Avenue, but that can have no effect on the final result as the series has been finished.

BAD WABASH WRECK

Des Moines Fair Train Derailed Near Pendleton, Mo.

FOUR DEAD; TWENTY-FIVE INJURED

St. Louis Exposition Express Coach Jumped Track Owing to Broken Rail, Dragging Dining Car Down Embankment.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—A Wabash railroad passenger train southbound from Des Moines to St. Louis was wrecked near Pendleton, Mo., sixty-six miles northwest of here, killing four passengers and injuring twenty-five others. The cause of the wreck has not been determined, but it is thought that a broken wheel derailed a passenger coach which jumped the track and dragged the dining car with it.

J. E. Nichols, Macon; J. A. Nichols, Piedmont; Mrs. Henry Folcht, Huntingdon, Pa., and Mrs. C. H. Graves, La Plata, were killed.

The train, which was composed of an engine, baggage and smoking cars, day coach, diner and Pullman sleeper, was well filled with passengers en route to the world's fair.

At the Wabash general offices in St. Louis it was stated that there were over 500 people in the train, which was proceeding at regular speed when the accident happened. The sleeper, which was the rear car, did not leave the track. The day coach and dining car, which went down an embankment, were totally wrecked, and the casualties were among the passengers of the former car.

NO NEW YORK "L" STRIKE.

Both Belmont and Labor Leaders Made Concessions.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—As a result of a conference at the office of August Belmont here between representatives of the dissatisfied employees of the "L" road and officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit company the threatened strike on the "L" seems to have been averted.

One of the labor leaders at the conference, who left the room for a few moments, told reporters who questioned him that an agreement had been reached and that it would be signed at once. He said there would be no strike.

The conference was a very long one. While the exact nature of the agreement cannot be learned, it is believed that both sides made some concessions.

Hymenoptera Named After Taft.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The Rev. Father Stanton, S. J., who has been in the Philippines for the past three years engaged in scientific research, has discovered a large number of new parasites in the islands. He has collected no less than 152 new species of hymenoptera. Some of these were unlike any heretofore known and were classified under three new genera. All of the specimens have been sent to Dr. Ashmead of the National museum, who will issue a descriptive list of them. Some of the specimens have been named after the discoverer, others after Secretary Taft and other people of prominence.

Strike Riot at Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 7.—Three squads of police were called out last night to quell a strike riot in front of the factory of Jacobson & Jacobs, a leather remnant shop, where employees went on strike Friday. The firm has employed thirty Greeks and Italians in the places of some of the strikers, and when the new men left the factory at the closing hour they were attacked by a crowd of several hundred men and boys. Rocks and stones were hurled, and in some instances knives were drawn, but no one was seriously injured. Three arrests were made.

Steamer Struck a Rock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The steamboat William Paine while bound from here for Bridgeport, Conn., and other New England points with several hundred passengers aboard struck a submerged rock in Long Island sound off Fort Schuyler. Her starboard paddle wheel was badly smashed, and she was too disabled to proceed. The steamboat Richard Peck, bound for New Haven, which was not far behind, took the William Paine's passengers off.

No Decision In Chicago Strike.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Whether the stockyards strike is to be called off or continued indefinitely will not be known until today, when the result of the referendum vote on the proposition by the unions involved in the difficulty will be made public by President Donnelly of the Butchers' union. The greatest secrecy is being maintained by the officers of the different unions as to the outcome of the vote, which is being taken by secret ballot.

Admiral Wilde Promoted.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Rear Admiral George F. Wilde, commandant of the Boston navy yard, has hoisted his blue flag on the station ship, the Wabash, and a salute of thirteen guns was fired in his honor. The commandant returned to duty after a month's leave of absence, during which time he was promoted to the rank of rear admiral.

Populist Convention Opens.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—The state convention of the Populist party of New Jersey opened here today. A number of national leaders of the party, including T. P. Ryndor, the chairman of the national committee, and Thomas Watson, the party's candidate for president, are here.

A FLORIDA LYNCHING.

Body of Wash Bradley Found Badly Mutilated.

BRUNSON, Fla., Sept. 7.—The body of Wash Bradley, the negro who murdered Mrs. N. B. Barrow here, has been found with both ears cut from his head, slashes down his back and his arms almost severed with buckshot. His body had been hung to a tree and riddled with bullets. Bradley's capture was made by Shed and Walter Howard, two negroes, at the home of another negro near Tondou, two miles north of Perryville, just at sunset last night. He had gone there for the purpose of stealing a shotgun for a revolver. When they overpowered him they disarmed him and tied him hand and foot and delivered him to the neighbors of the settlement. The Barrow family were notified, and the news of his capture spread until a large mob appeared, with the result mentioned.

Bradley confessed his guilt, stating that he went to the Barrow residence for the purpose of criminally assaulting their daughter. At the time Mrs. Barrow was shot she held a baby at her breast, and its escape was miraculous.

JAPANESE-KOREAN TREATY.

Minister Takahira Notifies United States of Its Ratification.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The state department has received through Minister Takahira formal notice of the conclusion of the new treaty between Japan and Korea providing for Japanese advisers to the Korean king and for Japanese approval of future treaties and concessions.

In his note of transmittal Minister Takahira repeats the same assurances as had already been given to the European chancelleries to the effect that the new treaty is merely the logical outcome of the protocol of last February and a guarantee for the observance of existing treaty obligations.

The state department has taken due note of the arrangement by an acknowledgment of the minister's communication, but does not feel called upon at this time to pass judgment upon the attitude of the principals.

Distinguished National Guests.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The members of the interparliamentary union, a body comprising delegates from England and from every legislative body in Europe, were the guests of the United States when a tour of the country began under the auspices of this government. Distinguished members of the various parliaments of the old world to the number of 185 were officially welcomed to these shores at the Military academy after a trip up the Hudson river from New York on board United States revenue cutters Mohawk and Gresham.

Senator Platt's Old Song Book.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The press bureau of the Republican state headquarters has issued a publication giving extracts from a campaign song book which is the property of Senator T. C. Platt and was used by him in the Fremont campaign of 1856, when he was a member of the Tioga County Glee club. Some of the songs are to be sung at the semicentennial of the organization of the Republican party to be held at Saratoga Sept. 14.

Lumber Mills Set on Fire.

MEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 7.—The lumber mill of Shaw & Lemby and the buildings of the Howland Coal company in South Medford were gutted by fire last night, entailing a loss of $20,000. The blaze is believed to have been incendiary.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FALL FASHIONS.

Hats Are to Be of Fearful and Wonderful Pattern.

The glory of the summer girl is about to lose its luster, and she is already thinking about what to get for her fall suits and hats. And, oh, those hats! I think we have never yet had anything in the line of hats to compare with these in point of ugliness, and yet we had some pretty bad looking things the past summer. The new hats are as large around as cart wheels and have the brims of one color and the crowns of another, each a little worse than the last. There are gray felts with brims large and round, and these have quite prominent crowns in a brilliant orange. Red verging on yellow and yellow verging on red seem to be the best liked of all the combinations to put with the drab or gray brims. Some black brims are also endowed with surprising contrasts of color. How these contrivances are ever going to look well on a woman passes my understanding, but I suppose they will.

I saw in one place one large brown hat with a yellow crown, and on each side was an immense paradise plume in shaded yellow from cream to deep orange. One may judge that orange is to be a favorite color if the new hats now making are to be criterions. Bright green is also seen in many cases, and all the way through there seems to be a desire to have only the most pronounced of the primary colors.

Velvet in these decided colors is to be largely employed as trimming—that is to say, drapery—but I fancy that drooping feathers are going to be very popular.

So many of the new gowns now in course of construction are made with wide and full skirts that one might be excused for saying that all are to be so, but there are many women who will cling to the snug ones as long as possible. Of course these are modified and have either tucks or shirrings to bring them in closely to the hips and allow them to flow out widely at the foot. The illustration shows how the plan is carried out. In many of the new gowns a feature is made of having the front seam down the center, something which would have been considered rank heresy a year ago. This allows a new arrangement of the shirring. The dress in the illustration is of the pretty and durable new peau de crepe. It is made over a slip lining and the three separate parts are superposed. The bottom of each is hemmed and trimmed with a transparent silk mull ruching in the same tint, which in this case was about the natural pongee. It was shirred closely at the hips, in three lines of shirring each being run several times.

The waist was in bloused shape, the silk was entirely covered with all over lace, and this in turn trimmed effectively with a banding of black lace and shirred ruches of black silk mull. The sleeves were covered with lace and had three deep falls at the lower part of the arm. Tiny shirring of white silk mull finished it at the neck.

This I call the last rose of summer, for it is among the last of the new designs for such wear, but it is safe to say that it will be worn long into the fall, with the addition of one of the short and dressy Monte Carlo coats in pongee with a heavy lace collar. These in various slightly different shapes are to be quite as popular as ever, and rightly so. They are more dressy and elegant than any reefer can be, and are easier to get on and off. The bolero shaped trimming is quite a fad in the handsomest of the new ones. I mean that the lace trimming is laid on the yoke of the coat in such a way as to suggest one. Boleros will still be liked and seen on many of the finest of the dresses for late fall, and probably winter, for nowadays fashion picks out a good thing and holds to it, and if necessary varies it a trifle, but keeps the original idea. Boleros are becoming to every one, from children to old ladies.

Waists follow the lead of the boleros and are not made by any hard and fast set rule. Some look and feel better in snug effects, and these can be had, for there are many fine tight waisted suits with or without white vests and with or without basques at the back. Many others still cling to the loose waists with their blouse effects, and each has its votaries, but many more tight suits are now seen than for a long time.

OLIVE HARPER.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1903, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"And I thought her," raged the old man, contemptuously disregarding him, "like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. Monsieur, you have betrayed my trust, you have violated my sacred hospitality, you have compromised my grandchild in the eyes of the world, you have well-nigh ruined my house. You belong to a race I have loathed and hated. This old arm, withered as you see, has used up its strength in striking blows upon your people. I would fain have your life, monsieur," he continued sternly. "Nay, I shall have it presently; but before you die you must cover your actions before God and man, with the sanction, the poor sanction of your dishonorable name."

"Monsieur," cried Grafton in amazement, "what mean you?"

"Grandfather," interrupted Anne, "I am innocent of everything except loving Monsieur Grafton. That I cannot help. I swear to you that I am—as I was—when you first took me in your arms—except for love."

"By heaven, sir," exclaimed Grafton, "are you mad? Can you not see?"

"Silence!" said the old man. "There must be a wedding here to-night. Things are permitted a husband which are denied a lover—wedlock covers all. Mademoiselle de Rohan, you must marry this man."

"'Tis the dearest wish of my heart, sir," cried Anne.

"Monsieur le Marquis," said Philip, bewildered, "what mean you? Do you consent to my suit, then? Heavens! 'Tis impossible!"

"Consent? No, monsieur, I demand of you, nay, I order, I command you, if there is a vestige of honor in you, that you marry this misguided girl, that you rehabilitate her in the eyes of the world."

"The world knows nothing, and there is nothing to know, sir."

"In my eyes, then."

It was a puzzling situation. Philip longed for nothing so much as to call Anne de Rohan his wife, yet apparently consenting to this ceremony he would be putting some sort of stigma upon her honor or her reputation.

"I can not, monsieur, upon this compulsion," he faltered hesitatingly.

"Philip!" cried Anne, who saw nothing of what was passing in his mind and who heard only his refusal, his denial of her. "You refuse me? You betray my heart? Ah, that woman in the locket! Oh, mon Dieu, mon grandpere, kill me, kill me! He loves me not, I am rejected!"

She nearly fainted with the shock and the agony of the moment.

"Monsieur," said the old marquis, his eyes gleaming with anger and determination, "will you marry this girl? Think well before you refuse, sir. The hand of a de Rohan has been offered twice to no one before. Say No, and I kill her before your eyes, and you shall follow her to death. We may wash out the stain upon our honor in blood, perhaps, if not in marriage."

"Enough!" cried Philip, thinking swiftly of the end to be gained and putting everything else aside. "I take her gladly, joyfully, thankfully; not from any threat of yours, old man, but because I love her, and by giving her my name I will have the right to protect her from further insult even from you."

"Without, there!" called the marquis, stepping to the hall. "Ask Monseigneur the Archbishop of Vannes to come hither instantly. He has not yet left the castle. Speak to your prospective wife, monsieur, if you will while we wait. I can promise you no further opportunities after you are married," continued the old man, turning to the door.

"WITHOUT, THERE!"

It was the one touch of human kindness he had exhibited in the whole interview.

"Why did you hesitate, Philip?" whispered the girl reproachfully, as she looked fondly at him. "You refused me. You almost broke my heart. To lose you now would kill me."

"Only because I seemed to be putting a stigma upon you by consenting," he said softly in reply. "Your grandfather thinks that your honor—forgive my saying it—demands our marriage."

"What matter his thoughts? We know."

"Yes, and I was a fool. You will be my wife, my own, in one moment. You can go away with me with a clear conscience then. And when you are mine let me see the man who will dare question aught!"

"O Philip, I am so happy! 'Tis like life from death. I thought you lost, and now——"

The archbishop at that moment appeared in the doorway attended by Jean-Renaud.

"You sent for me, my dear marquis?" he said blandly, but in great surprise.

"I did, monseigneur."

"And for what purpose, pray?"

"I want you to solemnize a marriage, that of my granddaughter and this—this—gentleman."

"What, monsieur!"

"And now, too!"

"But, Monsieur le Marquis, did you not say she was betrothed to the Count de Kersaint?"

"Monseigneur," answered the marquis haughtily, "here is a strange mischance. I can not tell the tale, but the honor of my house requires a marriage, now and instantly, between this young man and the Countess Anne de Rohan. I jest not, monseigneur. Morbleu! do I look like a man who trifles? You have known me of old, most reverend sir, I mean what I say. The marriage must take place!"

"But Monsieur de Kersain?"

"God help him when he knows the truth!" said the marquis. "Will you proceed, monseigneur?"

"The young man is of our faith?"

"No, monseigneur," answered Grafton. "I am a Protestant."

"But you can dispense with that yourself, monseigneur," interrupted the marquis promptly. "I tell you nothing shall prevent this."

"If the young man consents to—— Will you bring up the children of this union, should any be born to you, in the faith of the Holy Roman Catholic church, monsieur?" asked the prelate.

"I will, so help me God," answered Philip promptly.

"There will be no children," interrupted the marquis grimly. "Will you now proceed?"

"But we lack an altar, vestments, lights, attendants, witnesses, marquis?"

"No altar is needed here, and as for witnesses, I am one, Josette is another, and if you want a third, here is Jean-Renaud—people upon whom I can rely."

"Mademoiselle," said the perplexed archbishop, turning to Anne, "do you wish to marry this man?"

"Yes, monseigneur."

"Do you love him?"

"With all my heart."

"And you, monsieur?" he continued, looking at Grafton.

"My love and desire, most reverend sir, more than match her own, yet I must say, I protest that this hasty marriage implies no doubt upon the honor of the lady who takes my name."

"Hell and furies!" cried the marquis inconsistently, "who dares to imply such a thing! Monseigneur, will you proceed, or shall I kill this man before your eyes?"

The brief words which mean so much and bind so fast were soon spoken. Philip and Anne made the responses, and kneeling before the aged cleric received his benediction. As soon as he had finished, the archbishop, realizing that here was a delicate situation, discreetly withdrew and left the participants in this strange wedding alone once more. As they rose to their feet the Englishman turned to the woman, all his thoughts swept away in the knowledge that at last she was his wife.

"My own, my own!" he cried, taking her in his arms. But before he could press one kiss upon her forehead the marquis intervened.

"No, sir," he cried, "you have dishonored the house of Rohan. You have made what amends you could by marrying the girl. That is all. You shall never see your wife again. I shall kill you where you stand. The connection shall end that way. Draw, sir!" cried the old man, shaking his blade in the other's face. "Defend yourself, if you can."

"I will not cross swords with a man old enough to be my grandfather," answered Grafton—"one who stands in such a relationship as you to the lady I am happy to call my wife. By your consent, by your urging, we were married. She is mine before Heaven itself. No man may part her from me. She goes with me."

"How will you take her hence, pray?"

"By this window, through which I came," cried Grafton, lifting up his wife in his arms and springing backward.

"A moi!" called the marquis loudly. The servants came running into the room in response to this call.

"Ha!" cried the marquis. "The Baron de Croisic's way! 'Tis his tower. You shall end like the lover of the fair Jehane. Jean-Renaud, seize this man."

Jean-Renaud stepped forward slowly. His affections were with his young mistress, and he secretly admired the gallant Englishman who had won her, yet his duty bade him obey the marquis.

"Back!" cried Grafton, whipping out his pistol and pointing it at Jean-Renaud. "A step nearer and you are a dead man."

The man stopped short; he knew decision when he met it.

"'Tis true you have the advantage, Monsieur le Marquis. I can not take Madame Grafton away from you to-night, alone as I am, but be certain that I will come back for her with force that cannot be denied. I shall have her if I have to tear down the castle stone by stone. Take good care of madame, sir," Grafton continued insolently, "I leave her in your charge. Back, you cattle!" he cried, swinging his pistol toward the servants and lackeys, who were huddled together in the rear of Jean-Renaud. "Anne, wife, farewell!"

"Monsieur," said the marquis, striving to regain his wonted calmness, "you may storm the castle if you will. You will not find madame here. When the French fleet sails in the morning we go with her. Now, men, upon him!"

Grafton discharged his pistol at the nearest valet, and as the man fell he hurled the empty weapon into the midst of the rest. With one look at Anne he turned and sprang through the oriel window. He grasped the rope and slid down it rapidly.

The men surged toward the balcony. Anne sprang between them. She caught the marquis by the arm and Josette seized Jean-Renaud, but the rest swarmed past them and filled the balcony. One of the men lifted a dagger to cut the rope. A deafening roar rang out in the night; the man screamed with pain and his arm dropped to his side. Another shot was heard. The crowd shrank back for a few seconds and Grafton reached the foot of the tower. He scrambled down the rocks to find old Jabez, smoking musket in his hand, waiting for him in the prow of the boat.

"Who fired?" he cried.

"'Twas me, yer Honor; I was a-watchin' the winder. I seen yer Honor come out, then I seen the man raise the knife, an' I blazed away at him. I hain't forgot how to shoot nuther."

"You saved me," cried Grafton. "Shove off the boat. Lively! Break out the oars; we must get away."

Slocum sprang to the oars and Grafton seized the tiller. The balcony above was filled with men now. The old marquis was there, and Anne—his wife. He could spare only a second for a glance. The light from blazing torches threw a dim illumination down upon the little bay. A woman screamed. Shots rang out, bullets spattered the water all about them.

"Are you hit, Jabez?"

"No, sir; be you?"

"I'm all right, too; pull, man, pull, for God's sake!"

Presently they were in the entrance and out of danger. The wind was blowing offshore. The night was mild and pleasant now. The moon was shining. They easily threaded their way among the rocks. The mast was stepped, the sail set, and the little boat raced out to sea. They were away, they were free.

"Beg parding, sir, did you git wot yau went fer?" asked Jabez, after a while.

"Yes," answered Grafton. "The French ships are to sail for Quiberon Bay at six in the morning."

"Aan' the leddy, sir?"

"I married her."

"Good Lord!" exclaimed the old man under his breath. "Quick work, that! An' you left your wife?"

"With her grandfather, Slocum. She sails on Le Thesee with the fleet in the morning. Not a word of this to the men, as you value my approval. You have done well and I shall not forget it."

"Thank Heaven, you have come!" exclaimed Hatfield, as the dinghy swept alongside the gangway of the Maidstone and Grafton clambered on board. "I had almost given you up."

"What time is it?" asked the captain.

Before Hatfield could answer eight bells rang out forward on the forecastle.

"In the very nick of time!" exclaimed Grafton.

"Look yonder, sir," said the lieutenant, pointing away.

The ships in the harbor were ablaze with lights. They were getting under way.

"Ay," said Grafton, "they are leaving this morning, now. The wind has changed. They are going to Quiberon. Square away immediately, and crack everything on. We must get the news to Sir Edward before night."

"And the lady?" queried Hatfield. "Did you see her?"

"Yes," answered Grafton, smiling. "I not only saw her, but I married her. Come into the cabin after you are on the course and I will tell you all about it."

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE ADMIRAL GETS THE NEWS.

It was early in the morning of the fourteenth day of November, 1759. The Maidstone was gently swinging into Torbay. The wind, which had been blowing hard from the southwest during the night, had moderated until it was now a gentle breeze, so that every cloth of canvas, including her studding-sails, was spread on the frigate to catch and hold the light air. Grafton and Hatfield stood on the weather side of the quarter-deck eagerly surveying the roadstead.

The harbor was crowded with great ships of the line, huge monsters, swinging to their anchors, prows pointed out to sea under the incoming tide, now at full flood. The one nearest to the Maidstone, and consequently the farthest from the shore, was a magnificent vessel of three decks, carrying 100 guns. From her main-masthead a small blue flag could be seen fluttering, which denoted the rank of the commander of the fleet, a full admiral.

DECLARE ROYAL MARRIAGE.

Crown Prince and Duchess Cecilia to Wed at Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The wedding of Crown Prince Frederick William and the Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg Schwerin will take place in Berlin where the visiting members of royal families can be entertained better than at the bride's home. The marriage will probably take place early in the new year.

One wing of the royal palace at Hanover has been undergoing reconstruction for a year and is now being refurnished and redecorated sumptuously Train loads of costly paintings, gobelins and stately furniture have disappeared behind the palace gates, and the Hanoverians are convinced that Crown Prince Frederick William after his marriage will be promoted and transferred from the First Grade de Corps to the Royal Uhlan regiment stationed at Hanover and will be assigned the palace there as a residence.

Such an arrangement would be regarded as further evidence of the emperor's desire to win the hearts of such of the Hanoverians as are still unwilling to forgive Prussia for displacing the Cumberlands from the throne.

VERMONT ELECTION.

Bell For Governor and Stearns Lieutenant Governor.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Vermont has elected a governor and other state officers, two members of congress, thirty state senators and one representative from each city and town. As was expected, the Republicans were generally victorious, electing their entire ticket and maintaining control of the legislature by the usual large majority. The day passed without special incident. The weather was fine, and the vote was normal for a presidential year.

The state officers elected are: Governor, Charles J. Bell of Walden; lieutenant governor, Charles H. Stearns of Johnson; treasurer, John L. Bacon of Hartford; secretary of state, Frederick G. Fleetwood of Morrisville; auditor of accounts, Horace F. Graham of Craftsbury.

David J. Foster of Burlington was elected to congress from the First district and Kittredge Haskins of Brattleboro from the Second district.

Dubois Death Mystery.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 7.—In all probability the mystery of the death of Louise Dubois, the pretty mill girl whose body was found on the rocks at Woodmont, will never be solved. Coroner Mix has practically abandoned the case, being unable to ascertain just how the girl came to her death. In a finding which he has issued he says that owing to the lack of evidence to substantiate the parents' belief that the girl was murdered he must decide that the girl took her own life.

Olney and Miles at Rosemount.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Several Democrats were at Rosemount to visit Judge Parker who are taking an active part in shaping the course of the campaign. Judge Parker's guests included Richard Olney of Massachusetts, Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, retired; John R. McLean of Ohio, a member of the national executive committee, and Judge Daniel McConville, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the national committee.

Dynamite Failed to Kill.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 7.—A residence occupied by two negro women, Sallie Carney and Ella Jenkins, in an eastern suburb of this city has been blown up by dynamite. The two women were asleep in a bed in the front room, and beneath this part of the house the dynamite was placed. While the room was torn to pieces and the bed demolished, the two women escaped unhurt.

German Emperor at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Sept. 7.—Emperor William, in a speech thanking the burgomaster for the welcome accorded him on his arrival here, recalled his visit in October, 1890, and the speech he then made appealing for the creation of a great navy. The success of that appeal, he said, was to be seen in the flower of the German navy, lying at anchor at the mouth of the Elbe.

THE MOQUI INDIANS

INCIDENTS OF A VISIT TO INTERESTING NATIVES.

Village of the Aborigines in Western Arizona Which Had Not Been Visited by a White Man for Over a Year.

Late in the fall of 1872, a little party of government officials, including an army officer, an Indian agent, and an interpreter, set out from Fort Wingate, New Mexico, for the Moqui Pueblo Indian villages in western Arizona. A number of attendants closely followed the party, having in charge a pack train conveying goods for distribution to the Indians. For more than a week the journey lay through the Navajo Indian country along the southern border of the picturesque "Painted Desert" region, and beyond to the bank of the Little Colorado. Once across that tortuous affluent of the Grand Colorado, the trial led westward for more than a fortnight, traversing a broad, barren plateau that ended finally at the base of a great, detached, flat-topped mountain on which Hualpi, the most eastern Pueblo of the Moqui group had been built.

The people of the town were greatly surprised to see their visitors. Nearly a year, they said, had elapsed since any white men had found their way to the Pueblo, and they had begun to accept as true the revelations made in a dream to Huitupi, a medicine man, that a wide spread cataclysm had destroyed all human beings except themselves.

Ordinarily strangers visiting the Pueblo were taken for shelter to a subterranean room, known as the "estufa," a cavernous place sunk in the sandstone rock on which the village stood, for use as a council chamber and a general lounging place. Thither the party would have gone had not the "Governador" insisted that it should take up its abode in an empty building in the town where it would be more accessible by the people.

The building was found to be acceptable and as soon as the agency goods brought by the train, could be opened and arranged, the distribution of annuities and presents began.

When the ceremony was well under way the agent turned aside for a moment to take a dose of quinine for some ailment from which he suffered. He quickly discovered that the drug had escaped from the packages in which he carried it and lay loose in his vest pocket. Taking into the palm of his hand what seemed an ordinary dose he hastily swallowed it. The act was observed by an officious old Indian who evidently conveived the idea that the agent was appropriating to his personal use some good things that properly belonged to the Indians. Turning quickly upon the Agent he demanded a share of the thing the official was appropriating to himself, whatever it might be. The agent made no objections and offered no explanations. Quietly approaching the Indian he motioned the man to open his mouth and when that was accomplished he dropped into it a quarter of a teaspoonful of the drug.

The story book tells us that the Indian is a stoical, emotionless creature, but if these are true characteristics of the race the individual in question was an exception to the rule. He went off at once into ludicrous contortions of body and face, that set every one about him, even the Indians themselves, into paroxysms of laughter.

The quinine incident was scarcely over when an old warlor whose wrinkled face seemed to confirm his assertion that he had seen more than a hundred winters on the Hualpi "mesa," forced his way to the front and meekly asked for a piece of fresh beef. Once, he said, in his boyhood days he had visited a military port where he had been given all the beef he could eat. He confided to the Agent in pathetic tones that he would be ready to die if he could only once more satisfy his appetite in the same manner. He was a firm friend of the white man, he continued, and one meal of beef by way of reciprocity, was all he desired. But when he was informed that the mess chests of his visitors were empty of his coveted food, his friendship quickly cooled, and his language directly became offensive. He moved away finally, heaping anathemas as he went upon the heads of his visitors for not including fresh beef among their presents for the Moquies. The friendship of such people, he loudly exclaimed, had ceased to be of value or to be desired by the invincible warriors of the great Moqui nation.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

In view of his work during the past few games in which he has shown up as a weak batter and inexperienced as a fielder, Manager Johnston, of the Plainfield A. C., has decided to let Charles Walton, the short-stop, go. This decision was made Monday night. Those who have followed Walton's work closely have noticed that at critical times he has made errors that were costly. Mr. Johnston realizes and predicts that Walton will be a valuable man after he has had more experience, but he does not feel like keeping him for the remainder of the season, when he wants to make a strong bid for victories in the contests yet to be played.

Mr. Johnston hopes to sign Hartman, of the Burlington, Vermont, team, for short. He is rated very high as a fielder and hitter by Captain Smith. He is a brother of Hartman, of the Fordham College team, and efforts will be made to have him in Saturday's game against Westfield.

Owing to lack of space the box scores of the Plainfield-Westfield game at Westfield Monday morning and the Plainfield Star A. C. game on Crescent Oval in the afternoon, were omitted yesterday. The scores are as follows:

STOLE A CHILD'S BANK.

Burglar in Dunellen Got Little for His Efforts.

After forcing an entrance to the home of John Doty on Dunellen avenue, Dunellen, early Monday morning, and ransacking the lower rooms, a burglar found nothing but a child's bank to reward him for his misapplied energy. He adjourned to the front porch to pry the bank open and had to flash a lantern on it. The light reflected on the window pane of Mrs. Day's residence, directly next door, and happening to see it, she got up and struck a match to learn the cause. This frightened the industrious burglar and he fled, leaving the bank behind him.

FOUND BODY OF MR. BENTON

Missing Plainfielder Met His Death in the Harlem River Five Days Ago.

IN MORGUE SINCE

Was Identified Yesterday by Asa F. Randolph, of This City—Benton Disappeared From Plainfield Aug. 23.

An unidentified body taken from the Harlem River at the foot of Dyckman street, Manhattan, on September 5 and held since at the morgue by the Coroner awaiting identification, proves to be that of William S. Benton, of this city, who has been missing since

Wm. S. Benton.

August 23. It is supposed that he either fell from a boat or committed suicide while temporarily unbalanced mentally.

Noticing in a New York paper the brief mention of an unidentified body in the New York morgue, A. F. Randolph, accompanied by A. M. Griffen, in whose hardware house Mr. Benton was a bookkeeper for twelve years past, and Dr. Eaton, of Elizabeth, an old friend and the missing man's dentist went to examine it. They identified it at once. The body was not disfigured in any way. It had been in the water about five days and was in a state of perfect preservation.

Mr. Randolph and Elmer E. Runyon will bring the remains to this city today for burial at Hillside, where the dead man's wife and daughter, Rachel, are interred. W. S. Benton, who is survived by one daughter, Miss Evelina DuBois Benton, the well-known elocutionist, resided on Rahway road about thirty years ago, in what is known as the Praed property. Recently he and his daughter had resided at 109 Central avenue, where they had rooms.

Mr. Benton left home early Tuesday morning, August 23, and it was thought possible that he had gone to join his daughter who was in the Catskills. The police were finally notified and they started a search.

NEIGHBORS MORE ANGRY

Increasing Indignation Over Alleged "Spite" House.

IT EFFECTS PROPERTY

Many Valuable Estates Surrounding An Unsightly and Cheap Structure.

Indignation runs higher than ever among the residents of East Front street, near Farragut avenue, against the persons responsible for the erection of the alleged spite house on the old Magee property nearly opposite former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph's beautiful estate. Mr. Randolph's place represents an outlay of $75,000 or more and is equalled by several other magnificent properties in the immediate vicinity, but the nuisances perpetrated by the present owners of the Magee place may render this beautiful neighborhood highly undesirable.

The accompanying illustration shows the original contribution of the alleged "neighborhood wreckers" toward the attractiveness of the street. Since it was taken however, a shanty has been put up which is pronounced by the neighbors to be a hideous disfigurement during the hours of daylight, as well as the nightly abode of twenty or thirty Italians whose evening relaxations do not contribute very decidedly to the repose and comfort of occupants of neighbors.

Their outdoor cooking has, perhaps, the merit of being picturesque, but it is said they have taken to foraging abroad for fuel to an extent that threatens the sightliness of trees and shrubbery on nearby estates. To complete the offensiveness of this most recent outrage, an outhouse has been erected without a permit, it is alleged, within forty feet of the street and has already begun to add its odor to the varied assortment of smells which emanate from this spot and, like a Japanese army, assault their victims from all sides at once.

Although several letters were received by former Mayor Randolph from a man who professed to be able to engineer a deal whereby the residents of the vicinity could buy up the place in question, the people chiefly interested consider such offers as being nearly in the light of blackmail and refuse absolutely to open negotiations on that basis. They expect to secure full satisfaction from the authorities before proceedings pending in the city court are completed. Meanwhile Marra, the present owner, insists upon his "rights" to use the place as suits him best.

WEALTHY GIRL HIS BRIDE

Miss Mabel G. Lefler the Wife of George D. Whitley.

NEW MARKET WEDDING

She Was the Favorite Niece of the Late Mrs. Charles L. Fair—He is a Plainfield Draughtsman.

Miss Mabel Edna Lefler, niece of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, and George Thomas Whitley, son of Francis Whitley, of Essex street, were married last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle, Abram G. Nelson, in New Market. Miss Lefler recently came into possession of a share of the estate left by her aunt, Mrs. Charles L. Fair.

The wedding was attended by many from New Market, Plainfield, Dunellen, as well as New York, Caldwell, Colorado, Boston, Brooklyn and other places. The Nelson home was handsomely decorated in green and white for the affair, while in the parlor where the ceremony was performed, there was arranged an improvised altar, surrounding which was a bank of flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, and the wedding marches were played on the piano by Miss Irene Day, of New Market.

The bride was attended by Miss Martha C. Bunnell, of Union, as maid-of-honor, and Miss Dorothy Bunnell, of Union, and Miss Hannah Nelson, of New Market, as flower girls. All are cousins of the bride. The best man was Henry A. Pearce, of Essex street, and the usher were John I. Nelson, of New Market, and Theodore W. Lefler, of Union, a brother of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Abram G. Nelson.

The bride was gowned in embroidered silk mull and she wore a tulle veil and lilies-of-the-valley and carried a shower bouquet of roses. The maid-of-honor's gown was embroidered cream musline, trimmed with lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses. The flower girls wore gowns of pale blue silk mull and carried baskets of flowers.

After the ceremony a reception was held during which supper was served by Stevenson. While the couple was receving congratulations an attractive programme of music was rendered by Miss Day on the piano. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Whitley left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Boston. They will be away two weeks and upon their return will reside at the groom's home.

The bride received from the groom a pearl brooch. The bride gave her maid-of-honor a pearl brooch and the groom gave his best man and ushers pearl stick pins. There was a wealth of wedding gifts received by the couple from relatives and friends, including a chest of solid silver from J. E. Chandler, Esq., counsel for Mrs. Hannah Nelson, the bride's grandmother. Mr. Whitley's associate workmen in The Walter Scott Printing Machine Works gave him a costly gold clock. The other gifts included furniture, china, silverware, cut glass, linen and many other articles of use and value.

The bride has made her home in New Market for some time, while her aunt, Mrs. Charles L. Fair, paid for her education. She is a modest and attractive young woman and has a host of friends. Mr. Whitley met her while playing on the New Market baseball team as pitcher. The groom is a member of the Hope Y. M. A. and the Y. M. C. A. and Court Plainfield, Independent Order of Foresters. Until recently, when the team disbanded for the season he was the pitcher for the Y. M. C. A. nine and was also considered one of the best players in this vicinity. He is popular with his friends and associates, all of whom wish him success and happiness. Mr. Whitley will continue to follow his business in the draughting department at The Walter Scott Printing Machine Works.

Among some of the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leonard, of Caldwell; Mrs. Edwin Lefler, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. William Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jamieson, Mrs. and Miss Waters, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barclay, of Jersey City; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of Boulder, Col., Mr. and Mrs. John Bunnell of Union.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION ENJOYS A "SPREAD"

MEMBERS MET LAST NIGHT FOR A GOOD TIME.

Plainfield Typographical Union, No. 899, met last night in its rooms in the Washington Hall building on West Second street, and received one proposition for membership, and also transacted considerable routine business.

At the meeting the committee previously appointed to arrange for a smoker, reported that they had performed its duties and a "spread" was awaiting the members at Blimm's Hotel, on Somerset street. After adjournment the members hied themselves to the scene of the "lay-out."

L. W. Niles acted as toastmaster and some of the toasts responded to showed that the members of 899 had prepared themselves for the occasion. After the "inner man" had been looked after an informal programme of song and dance was rendered. James Kermode rendered "My Wild Irish Rose" in great shape, followed by "The Stowaway" as an encore. Then little "Willie" Dunne, of New Brunswick sang "Meet Me in St. Louis," and as an encore "All Aboard For Dreamland." Songs were also rendered by Frazee Putnam, J. Emerson Mewen, William Bond, William Smith, "Jack" Brennan, L. W. Niles, E. C. Searing, D. J. Carney and J. B. Hurlburt. Robert Scott gave a clog dance and Fred Meeker gave a sleight-of-hand performance.

Altogether the affair was an enjoyable one, and it was near midnight when the members started homeward.

MIDDLEKAUFF DECLARES ARREST IS MALICIOUS

PLAINFIELDER ACCUSED OF FRAUD RELEASED ON HIS RECOGNIZANCE.

Arrested yesterday morning by Detective McCarthy, on warrant issued in Millville, E. D. Middlekauff, of Watchung avenue, was released on his own recognizance there at a hearing yesterday afternoon. It is alleged that Middlekauff sold 100,000 shares of National Oil stock to the late Theodore VanErva, of Vineland, upon false representation of dividends, defrauding him of $11,882. The charge is made by VanErva's daughter, Mrs. Opdyke, of Vineland. Through his counsel, Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, Mr. Middlekauff made the following statement this morning:

"Concerning that oil stock affair, I can only say that the attack throughout is absolutely groundless and malicious. I am in possession of facts which will enable me to secure complete vindication from the charge, and for the sake of my reputation in business circles in the city, I shall have the matter shown absolutely false."

Middlekauff's case will come up for a hearing at Millville next week.

CITY THRASHES BOROUGH

Smalley's Aggregation Fails to Annex Itself to Victory.

PLAINFIELD'S BY 5 TO 1

City Clerk MacMurray Gets Together a Winning Team on Crescent Oval.

The bi-municipal baseball played on Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, between Plainfield and North Plainfield, resulted in a victory for Plainfield, the score being 5 to 1. The contest attracted a good sized crowd, including a number of city and borough officials. The one run made by the borough aggregation was due to a three-bagger by Hoyt, who afterward scored on John Martin's error, while Montross was touched in lively fashion, netting a total of five runs for the city team. Squires pitched for City Clerk J. T. MacMurray's nine, and he held his opponents down in clever fashion. His work as well as that of Mayor N. B. Smalley for the borough team, were features.

Brit Martin made four hits, one two-timer and three singles. An exciting stage was in the fifth inning, when Mayor Smalley, Hoyt and Jacot each singled and three men on base, Townley flied out to third, retiring the side.

In the first inning, Allen singled to right and went to second when Mayor Smalley failed to stop the grounder. Barnes hit to short, but was safe when Wooiston dropped the ball. Allen advanced to third on misplay. Daily then doubled to left field, scoring Allen and Barnes and he came home on Brit Martin's two bagger.

In the fourth inning Brit Martin singled and was safe on second on Moore's wild throw and came home when McCullough failed to stop the throw.

Brit Martin started the sixth inning with a single, stole second, was advanced to third on John Martin's single and came home. This ended the scoring for either side.

John Cose and Howard Wooiston commenced the contest as umpire and in the fifth inning, upon the arrival of City Judge Runyon, Mr. Cose retired in his favor. The work of umpires was fair and impartial to both teams.

VANDERVOORT GENEROUS

He Wanted to Deposit His "Claims" to Release Woman.

IMAGINARY FORTUNE

Former Plainfielders's Offer to Give Bail for "Nan" Patterson Was Refused.

When Nan Patterson, who is charged with killing Caesar Young, opened her mail in the Tombs, Manhattan, yesterday morning, she found a letter signed John R. Vandervoort, 250 West 144th street, who resided in Plainfield for many years. The writer said he had taken a deep interest in Miss Patterson's case, that he owned property worth $3,000,000, and that if somebody would come up to see him he would be happy to bail her out.

The actress's father hurried to see Mr. Vandervoort. He found an old man dressed rather shabbily, but sure that he had $3,000,000, which was at the disposal of the prisoner. Mr. Patterson took him to the bail bureau of the District Attorney's office. The old man carried with him a large bundle of legal documents wrapped up in a newspaper.

Assistant District Attorney Miner found that they were court decisions affecting property in Harlem, showing that a person named Vandervoort had laid claim to the old Jumel property.

He has turned up before with his mythical millions. While living in Plainfield several years ago he made over to the Salvation Army, the Volunteers of America and other charitable organizations a part of his supposed Harlem property. About a year ago he walked into the Register's office and filed a deed transferring part of his share of Harlem to another person for $1. He has also advertised offers for his claims against the city for occupation of his lands.

The claims amount to $6,000,000. He believes that they were transferred to him by a grandson of Mme. Jumel. He announced after the Slocum disaster that he would defray all the funeral expenses of the victims.

CONGRESSIONAL HONORS IN STORE FOR F. B. LEE

TRENTON HISTORIAN MAY OPPOSE REPUBLICAN NOMINEE IN FOURTH DIST.

Former State Senator Jonathan H. Blackwell, of Mercer; John A. Freich, of Somerset, and Peter D. Rockefeller, of Hunterdon, comprising the Democratic Congressional committee from the Fourth district, met at Trenton yesterday and fixed Saturday, September 24, as the date for the Congressional convention, which will be held at Somerville.

The committee agreed upon Francis B. Lee, of Trenton, as the Congressional candidate, and inasmuch as there are no other candidates from this, the largest of the three counties, and no active aspirants from either of the smaller counties, his nomination is looked upon as practically assured.

Mr. Lee is a son of Benjamin F. Lee, who for some thirty years was clerk of the Supreme Court and a recognized leader of the Democratic forces in this State. The prospective Congressional candidate is a lawyer. He is also the author of the "History of Trenton" and other works bearing upon the early history of this State, of whose affairs in bygone days he has been a close student. Friends say he may not accept the honor.

His opponent on the Republican side will be former Assemblyman Ira W. Wood.

FEAST OF SANTA MARIA

Italian Celebration Attended by Big Crowds.

FINE BAND CONCERT

Grand Pyrotechnic Display—Another Demonstration Tonight.

Concluding the first day's celebration of the Feast of Santa Maria by local Italian societies of the city and borough, a really excellent band concert, ending with an elaborate display of fireworks, was held last evening in Concert Park. They do say there was frost last night, but not at Concert Park. No, Indeed. They were all there, the "tender plants," too. Swathed in shawls, jerseys, and nubias, they flocked to the grounds, applauded the musical numbers, and "Ah's" the fireworks.

When Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, announced the sale of bleacher seats for ten cents, they were filled with a rush. The crowd numbered over five thousand, came early, and stayed through all the numbers.

The Carabinieri band, twenty-seven strong, under the leadership of S. Nardiello, proved unwearied after their morning and afternoon concerts and after their strenuous work at the city-borough official baseball game and rendered a varied programme of religious pieces, Italian national anthems and American popular airs.

Promptly at 9:30, the fireworks committee commenced operations, setting off ten elaborate set pieces and a variety of bombs, parachute rockets and mines. The set pieces consisted of all sorts of double whizzes, back-hand flips in fire, red, white and blue and gold showers and lights. There was no single hitch in the management and the display was well appreciated.

Today is the last day of the feast. There was the usual parade and informal concerts by the band during the morning and afternoon. In the evening, the concluding concert of the celebration will be held at the Park. A good programme, introducing popular music is promised and the remaining fireworks, nearly double the number set off last evening will be displayed. Salvo Velard, the leader, and the Italian committee in charge report the financial end of the affair more gratifying than at the conclusion of the celebration in July, and feel gratified at the support given by the public.

AMUSEMENTS.

Encore after encore caused the Rogers Brothers to sing themselves almost hoarse Monday night at the New Amsterdam Theatre, where they presented their latest entertainment, "The Rogers Brothers in Paris." It scored a laughing hit and its new songs were of that winning quality which makes mature men and women plead for more even when given the fullest measure. The costuming was elaborate and the stage groupings were a continuous feast to the eye. The popular comedians have a lot of jokes that carry for some rehabilitated old friends and some joyously new and up to date. They are especially happy in their new songs, two of which will be whistled on the streets today. The audience was large and exceedingly enthusiastic, and the brothers were in fine fettle. It would take considerable space to tell of the good things in the big show, so it will be reviewed at length later in the week.

As Mary Tudor, "A Madcap Princess," of England, Miss Lulu Glaser laughed and sang and danced her way into the approval of a large audience at the Knickerbocker Theatre Monday night. The new comic opera, the title role of which Miss Glaser plays, opened the theatre for the season. There were genuine outbursts of applause after several scenes, and the star, the Composer Ludwig Englander, the musical director, Signor A. De Novellis, and most of the cast, were called before the curtain after the second act. Miss Glaser was forced to make a little speech, in which she expressed her thanks. The choruses were good and the music was catchy. Miss Glaser's songs were encored four or five times. The three scenes—Windsor Park, the Princess' apartments and the tavern—were pretty and the costumes very handsome. Miss Glaser's supporting company, headed by William Pruette as Bluff King Hal, is good.

A FAIR EXCHANGE.

A New Back for An Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen:

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across my back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such trouble as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

General Corbin Calls Off the Fighting Armies.

DARING ATTEMPT TO CAPTURE BELL

Colonel Wagoner, Umpire in Chief Gave Decision Favoring Blue Army—A Bloodless Loss of 1,800 Men.

CORPS HEADQUARTERS, GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 8.—With practically continuous fighting since early morning on the defense line established by General Bell, running north and south through Thoroughfare, hostilities were stopped by General Corbin at noon in order that the men on the firing line for thirty-six hours might be relieved.

It is estimated by army officers that the casualties during the two days of fighting have depleted the blue army by 1,800 men and the brown from 1,500 to 1,800.

A daring attempt was made to capture General Bell in his headquarters at Thoroughfare. General Bell heard of the plan, and literally took up his bed and walked. He secreted himself in a farmhouse near by. The capture was planned by a scouting party.

General Bell had stripped his headquarters of its guard for other duty and if confronted by the armed scouts would have had to accompany them to the lines of the blue army.

Just before the recall Colonel Wagoner, chief umpire, sustained the advance of the blue army practically through General Bell's left wing. This would give the advantage to the blue army on its face, but there are many other points to be taken into consideration which may have a bearing on the general result.

Besides this final movement a battle was fought in which two brigades of the blue hammered one and a half brigades of brown just north of the final fighting movement. Besides having a superior force, the blue army masked a strong battery of twenty guns, which commanded the brown defense line. Each side occupied a strip of woods and fought over an open space of about 600 yards, which sloped in the center.

Time after time the blue army ventured out in the open, only to be ruled back by the chief umpire. Twice hostilities were stopped that decisions might be rendered.

When the battle opened General Bell had no artillery to oppose that of the blue army, which was pouring a terrific fire into the woods at short range. Shortly after the first cessation was sounded General Bell threw a battery into action directly opposite that of the blue. This battery, however, consisted of only eight guns.

For fifteen minutes an artillery duel was fought with great vigor. At the same time the musketry fire continued, both in the open, on each side, and from the edge of the woods. There was a lively mix-up in the woods also, and the roar of battle was reproduced, with the exception of the hissing of the bullets and the shriek of the shells.

A colonel of the blue cavalry was captured, as were the colors of the Fifth Massachusetts regiment. These colors were returned to corps headquarters by General Bell with a letter stating that he should have returned them to the regiment, but he did not want to take any action that might be regarded as spying on his adversary. The colors were returned through corps headquarters.

Connecticut's governor, Chamberlain, is in camp at Manassas. He will witness the military maneuvers of Bull Run field with the governors of other states and military officers. Colonel William B. Landers, assistant adjutant general, accompanied the governor.

The first maneuver problem has closed with General Grant's force pushed through the left wing of General Bell. This put the blue force within two miles of Thoroughfare gap, the objective point. However, General Bell had Smith's brigade on the right and Barry's brigade on the left of this breach in his line, and Colonel Wagner, chief umpire, draws no conclusion as to what might happen had not hostilities ceased under the command previously issued by General Corbin to cease hostilities so that the tired troops might be given relief.

William Neal Shot Wife and Self.

LOUISVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 8.—William Neal, under indictment for the murder last winter of Assistant Commonwealth Attorney James K. Shrader, shot and killed his wife, Nellie Robinson Neal, here and then ended his own life. The tragedy occurred in a boarding house on West Broadway where Neal and his wife had been living since Sunday as Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Nashville, Tenn.

Train Struck Hay Wagon.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 8.—A Wheeling and Lake Erie freight train struck a loaded hay wagon, killing Conductor Gregory of Canton and Henry Porter, a farmer, who were in the caboose. Two brakemen, E. E. Snyder of Canton and W. H. McDonald of Middle Beach, were caught in the wreckage, but not seriously hurt. James McKay, a boy, who was driving the hay wagon, had his collar bone broken.

Racing at Harlem.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Gregor K., at 7 to 1, won the third and feature event at Harlem by a neck. Fonsaluca was second, a length in front of Princess Tulane, the favorite. The race was one of the most exciting of the meeting, the entire field finishing in a compact bunch, less than two lengths separating the five horses at the wire.

CLOSING ON MUKDEN

Russian Army Still Retreating Toward the North.

MUKDEN BASE IS BEING EVACUATED

Japanese Are Constantly Pressing on Kuropatkin's Rear—They Have Taken Many Guns, With Ammunition and Stores.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—St. Petersburg is now confident that the critical stage of the Russian retreat is past and that Kuropatkin is no longer in danger of losing any part of his forces, though he still continues his retreat toward the north.

Late reports from Mukden say that the whole country is aflame with the wildest and most contradictory rumors.

The principal interest in the situation is in the fact that the Chinese population is becoming more anti-Russian with the advance of the Japanese army.

Mukden itself is overcrowded, and it is almost impossible to get food or a place to sleep.

Everywhere there is the greatest uproar in the direction of Harbin. The soldiers, however, are not at all disheartened at result of the fighting and say that the Japanese losses are so tremendous as to seriously weaken them. They declare that they have made the Japanese pay infinitely more for Liaoyang than it was worth.

M. Kiriloff, the Russian correspondent who was shot through the lungs in the attack on General Stakelberg's corps southwest of Liaoyang on Aug. 10, is in the Russo-Dutch hospital, and the doctors say that he is not yet out of danger. M. Kiriloff, however, declares he will soon be back in harness.

Advices from Mukden say that the main Russian army, pushing northward, is evacuating that city, where, it now appears, General Kuropatkin has been since Monday.

Some of his troops, it is understood, are not entering the city, but are taking up prepared positions around Mukden. While there is no specific information on this point, the general staff believes that only a small rear guard is in the neighborhood of Yentai.

There has been constant fighting at the Russian rear and along the eastern wing.

Part of Kuropatkin's force which is coming to Mukden by wagon road is in danger of being cut off. All day and night Monday the Japanese in the hills on the east road shelled the Russian troops.

In one instance the Japanese infantry attacked a large force of Russian infantry and artillery which had taken to the hills, running parallel to the Japanese, in protecting the flank of the retreating army.

Troops, guns and transport are pouring into Mukden by train and road. Considerable transport was left behind.

The roads are in a frightful state owing to the heavy rain Monday.

A Tokyo report says that the Kokumin learns on good authority that Kuroki after taking the heights near Heiyingtai, about fifteen miles northeast of Liaoyang, has occupied a line from Yentai to the mines by hot pursuit of the Russians.

The Russians, who were said to be concentrated twenty miles north of Liaoyang, are now retreating in the direction of Mukden. The pursuit was obstructed by the high millet.

The Russians destroyed their stores, but numbers of guns and quantities of ammunition and other supplies were captured.

Durand a Daring Rider.

LENOX, Mass., Sept. 8.—The daring riding of Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador; Mr. Wyndham, one of the secretaries of the legation, and Mr. Van Ness Phillips of New York in the tent pegging contest was the feature of the gymkhana races at Tanglewood, the summer home of Richard C. Dixey of Boston. There were ten events, all arranged by Sir Mortimer, and the entire summer colony witnessed the sport.

Lynchers Convicted at Danville.

DANVILLE, Va., Sept. 8.—W. T. Harris, Wicker Arms, Dan H. Talley, Bud F. Pruitt, George C. Mills, R. J. Lynch and Whit Meyers have been convicted in the corporation court of participating in the mob that several weeks ago attempted to lynch the negro Roy Seals, charged with murder, confined in the city jail. The men were sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and to serve a term of one day in jail.

Waggaman's Amended Answer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Thomas E. Waggaman filed an amended answer to the petition of the three local banks that he be adjudged a bankrupt, which recites that it is filed because of some misapprehension as to the meaning of the answer filed and says that he admits his inability to pay his debts and is willing to be adjudged a bankrupt on that ground.

Gas Explosion at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 8.—As the result of an explosion of gas at the Union depot a Pullman car and an Alton chair car were ruined and Mrs. C. R. Colfax of Syracuse, N. Y., a passenger on the Alton train, was bruised on the hip in escaping from one of the burning cars.

Admiral Jewell En Route.

CHERBOURG, Sept. 8.—The cruisers Olympia (flagship of Rear Admiral Jewell) and Cleveland of the United States European squadron have arrived here from Gibraltar and exchanged salutes with the forts.

RACING AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY.

Beldame Won September Stakes From Ort Wells.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Beldame, the great three-year-old filly, won the September stakes, one mile and three furlongs, at Sheepshead Bay. She made practically all the running and won with ease. Ort Wells was decisively beaten, finishing a bad third. Graziallo finished second. In the opinion of many horsemen Beldame's easy victory places here in a class by herself.

Ort Wells and Ocean Tide, both from the Drake stable, were made a 4 to 5 favorite. Beldame opened at even money, while Graziallo, the only other starter, was played for the place. Beldame, as usual, was led to the post. Ocean Tide jumped into the lead, followed by Beldame and Ort Wells, with Graziallo close up. Ocean Tide was leading by a length passing the stand the first time, with Beldame in second position and fighting for her head. Ort Wells was third. Just after rounding the turn into the backstretch O'Neil gave Beldame her head, and in four or five strides she was in front and leading by two lengths from Ort Wells. Graziallo moved into third position as Ocean Tide dropped back beaten. Meanwhile Beldame was merely galloping out in front. Three furlongs from the finish she had her field driving to keep up. She won by two and a half lengths from Graziallo, who closed very strong and beat Ort Wells three-quarters of a length for the place.

Tradition, the 1 to 2 favorite in the Belles stake, stumbled after the start, and Lyne, her rider, lost both of his stirrups, but managed to regain them during the running and brought the filly home a winner by a short head.

Agile, at 1 to 4, won the Waldorf stakes by a head from Dandelion.

The world's record for six and a half furlongs, 1:18 2-5, was equaled in the first race, when Martinmas ran the distance in the above time.

Crime Disqualified at Delmar.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—Crime, the winner of the second race at Delmar, was disqualified on the protest of W. W. Elliott, owner of Behoove, who finished second. The result of the race as far as the betting is concerned stands. Crime, however, is deprived of first money, which goes to Behoove. The conditions of the race read "for two-year-olds and upward that have not won two races since June 10." Crime won two races since that date and was therefore not an eligible starter. Bratton, owner of Crime, is said to have taken considerable money out of the betting ring. He also won the third race with Applesweet at the good price of 15 to 1.

Judge Parker's First Speech Since Nomination.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The first speech by the Democratic presidential candidate since his formal acceptance of the nomination on Aug. 10 was made by Judge Parker at Rosemount today in the presence of the visiting editors of Democratic newspapers. It took the form of a reply to an address of greeting made by Charles W. Knapp of St. Louis.

The editors came by train from New York on the Hudson River railroad to Hyde Park, whence they crossed the river in their own boat, which met them there. Judge Parker spoke from the veranda at Rosemount, and, with the exception of the brief speeches, there was nothing formal about the occasion. Luncheon was served on the boat at the Esopus landing.

A Greco-Jewish Riot.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 8.—A body of 300 Hebrew strikers and sympathizers attacked forty Greek strike breakers on their return from work at a leather factory, with the result that a riot ensued, which the police had great difficulty in quelling. Three men, one Greek and two Hebrews, were arrested. The strikers waited for the Greeks some distance from their work, as a large force of policemen had been stationed at the factory owing to an earlier outbreak. The Greeks when the Hebrews rushed upon them drew files and clubs and not only beat off their assailants, but drove them down a side street.

LEADERS' NEW MOVE

Chicago Strikers Will Have Meat Declared Unfair.

WANT ANOTHER TALK WITH PACKERS

Will Continue the Struggle With Renewed Vigor, Although the Packers Will Not Hear Them Again.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Having voted to continue the stockyards struggle until better terms can be secured, the strike leaders are in a quandary as to what the next move shall be. When the result of the vote of the men, defeating the proposition to return to work, was announced it was stated by the union officials that a second ballot would be ordered at once. Shortly after the announcement was made, however, the plan was abandoned, and efforts were begun to secure another conference with the packers. In this the strikers were unsuccessful, and then a second announcement was made that the order issued last week placing all meat on the unfair list would go into effect last night. While arrangements were being made to put this order into effect it was suddenly discovered by some of the leaders that the allied trades conference board would have to give their consent to the order before it could be enforced and that it would be impossible to put the manifesto into effect last night as the allied trades conference board would not be able to arrange for a meeting of its members until today. It was then stated that the central organization would meet today to consider the question.

Following the announcement that the strikers had voted to continue the strike a meeting attended by representatives of all the packers was held at the offices of the National Packing company. What took place at the conference is not known, but after the meeting it was stated by one of the packers that no opportunity would be given the labor leaders to present a proposition embracing arbitration as was being planned by the strikers.

With the declaration that the majority had voted to continue the strike announcement was made that the fight would be prosecuted with renewed vigor. Secretary Tracey of the allied trades conference board stated that all meat will soon be declared "unfair."

The Pet at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—Three favorites, a second choice and two long shots were returned winners at Highland park. The feature event was a handicap for two-year-olds at five furlongs and in this W. A. Smith's entry, The Pet, and Frances Dillon finished first and third, the favarite, Maggie Mackey, splitting the pair. Panamanian, another of the choices in the race, fell while running around his field on the stretch turn and was so badly injured that he may have to be destroyed. Bradley Bill, at 15 to 1, and Triumvir, at 10 to 1, were the winning long shots.

Suit Against General Taft.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Major Peter R. Egan, surgeon in the United States army, has brought suit against W. H. Taft, secretary of war, to compel him to remove from the record of court martial proceedings adjudging him (Major Egan) not guilty on charges of neglect of duty. The indorsement on the court's finding of Colonel Sanno, the reviewing officer, then commanding the department of Colorado, and which indorsement the complainant says is in effect punishment for alleged offenses of which he was found not guilty at Fort Douglas, Utah, in December, 1901.

Crown Prince Fights Forest Fire.

GELBENSANDE, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Sept. 8.—There has been a fire in the forest near the hunting lodge where the Crown Prince Frederick William is visiting the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and her daughter Cecilia, the betrothed wife of the crown prince. The latter and other members of royal families there assisted the foresters and servants in extinguishing the flames, which if allowed to spread would have endangered the lodge.

Louisville Knights Won.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Louisville (Ky.) commandery, No. 1, won the first prize in the drill corps competition of the triennial conclave, Knights Templars. The competition drill between four well drilled teams was the feature of the conclave. St. Bernard corps of Chicago was second, Ivanhoe of Milwaukee third and Malta of Binghamton, N. Y., fourth. Fully 25,000 people witnessed the marching and counter marching of the competing teams.

Vermont Elections.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 8.—All but five of the 246 cities and towns of Vermont have announced the result of the vote for governor. The returns as far as completed give Charles J. Bell, Republican, 47,719; Eli H. Porter, Democrat, 16,429. This shows a Republican plurality of 31,290. The five missing towns in 1900 gave a Republican plurality of 294.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 8, 1904.

What a relief it must be for the Sage of Esopus to have such callers as Richard Olney and Henry Watterson.

Middlesex county says that it does not want any of those voting machines and will not have any. Probably the bosses fear the result of an honest election over that way.

A Metropolitan paper in referring to Governor Murphy's senatorial aspirations, says "he is well equipped for the place." He may be, in some respects, but there are still a good many people who believe that a senatorship is an exalted office.

The New York Herald's Jersey political writer says that "the best informed Democrats in all parts of the State attach little importance to the candidacy of Mr. Clark and the other 'favorite sons,'" adding that "there is a strong feeling that Charles C. Black, of Hudson, is the logical and only candidate under the circumstances." Notwithstanding this, there are at least a dozen other prominent Democrats, including Robert D. Foote, Alvah A. Clark, William C. Gebhardt, Thos. Farrell and Samuel S. Swackhamer, who have not consented to withdraw their pictures from the gallery of gubernatorial possibilities.

The Republicans are to be congratulated on the excellence of the Councilmanic ticket which they have presented to the voters for their consideration. Ralph I. Tolles, from the First; William S. Tyler, from the Third, and Frank D. Randolph, from the Fourth ward, have rendered good service to the city as members of the Common Council and their experience is of great value. Each has shown himself to be interested in the city's welfare and has been faithful in the discharge of the duties falling to the lot of a councilman. Henry D. Hibbard, who is the candidate in the Second ward, has never before held public office here, but he is too well known to raise any doubt in the voter's mind as to his qualifications. It is unfortunate that the Democrats have not presented a complete ticket, but realizing what an uphill fight it is for one of the minority party to obtain a seat among the city fathers it is no great wonder that it is impossible to get men to allow their names to be placed on that ticket. Charles Yaeger, who is nominated in the Fourth ward, is the only Democrat who has the courage to stand for election. If he should have the good fortune to be chosen by the voters of his ward at the coming election to fill the office to which he aspires, the city will not suffer, for he, like his opponent, Mr. Randolph, has the confidence of people of that bailiwick, but unlike his opponent he happens to belong to a party which is in the minority in Plainfield.

SOMERSET DEMOCRATS GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATE

CAREER OF ALVAH A. CLARK, FATHER-IN-LAW OF CHAS. A. REED.

In touching on the subject of New Jersey's Democratic gubernatorial possibilities, the New York Herald's Trenton correspondent has this to say of former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, the father-in-law of former State Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield:

"Another possibility for the Democratic nomination for Governor is Alvah A. Clark, of Somerset County. His personal, professional and political career fits him for such a distinction. In 1872 he was first heard of in State politics as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, but was unsuccessful, Robert Hamilton, of Sussex, being the nominee. In 1876 he was nominated and elected by the largest majority ever given in the district. In 1878 he was again nominated and elected over Frederic A. Potts, one of the most popular Republicans in the State. After this service in Congress he returned to Somerville and has been entirely devoted to his profession ever since. Mr. Clark never sought office since he left the House of Representatives.

"He was nominated and confirmed as one of the Commissioners of the State Sinking Fund, served about a year and then resigned. Governor Abbett offered him at one time the office of Prosecutor and at another a judgeship, both of which he declined. He was nominated by President Cleveland for Postmaster of Somerville without any suggestion on his part. He accepted the office and gave all the fees to the employes, for the purpose of raising the standard of service. He resigned the Postmastership after having served two years.

"Mr. Clark is not a candidate for Governor, though the press has used his name—some correspondents flatteringly, others otherwise. For years he has taken an interest in politics and rendered his party some service, and if he were nominated and elected to the office for which he is mentioned he would be Governor, not only in name, but in fact. At this time, without sufficent knowledge of the condition of affairs political, Mr. Clark does not desire to be considered a candidate. He thinks a nomination is not enough—the candidate should know something about the political situation. Some candidates would be more acceptable to the voters than others and the man who can carry the most votes is the man to nominate. This proposition cannot be solved by a nomination—the election is to follow.

"It is freely predicted by his friends that the Somerset delegation will be solid for him in the Convention and that he will be very likely to develop strength in other quarters."

PRIZE CONTESTS OF INDEPENDENT GUN CLUB

GOLD MEDALS AMONG THE AWARDS OF SHOOTING EVENTS.

Greater interest was shown by the members of the Independent Gun Club and their friends, in the Labor Day shoot, than in any previous affair of the kind held by them. There was shooting of the best on the 200 yard rifle range, as well as at the traps and the social side of the day's enjoyment, was not the least feature by any means. A pleasant surprise was afforded by Mrs. Lizzie Gavin's floral decorations of the remodelled club rooms.

The day's sport opened with a contest on the rifle range which resulted as follows: J. A. Blatz scored 130, winning the first prize, a fine telescope. F. Schaeffer, 123; Dr. O. M. Luckey, 120; C. William Krausse, 119, and A. L. Case, 96, won gold club badges. Fred Endress 94, received a shell case of heavy leather; Dennis Gavin 89, and Charles Jensen 88, shotgun cleaning outfits; Capt. Henry Haurand 86, three cases of rifle ammunition; Edward Sebring 84, a rifle-cleaning outfit; Henry Vosseller 79, a large decorative tray; Titus H. Laury 77, a box of cigars; John Wirth 76, two cases of rifle ammunition, and Dr. C. W. Leonard, the only scratch man, managed to land a box of cigars with a score of 71. C. Stoeckler won a rifle cleaning rod by scoring 70; Louis VanDyke 57, received a case of rifle ammunition and Harry Dreier, who is better at the traps than with the rifle, received the booby-prize, a harmonica-flagelet; a sort of miniature accordion with a dinky little mouth-piece.

In the trap-shooting, following this handicap on the range, two ten-mean teams, captained by Dr. O. M. Luckey and Dr. C. W. Leonard, shot two close-fought matches, each team shooting at 100 targets in each match. Dr. Luckey's men nailed the first match, breaking five more targets than their opponents who returned the compliment in the next by scoring just one more than their whilom conquerors. In the course of this contest Luckey, Gavin, Leonard and Haurand broke 87 out of forty birds. A number of sweepstakes were shot also.

Gold medals for scores made in the yearly shoot, aggregating more than $100 in value, were presented by Captain Haurand to O. M. Luckey for first prize in trap-shooting, C. W. Leonard first rifle prize and second trap-shooting prize, C. W. Krausse second prize in rifle shooting, Edward Sebring third prize in rifle shooting, and John Wirth third prize at the traps.

The bull's-eye contest was tied between Walter E. Stewart, Captain Haurand and John Wirth. They shot the tie off with the following results: Captain Haurand, first; W. E. Stewart, second; John Wirth, third. The winner received a handsome gold medal.

Among the women, Mrs. Lizzie Gavin, Mrs. Otto Mueck and Mrs. Richard McCullough, distinguished themselves on the long rifle range, using the heavy thirty-eight calibre rifles which their husbands handle, very creditably. Mrs Gavin in particular, made scores that compare favorably with some of the shoots turned in by the men, tallying 73 and 78 in two strings.

The arrangements were in charge of the range committee, composed of these members: Captain Haurand, Shooting-masters Stoeckler and Van-Dyke, Treasurer Leonard, Dr. Luckey and A. S. Case. Provision-master Mensenbach acquitted himself nobly in supplying refreshments for the crowd of members and their friends. Speeches were made during the festivities by "King" Luckey, Capt. Haurand, ex-Capt. J. A. Blatz and others. One of the prizes not yet presented, is an elaborate leather medal won by Rudolph Spiegel, with a phenominally low average score.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 11.

Topic.—What the Bible teaches about heaven.—John xiv, 1-3; Rev. xxi, 1-8.

What the Bible has to say about heaven is of the greatest importance, because nowhere else can we find any trustworthy information upon this all important subject. Heaven is the dwelling place of God (II Chron. vi, 30), the place where He especially manifests his glory (Rev. iv, 1-5), and where He will by and by gather all His redeemed children (John xiv, 1-3).

What, then, does the Bible say about heaven?

The Bible teaches that there is a place called heaven. "In My Father's house," says Christ, "are many mansions." This is a positive assertion. They actually are. This is the language of assurance, not of doubt or even of hope. Heaven is—this is the first great truth of the Bible concerning it. If we believe the Bible we cannot doubt it. This fact of itself should inspire the people of God to faithfulness even amidst the adversities of life. We are simply pilgrims here. Heaven is our home.

The Bible teaches us of the inhabitants of heaven. (1) God is there. Christ calls heaven His "Father's house." God is omnipresent, but in heaven He especially manifests himself. (2) Christ is there. "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am you may be also." "Where I am!" Christ is there, and where He is that is heaven. (3) The redeemed are there—all those who have been redeemed in the precious blood of Christ. This includes all the redeemed from the apostles to the humblest disciple of Christ. To the former Jesus said, "That where I am ye may be also," and to a representative of the latter, the dying thief on the cross, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." To John, the elder said of those whom he saw in heaven, "These are they that have come up out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." The cross of Christ is the only open sesame to heaven.

The Bible teaches us of the conditions in heaven. It is true that here the teaching is meager and often hard to understand. Descriptions of heaven and its conditions are largely symbolical and figurative. Yet the Bible plainly teaches that it is a place freed from all the ills of this life, the inhabitants of which enjoy perfect happiness. Such a place as our eternal home is worthy the utmost self sacrifice that can be possible in the acceptance of Christ as our Saviour.

The Bible teaches the condition of entrance into heaven. There is but one condition—the acceptance of Jesus Christ as our personal Saviour and Redeemer. We must accept His atoning sacrifice for us and consecrate our lives to God in Him. Will you do it?

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xvi, 11; Isa. xlix, 10; Dan. xii, 1-3; Matt. v, 1-12; xiii, 43; Luke xii, 37; John xi, 19-27; I Pet. i, 1-5; Rev. iv, 1-4; vii, 9-17.

A Delightful Incident.

The next issue of the China official Endeavor publication will have this interesting item:

A most delightful incident occurred at a meeting of the Christian Endeavor society in Union church, Hongkong. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Hickling, who is using his Endeavor society as a means of interesting and encouraging the Christian soldiers stationed there, had invited the Endeavor secretaries for India and China to come to the meeting and speak a few words about the work in other places, but quite unexpectedly two other strangers came into the little meeting, one of whom proved to be the founder of the first Christian Endeavor society in all India and the other the son of one of India's most famous missionaries. And what had called these four strangers, without any prearrangement, to come together at this little meeting? Simply the attractions of the Christian Endeavor name and the Christian Endeavor bond of fellowship and the pledge "to attend and take some part in every Christian Endeavor prayer meeting." Is it not a great advantage that the Endeavor society not simply inspires its members with loyalty to their local church, but also brings them into a strong sympathy with fellow Endeavorers all over the world?

Pen Points.

The Christian Endeavor pledge reads the same during vacation time that it does at any other season of the year.

That Christian Endeavor is progressive is proved by the quantity and quality of its forward movements.

The ideal pastor does not drive his society; he leads it.

That lookout committee cannot be characterized as "the eyes of the society" which does not see in the church homeless stranger a prospective member for Christian Endeavor.

In the ideal prayer meeting prayer, not singing nor even testimony, predominates.—John R. Clements.

In Ohio.

They "do things" in a Christian Endeavor way in Ohio. The following is the summary of the work of Field Secretary Rev. C. H. Hubbell for ten months just past: Engagements filled, 189; addresses and conferences, 421; county conventions, 31; societies reached, 831; mileage, 17,308. With such untiring workers it is not to be wondered at that Ohio leads the list in the increase campaign.

In Persia and Spain.

Persia has thirty-five societies, and most of them sprung from a single earnest society in a boarding school, whose members carried the Christian Endeavor seed as they returned home. Spain has the same history.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Sept. 11: "The Better Country."—John xiv, 1-3; Rev. xxi, 1-8. Our Inheritance.

It was into a world sick with sorrow and distracted by suffering that Jesus Christ came. Its pressing needs were many and varied.

The problem of food and clothing must be faced and solved. The craving of the heart for kindness and love is even more imperative than hunger of body. The mystery of the future rises higher than this. Supreme in importance above every other issue in our existence stands the question of our relation to God.

We recognize Jesus as the matchless leader among men because He recognized those questions and needs of ours, as all other religious leaders of importance have done, and found a solution of them, as no other man had been able to do. It is this which gives Him a unique place among men.

The clew to the mystery lies in our sonship to God. Other men may have dreamed it, may perhaps have said it in words. He lived it, made it an actuality and showed men how they might and should do the same.

This discovery having been once made, the anxiety and quest for food and clothing no longer hold uppermost place in thought and effort. Life has come to mean more than feeding of body. Suffering and privation can be cheerfully endured for His sake and for the sake of those whom He loves. Life becomes loving service for Him.

No longer does the future loom ominously and with dread. He has not lifted the veil which hides its activities from our sight, but He has given assurance that all our needs are there provided for as truly as they are here. Our Father lives, and it is His good pleasure to give the kingdom to His children.

Jesus has shown us the path of truth and joy in this life. We have tried it and proved the truthfulness of His promises. We trust Him for the future. This is not eyesight, but insight of faith. It gives inner assurance and settled peace such as is found in no other way.

We expect a better country. The progress of natural science gives no help in this matter. The discoveries of astronomy afford no aid in locating heaven. No telescope has caught the light from its walls and pinnacles.

But we are certain that somewhere and some time we shall reach our home, where tears and pain are unknown, where sin of heart is no more and love and joy abound forever.

Whoever comes to know the inner life of Jesus has the proof within that such place and time must come. Since He has lived it cannot but be. It is of the nature of spiritual necessity. So we quiet our hearts with His words, "Let not your hearts be troubled."

We believe in Him. We wait for Him.

It is this which makes us pilgrims and not permanent owners here. We are stewards of His bounty, taking care of His things until the account is called for. We are getting ourselves ready for our own inheritance, fitting ourselves for its administration when it shall have been turned over to us.

This being so, we must be different from other men. Let us hold fast our hope to the end.

We are seeking a country. We look for a city. "We are going home to our Father's house, where the many mansions be."

The Cry of Need.

Never be too busy to listen to the cry of need. The thoughtful child on her way from the spring with a pitcher of water in her hand looked at the parched, dust mantled and drooping flower by the wayside, and in her pity for it tipped her pitcher, and a gentle stream washed the dust from its leaves, refreshed its stem and invigorated its roots. As it lifted itself once more to the sun, its renewed life made her heart gayer and her feet lighter, while the little that she had donated from her vessel had left her more than she needed for her home. Tip your heart a little and let its sympathy roll out in blessings to those who are weak and weary. They will be blessed in receiving, but you will be doubly blessed in giving. Yet give not for your own sake, but for their sakes.—Philadelphia Methodist.

The Promise of Thy Father.

Not by laying thy burden down shalt thou be free. Lift another's load and it shall drop from thy side. Add to the weight of thy ship by taking in the Son of Man and its speed shall be so quickened that immediately it shall be at the land. Put your leprous hand to the cross to help Him up the dolorous way, and ere thou hast reached the top of the hill thou shalt seek its leprosy in vain. Thy care shall be cured by Calvary. The promise of thy Father shall never deceive thee.—Christian World.

The Bridge to Heaven.

As a bridge builder throws his span across the chasm, so hath God, by His redeeming grace, connected earth with heaven, and that span has never weakened through the frosts and storms and floods of the ages, nor by the constant tramp, tramp of the innumerable host that, day and night since the world's morning twilight, have crossed to the reserved glory on the other side.—United Presbyterian.

God's Will.

Since God doth will that some shall dwell at ease
And others shall know hardness, this is sure—
The lot that fits each nature He foresees;
And wherefore murmur when we must endure?
Some day His loving wisdom will be plain
As the sweet sunshine following after rain.

—Mary Bradley.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

AUTUMN MILLINERY.

What Parisian Artists Have to Say About Hats.

What is there about a Paris hat that differs from headgear of any other description? To the uninitiated in the mysteries of the milliner's art the difference is so slight that it can only be translated by the word chic. It is often thought that the secret lies in the poise of a feather or the placing of a flower. But it is a mistake. The arrangement of an adornment has little to do with the real success. There are two essential considerations that people are apt as a rule to ignore—that is, the quality of the material used and the exact angle at which the hat should be worn. A bow made of ribbon of an inferior quality has an altogether different effect from the one fashioned from a superior make, and therein lies the difference. In these nice little distinctions the French excel, and American artists are now fully alive to the fact. Among the popular hats for the coming winter will be the new Varennes, which has a high crown of funnel or conical shape. The trimming will consist of a double band of velvet in two tones, arranged in such a manner that the upper part of the crown is visible. A plume or panache of three small feathers will be placed in the center of the front and caught with a high narrow buckle.

MAUVE CHIFFON HAT.

The charming hat illustrated is created from mauve chiffon in two tones. One is of parma violets and the other so delicate in tone that it appears almost white. The feathers are in mauve and white, and the harmony is perfect. The high crown is surmounted by a ruching.

FOR EVENING FUNCTIONS.

Rich Fabrics a Feature of Fall Gowns of the Moment.

The eighteenth century style of evening gown is the choice for the coming season, and the most charming creations will be materialized from the richest velvets in the softest colorings. The bodices are to be draped with old lace. This fashion is particularly good form for stately matrons.

A lovely evening toilet seen recently was of pink satin, the skirt long and full. Still, one could imagine it clinging to the figure over the fine muslin underskirt. The bodice was cut exceedingly low in an oval shape which fitted into an ordinary depth of low bodice made of finely gathered white net. The sleeves were long and almost tight, reaching the wrist with a fullness of a mousquetaire glove. There was something charmingly picturesque about this gown.

A handsome black frock always stands out conspicuously at an evening function, and the confection herewith shown is a happy illustration of this fact. Spangled black net applied with motifs of chantilly lace composes the skirt, and the swathed bodice is of net and lace, the detached straps being of jet.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The different ships of this great armada with nice seamanship had been anchored in their appointed places, and all were in beautiful order. Their sails were furled with the taut smoothness of a glove on a lady's hand, and their ponderous yards squared with geometrical accuracy. Their complicated tracery of rigging and running gear, tautened with mathematical nicety and soaring aloft from the mass of black and heavy shrouds and swifters, springing from top, cross-tree and yard-arm, in ever-refining and more delicate lines, rose higher and higher until it was focused upon the truck-ends of the slender skysail poles, which terminated the ponderous and towering spars.

Though weather-beaten and storm-worn, they seemed fit for any emergency. Like the veterans of an army, they were ready for any demand which could be made upon them, and they looked it. There was a sense of use, of habit, of action, of power, conveyed in their stately repose on the unruffled surface of the water that morning, which filled the young men, who were contemplating them, with pride and delight.

Forward on the Maidstone the fore-royal-halliards had been settled away as she drew up the roads, and her number had been made at the fore-royal-masthead. When it had been acknowledged on the flagship, the latter had signalled for the frigate to anchor under her lee. On account of the position of the admiral's ship, the Royal George, well in advance of the rest of the squadron, there was ample room for Grafton to come boldly in head-on, with all standing, sweep to port, and make his anchorage without interfering with any other ship in the fleet.

The Maidstone made a superb picture from the flagship. There was just wind enough to fill every sail rap full, and she slipped easily through the water, rocking and pitching as gently, as noiselessly, as a summer cloud driven across the sky by scarce-felt breezes. They were drawing nearer to the Royal George with every moment, though still far from her. Now they were lapping her head-booms, now they were abreast of the forecastle. It was time.

"Right the helm! Stand by the starboard anchor! Man the spanker brails! Let go the starboard anchor! Brail in!"

With a mighty plunge the great anchor dropped into the still waters of the bay. The hempen cable rushed through the hawse-pipes, the ship surged slowly ahead a moment, and then, her way checked by the pull of the cable and the flooding tide as well, she stopped, settled back, and slowly dropped astern, where she swung to the full scope of the cable. She had come to rest exactly where she should be. It could not have been more deftly done if she had been picked up and set down in the designated spot.

"All hands furl sail! Lay aloft, topmen!" called out Grafton, a note of triumph in his voice.

In an instant the shrouds of his frigate were black with men swarming aloft, the light yard men, of course, in the lead. With nimble feet they ran up the shaking rigging, laid out on the broad yard-arms, and began to roll up the drooping canvas.

Old Hawke lifted and waved his hand toward the frigate, and, as if it had been a signal, 1,000 throats on his own ship sent forth a ringing cheer of acknowledgment and greeting.

The men had been watching the movements of the Maidstone with intense interest and appreciation. They knew good seamanship when they saw it. Hawke was a thorough sailor and would tolerate no one who was not, in any ship or fleet he commanded. Grafton's heart swelled with pride and pleasure as he lifted his hat and waved it toward his generous superior in grateful acknowledgment. And, indeed, never had a delicate maneuver been more gracefully and smartly performed.

As soon as the men, who had finished their duties most expeditiously, had laid down from aloft, and had begun to square yards and clear up the gear, Grafton directed his gig to be called away, and temporarily relinquishing the charge of the ship to Hatfield, he repaired on board the flagship. He was met at the gangway of the latter vessel by Capt. John Campbell, her commander, and was at once escorted to the quarter-deck, whither Hawke, attended by his staff, had descended to meet him.

As Grafton saluted him the admiral recognized the young man who had sailed with him in other days, and his face lighted up with a kindly smile. [illegible] ceremoniously acknowledging the salute—for it was a day in which etiquette ruled intercourse, especially in the service—he extended his hand.

"Ah, Grafton," he said in a deep voice, which well accorded with his stout person, "I am glad to see you again; and let me tell you I never saw a ship brought to in better shape than that one. 'Twas a smart piece of seamanship and handsomely done. I hope our young gentlemen marked it, Campbell. Now, sir, we are brimful of curiosity to know your errand. Eh, captain? My young friends here have been fairly thirsting to hear your tidings. What news?"

"HE IS DEAD, SIR."

"Dispatches, Sir Edward, from Vice Admiral Saunders. Here they are, sir."

"And how is my old friend?" exclaimed the admiral, taking the packet.

"Well, sir."

"And that bold fire-eater, young Gen. Wolfe? He was on my ship in the Rochefort expedition, and I——"

"He is dead, sir," interrupted Grafton sadly.

"Dead! Is it possible! When? How?"

"The day we beat Montcalm, Sir Edward."

"Ah, he was a gallant soul! Dead! Poor fellow!"

"Yes, sir. Shot in the final charge that decided the day in our favor, and died on the field almost instantly."

"And Quebec?"

"Is England's."

"Magnificent!" cried Hawke. "How was it?"

In rapid words Grafton rehearsed the story of their great exploits in the new world, the officers crowding as near to the admiral and Grafton as they dared, to listen to the stirring tale.

"Mr. Vernon," said Hawke to his signal officer, when Grafton had finished his story, "signal to the fleet that Quebec has fallen. 'Twill be news they will appreciate. And add that Gen. Wolfe has been killed. Now I shall go below and look over these dispatches. You will find many old friends upon the ship, Grafton, I doubt not," he added, turning away.

"Beg pardon, Sir Edward, but that's not all," said Grafton hurriedly.

The old man stopped short and looked at him in some surprise.

"What, sir! Have you more news than is contained in the dispatches?"

"Yes, sir."

"What is it, pray?"

"I ran over to Brest, sir, thinking to find you——"

"Ha!" exclaimed the admiral, coming back toward him, deeply interested in this new subject. "What tidings from there?"

"Well, sir, when we saw you weren't there we ran in close, knowing the French couldn't get out on account of the strong westerly gale, to find out what we could about their intentions, and—I went ashore—and—happened to be present, unobserved, of course, at a banquet at which Monsieur de Conflans and his officers were the guests."

"Yes," said the admiral, his eyes sparkling with excitement, "did you hear anything? Did they say what they intended to do?"

"They are going out, sir."

"Good! Did you find out when?"

"Yes, sir. I heard de Conflans say, yesterday morning," answered Grafton, "the wind having shifted; but it changed again, and came from the west once more, so they have scarcely got to sea yet."

"'Tis news indeed, Grafton, and of the best!" exclaimed Sir Edward, delighted at the prospect.

"I think they will go out at the first practicable moment," answered Grafton.

"I hope so. Did you learn their destination?"

"Quiberon bay, sir, where the transports are and d'Aiguillon's army. After that, Ireland or Scotland or anywhere they can strike."

"Glorious news, Capt. Grafton! Once let us get at them on the high sea and they will strike no place but Davy Jones' locker, I'll warrant. Hey, gentlemen? We were forced to raise the blockade temporarily by the tremendous westerly gale and ran here for safety. We got under way yesterday morning, but were forced back again. We'll try it again this morning—immediately. We'll make a fair wind of a foul. Let me see, the tide will turn in an hour and we can get off then. Mr. Vernon, recall all boats and signal the captains to come on board the flagship at six bells. Capt. Campbell, prepare to trip at once. Let me know when you are up and down. We'll have the ships weigh in succession immediately. Meanwhile do you come into my cabin, Grafton; I wish to talk over the matter further with you."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

CONFLANS IS OUT.

When Hawke read his dispatches and learned therein of Grafton's services, with Saunders' commendation of them and his recommendation, he forthwith surprised the young American. The former captain of the Torbay had died a few days before and no one had yet been designated to command her, fortunately for Grafton, for Hawke immediately appointed him to the ship. To anticipate, it was an appointment which met with the favor of the ship's crew and the junior officers, with many of whom Grafton had previously served. He had been first lieutenant of the Torbay, in fact, in other days, and he was therefore thoroughly familiar with the qualities of the ship. He brought no one with him to his new command save Jabez Slocum.

While waiting for the assembling of his captains in the cabin of the Royal George, Hawke had sunk the commander in the friend in his intercourse with Grafton. Indeed, he had always taken a fatherly interest in that young sailor. From him he heard again, and at full length now, the details of that marvelous Quebec campaign. From him he also learned the story of his romantic love affair. He entered with the zest of a boy into the spirit of the hardy and daring ascent of the dark tower and the exciting adventures which followed upon it.

"My lad," he exclaimed at last, "if your wife is on the French fleet you shall have her, by Heaven, if we have to sink every ship in the squadron until we get her!"

"I have no doubt that she will be with them, admiral," answered Grafton. "If I know the Marquis de Chabot-Rohan, he is not a man to say things and then fail to do them. I imagine she will be on Le Thesee. That is the ship of the Comte de Kersaint, who was betrothed to her, you know, before I—married her."

He was as yet so little accustomed to his new relationship that he stumbled over the significant word.

"Yes," said the admiral, "I have heard that he is one of the best seamen and officers in the French navy."

"'Tis true, sir. I can bear testimony to it. He captured me in the Boxer with this same ship five years ago, and I got to know him then. He knew my father, too, and once fought him. The Renomme and the Shirley, you know. He's a fighter. But if I can get alongside of him with the old Torbay, sir, I think we can show him a thing or two."

"I know you can," added Hawke, smiling, "and I shall do my best to help you and give you a chance. As soon as we get out of the channel we'll spread apart. I have 23 ships of the line and two frigates here, and we ought to cover miles of the horizon. As the wind is from the eastward this morning, Conflans will probably get away at the same time we do. I intend to push hard for Belleisle. I can't afford to wait for Saunders, though 'tis a generous offer he makes me. By the way," he added, as a sudden thought struck him, "I must send a frigate out at once to warn Duff. There is a squadron of one capital and four 50-gun ships, besides some frigates, down there. I hope 'tis not too late."

As the admiral reached over to strike a bell on the table, Grafton interrupted him.

"Beg pardon, Sir Edward," he exclaimed, "I've already taken the liberty of doing that."

"You have!" exclaimed the admiral in astonishment. "When? How?"

"Why, sir, yesterday afternoon we overhauled the frigate Vengeance, Capt. Nightingale, and I told him what I had learned, and at my suggestion he agreed to beat down for Quiberon and warn Commodore Duff. I was to come on here and tell you, and as we were sure as to your action, Nightingale was to tell Duff that you'd be hard on the heels of Monsieur de Conflans."

"You have done well, exceedingly well, young man."

"Yes, sir, thank you sir," murmured Grafton. "Trained in your own school, sir, you know."

"Well, you've been an apt pupil, Grafton, and I'm proud of you. If you do as well with the Torbay you'll have a flag before you know it."

* * * * * *

In this story, as originally printed in book form, Dr. Brady gives a graphic and detailed description of the battle of Quiberon bay in which Lord Hawke crushed the French fleet. Interesting as this description is it was not all deemed necessary to the continuance of the plot of the story, and in order to shorten the story to some extent we have omitted from it such part of this description as does not concern the characters with which the story deals. —Editor.

"May I ask another favor, Sir Edward?" asked Grafton.

"What!" exclaimed Hawke, "are you not satisfied with the Torbay?"

"Yes, more than satisfied, but my first lieutenant on the Maidstone is a first-class fellow, and——"

THEODORE ROOSEVELT PARKER.

Marine of San Francisco Bears Remarkable Name.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The bureau of navigation has received a request from Representative Bell of the Second congressional district of California for the enlistment in the navy and assignment to the battleship Ohio of a constituent of his named Theodore Roosevelt Parker.

The applicant, it appears, really bears the name of Theodore Roosevelt Parker, and it was not recently assumed, as is shown by the fact that the records of the marine corps disclose his enlistment under that name at Seattle, Wash., July 12, 1901. Parker was born in San Francisco and was a machinist when he enlisted in the marine corps. His father bore the same name.

It is said that the family is a branch of an old Pennsylvania family of Roosevelts not connected in any way with that of President Roosevelt. Representative Bell's request will be granted.

Huge Billows Rolling In.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—From many points along the southern coast come reports of damage by great billows which are rolling in from the sea, occasioned by some peculiar phenomenon, possibly volcanic disturbances far out in the ocean. While there is scarcely a cupful of wind, enormous waves, in some instances forty feet high, roll ceaselessly against the shores. Word comes that the wharf at Hueneme is doomed to total destruction. At Terminal island the sea has wrought considerable havoc, and hundreds of men are at work piling up sacks to form breakwaters. At Long Beach and at Ocean Park the pleasure wharves have been much damaged. The heavy seas have been running for several days.

Peace and Love In Philippines.

ROME, Sept. 8.—Father Ambrose Agius, the new delegate to the Philippine Islands, has had frequent conferences with the pope and with Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, regarding the situation of the church in the islands and also with Archbishop Chapelle, the apostolic delegate to Cuba and Porto Rico, who arrived here Monday and who was the first papal delegate at Manila. Father Agius is carefully studying voluminous documents relating to the church in the Philippines and is formulating a programme which will look to "the re-establishment of peace and love and of the apostolic spirit" there.

Big Haul In County Safe.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 8.—Burglars have made a raid on Yadkinville, Yadkin county, N. C. They blew open the safe of the county treasurer, J. A. Logan, in his store and secured between $8,000 and $10,000. The safe in the postoffice was also blown open. Postmaster Mackie reports that over $410 was stolen. The burglars secured tools from a blacksmith shop in the town. County Treasurer Logan offers a reward of $2,000 for the capture of the burglars and money.

Republican Convention at Saginaw.

SAGINAW, Mich., Sept. 8.—Russell C. Ostrander of Lansing, Attorney General Charles A. Blair of Jackson and Circuit Judge Aaron V. McAlvay of Manistee have been nominated by the Republican judicial convention here for justices of the state supreme court in a convention that was replete with interesting features. The terms for which they are nominated are respectively seven, five and three years.

Pole Suddenly Became Insane.

SALAMANCA, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Michael Michszak, a Polander employed in a canning factory at South Dayton, has shot his wife and two children, the latter aged four and five years, and then shot himself through the heart, dying instantly. The children will die. The wife was taken to a Buffalo hospital and may recover. It is the general belief that Michszak suddenly became insane.

Homer For Governor of Wyoming.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Sept. 8.—The state Democratic convention, called for the purpose of nominating candidates for congress and for the state offices to be filled this fall, has met here. The renomination of Supreme Judge S. T. Corn was conceded before the delegates assembled, and indications pointed to the selection of Robert C. Homer of Laramie as gubernatorial candidate.

Ex-Governor's Third Venture.

BRISTOL, Va., Sept. 8.—Ex-Governor Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee has been married to Miss Mamie St. John of Chilhowie, Va. The wedding occurred at the bride's home. Governor Taylor has been married three times, having been divorced only a few months ago from his second wife at Knoxville. Governor and Mrs. Taylor will reside in Bristol.

Cheboygan at Kenilworth.

BUFFALO, Sept. 8.—Cheboygan won the Erie County Selling stake at Kenilworth. Ben Fonso, an outsider in the betting, was second, and the favorite, Palmreader, ran third. Oliphant, who had the mount on Palmreader, was set down for two days for bad actions at the post. Weather clear, track fast.

Knew Death Had Come.

LEBANON, Ky., Sept. 8.—With the prediction that he was about to die still upon his lips J. D. Underwood, general manager of the Rogers Wheel company, dropped dead here. Mr. Underwood, who was fifty-five years old, was apparently in good health.

Cuba Prohibits Exportation.

HAVANA, Sept. 8.—President Palma has signed a bill prohibiting the exportation of palm bark.

THE DEADLY KELEP

THE GUATEMALAN ANT WHICH MAKES WAR ON BOLL WEEVIL.

Experiments Being Carried On by the Government at Victoria, Tex., and the Results Thus Far Obtained.

The cotton boll-weevil sees its finish, or rather it would see it if it could appreciate the full meaning of the experiments which the agricultural department has been carrying on at Victoria, Tex., with the Kelep, or Guatemalan cotton boll-weevil ant. In Texas and some other sections of the south cotton cultivation has been well nigh ruined by the devastations of the boll-weevil, and hitherto no natural enemy of the pest had ever been discovered and all methods of fighting the lattle insect failed.

The "kelep" was discovered by accident. Dr. Cook went to Guatemala to investigate the rubber industry, but in his travels he noticed magnificent cotton fields where the cotton seemed to grow without molestation of any sort.

At first he thought he had discovered a cotton immune from the destructive work of the weevil. Closer investigation evinced the fact that the cotton plants owed their splendid condition to an effective little protector—the "kelep." Four thousand were shipped to the United States, and this army is now on the government plantation at Victoria, Tex., under the personal care and direction of Dr. O. F. Cook, tropical botanist for the agricultural department. Somewhat dubious as to the wisdom of using one pest to counteract the work of another, certain cotton planters tried to keep the government from bringing the ants into the country. An injunction was sought, but it was explained that the experiments would be conducted entirely on the United States property and the injunction was dissolved.

The ants now have been fully tried and found to do all that was expected of them. Under the direction of the government experts they will be put into the fields of any cotton planter who wants them, and it is confidently believed that they will in time make weevil devastation a thing of the past.

When the ants arrived at Victoria Dr. Cook was not long in giving them a trial.

"Some of the colonies," he said, "were released by placing the jar in which they were confined on the ground and inserting a bent cotton stalk on which the insects could climb out. They immediately began digging a burrow at the base of the adjacent cotton plant, and in the course of two hours the workers were ready for the queen and a delegation of two or three of them brought her out. The very strong homing instinct of the ants would have made it safe to release them in the plantations for study, even if their other habits had been less known. Instead of scattering or becoming bewildered under the strange conditions, they act from the first as though they were thoroughly familiar with their surroundings. Many colonies have been tested on a table isolated below by water. The insects were allowed to climb out of their cages by means of a ladder consisting of a cotton leaf with the stem bent back. There was no hesitation or preliminary exploration. The ants filed out at once and spread themselves over the table. Weevils were often caught, stung and carried back to the cage within a minute or two after the release of the ants from their captivity."

Despite the ferocious attitude held toward the weevil by the ant, Dr. Cook says that the fear that it might interfere with the cultivation or harvesting of the cotton is entirely groundless.

"The fact that the ant uses its sting in capturing its prey has led some to confuse it with the stinging ants which are serious pests in some tropical countries," he said.

The "kelep" does not belong, however, to any such category. It is a predaceous or hunting ant, which very seldom stings except to paralyze its prey and thus render the game easier to capture and carry off; but at other times it has no inclination to sting and does so only when actually seized or injured. The sting, however, is too small and weak to penetrate the skin of the inside of the hand, so that the insects can be picked up with entire impunity.

If accidentally squeezed between the fingers or caught under one's collar a 'kelep' may be able to sting, but the wound smarts, in most people, for only a few minutes.

They do not crush or chew their food and are apparently unable to eat anything except liquids or substances soft enough to be lapped up, as it were, by their tongues. While the insects are feeding their jaws are usually opened wide as though to get them out of the way.

DIAMOND DUST.

Westfield is scheduled to meet Plainfield A. C., on Crescent Oval on Saturday.

Marcus Hoyt's team will play the Westfield rooters the last of the week at Westfield.

Manager Denman says that last Saturday's game has been packed in moth balls and put away for the winter.

Badgley, formerly of the Plainfield A. C., is pitching good ball for the Washington, Warren county, team.

Mertens, the crack pitcher for the Rahway A. C., will enter college this fall.

"Pop" Dietrich brought his bride to Plainfield on Saturday and Monday to witness the ball games. The results of the Plainfield-Westfield games did not please her.

William B. Ewing, several years ago considered the greatest baseball catcher in the game, nowadays devotes considerable time to fishing. Once in awhile he gets the fever and attends a game in Cincinnati, where he lives.

"Pete" Cregan, the fast left fielder on the Plainfield A. C., says that he has had offers to return to the big league, but he prefers to play twice a week instead. He has been with the Fleischmann yeast concern for nine years and does not want to give up his position.

"Larry" Battam, who pitched such a good game for the Plainfield A. C., at Westfield Monday morning, is a member of the Metropolitan police force, doing night duty in Brooklyn. He was formerly a member of the Orange A. C.

The old-time battery, "Gamey" Nelson and Charlie Kline, will occupy the points in tomorrow's game between the original Stars and the Y. M. P., (colored,) on Crescent Oval. The game will be called at 2:30. Both teams are very strong and the result should be close.

Virgil Garvin, who pitched for Plainfield A. C., on Saturday and Monday, and his wife, were guests of B. A. Mumford, of Arlington avenue, from Saturday until yesterday. Both like Plainfield very much and on Sunday they enjoyed a drive about the city and vicinity.

Even though Monday afternoon's game with the Star A. C., of Newark, was a walkover for the locals, it was a relief to see some hitting and fielding. In the recent Plainfield-Westfield contests there has been mighty little hitting and the fielders have had little to do.

Garvin promised Manager Johnson, before leaving town, that he would be on hand Saturday for the game against Westfield, and he hopes to report a different story than in Saturday's contest. That was Garvin's first game in two weeks and the intense heat affected him greatly. Notwithstanding this he pitched a great game.

More than ordinary interest is being shown in the approaching game between the Plainfield A. C. and the West Ends, of Somerville, to be played on Crescent Oval, Saturday, September 17. It is understood that the Somerville team will be strengthened and it is possible that George Wiltse, of the New York Nationals, will pitch. The West Ends expect to be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters.

A feature of the baseball contest at Crescent Oval Monday morning between Marcus Hoyt's team and the Sampstown Navy Yard aggregation, was the arrival of "Big Bird" Burt in his touring car. He came all the way from Philadelphia and reached the oval in time to save the game for his team. He went in the box and allowed but two hits and striking out eight men. He was ably assisted by his mate, "Old Bird" Slevin, whose hitting and base-running were features, as was also the work of Al. Egan, the catcher, whose throwing to second was great. As a "pinch hitter," Tommy Timbo maintained his reputation, and when the ball came to Wilson, it was "That's all." The Sampstown team refuses to play Hoyt's team another game until the latter gets a reputation.

FLANAGAN WOULDN'T DECLINE A NOMINATION

IF GUBERNATORIAL HONORS COME HIS WAY HE WILL ACCEPT.

Dr. F. W. Morse, of Westfield, who has been for more than twenty years a staunch Republican is a close friend of DeWitt C. Flanagan, of Morristown, has received from the latter this information under date of Aug. 27:

"I do not expect to run for Congress this fall, but have not positively made up my mind as yet. Some of my friends through the State have done me the honor to ask me to be a candidate for the nomination for Governor this fall, and I have replied to all that I should not seek the nomination either directly or indirectly, but if the party leaders and the delegates to the convention should consider me the most available candidate, it was an honor that no man should refuse."

James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth, a personal friend of Mr. Flanagan, was seen yesterday and was asked by a reporter whether it was true that Mr. Flanagan would not run this fall for Congressional honors. He said that from what Mr. Flanagan had said to him he would like the nomination provided there was no better man from a political viewpoint. If there was any other man in the Fifth Congressional District who could add more strength to the ticket, he would gladly step aside.

REINHART FAILS TO QUALIFY AT BALTUSROL

BUT ROBERT ABBOTT, ANOTHER PLAINFIELDER, IS PLAYING GOOD GAME.

There were more surprises in the play of the National amateur golf championship, at Baltusrol, yesterday, when in the playoff of the tie among the eight who finished in last place on Tuesday opened the tournament for the day. It was generally expected that Frank C. Reinhart, who made such a poor showing on Tuesday, would recover his form and get in with the first sixty-four. This was not to be and he as well as the majority of the eight fell down at the start and failed even to qualify. He repeated the bad golf which had brought him among the tailenders, although afterward he went around the course in 80. Among other Plainfielders who failed to qualify yesterday was W. L. Glenney.

Robert Abbott, one of the best players among the younger set at Hillside, is doing excellent work. His score by rounds thus far is as follows: First, 85; second, 86; third, 85; total, 256. Today he will play A. Havemeyer in the first match round, eighteen holes, and his friends predict for him a victory. Thus far H. C. Egan, of Exmoor, leads the tournament with a total score of 242.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room held on the evening of September 6, 1904, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

By the death of Joseph W. Yates Plainfield loses a valued citizen and the Board of Directors of the Public Library a member who has been associated with its work during the past twenty-one years. Mr. Yates was always faithful in the performance of his public duties. He appreciated the advantages of educational institutions and did his part to encourage and sustain them. He was one of the original contributors to the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room and Art Gallery, and was always interested in its work and its growth.

We, his associates in this board record this minute in recognition of the loss which we, in common with our fellow citizens, have suffered in his taking away, and direct the transmission of a copy of the same to his family as a token of our sympathy with them in their bereavement.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—For the fruit course, you cannot secure better looking fruit than those luscious Jersey peaches and big Bartlett pears Neuman Brothers sell. You can't match them for quality or flavor in the city.

—John Little, of East Third street, has gone to Taunton, Mass., to take charge of a department in the Campbell Press factory, formerly located here. His family will follow him in a short time.

Republican Meeting Place.

The Republican city committee has secured the Casino for holding mass meetings. It has been estimated that the Casino hall can hold more than 800 in mass meeting. The committee will probably decide upon some vacant store for their headquarters.

BOOK NEWS.

It is planned to issue on Thursday of each week items of library news. This will frequently take the form of book lists, such as lists of books recently added, lists on special subjects and like topics. Frequently the lists will be annotated, the aim being to make these annotations of real service to the reader, by giving him the opinion of a trustworthy critic as to the value of the books or a few words as to their scope. Borrowers should keep these lists. The Plainfield Public Library will furnish to anyone making application a list of its books on a given subject.

READY FOR WESTFIELD

Garvin in the Box for Plainfield Tomorrow.

9TH GAME OF SERIES

Contests on the Hillside and Park Golf Club Courses in Detail.

Although defeated on Saturday last by Westfield in the eighth contest of the series of ten, the Plainfield A. C. and its supporters are by no means discouraged and have not lost hope of winning the majority of games. In true sportsmanlike manner they feel certain that tomorrow's contest on Crescent Oval will be won by the locals and they know they have a fighting chance to win the tenth game at Westfield on Saturday, September 24, if this week's result is a victory for them. Many persons argue that the locals are not hitting the ball. This true, but equally so of the Westfields, although the latter have been a little more fortunate than Plainfield in this respect. In respect to fielding there is practically little difference in the teams.

Plainfield will have the advantage of a stronger man at short tomorrow, when it is expected that Hartman, formerly of Burlington, will play. He is a fast fielder and almost sure hitter, according to Captain to Captain Smith. Otherwise the lineup will be the same as last Saturday.

It must be admitted that Waller has been pitching phenomenal ball, and he is entitled to all the credit due him. On the other hand Garvin has been doing good work for Plainfield and under ordinary circumstances should have won his game a week ago. It was by no means his fault that victory did not come here. While he was holding Westfield down for ten innings without a run, it was up to Plainfield to bat out a couple of runs and win. It is hoped that the tide may turn tomorrow.

This will be the lineup for the Plainfield A. C.: Cusick, 2b; Bassford, rf; Oregan, lf; Farmer, c; Courtney, 3b; Dietrich, cf; Smith, 1b; Hartman, ss; Garvin, p.

Owing to the fact that Quinby has gone to Maine to visit his family, Manager Denman is compelled to make a few changes. Patience will be on second and Mallen will play center field. The manager announces this lineup: Seward, rf; Patience, 2b; Smithson, ss; Rochford, 1b; McManus, lf; Mallen, cf; Barry, 3b, Cotter, c; Waller, p.

Another baseball contest that is sure to attract a large crowd tomorrow will be between the Clinton Avenue team and one from the Steven's car works at Elizabeth. The contest will take place on the local grounds and will be for $10 a side.

There will be several golf events of interest on the local courses tomorrow. At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club there will be the weekly competition for the Golf Committee and Gaston cups and probably the play for the Holiday cup and another event of an unique character.

Besides the weekly competition for the President's and Park Golf Club cups, there will be a postponed match between teams from the Colonia and Park Clubs. This match was to have been played in June, but was postponed by request of the Colonia members. Within a short time the remaining matches in the Central Jersey Golf League tournament will be concluded.

This is the standing to date in the Central Jersey Golf League:

	Won.	Lost.
Westfield	3	0
Cranford	2	1
Park	0	2
Colonia	0	2

There will be the second round at match play in the Governors' competition at the Westfield Golf Club, tomorrow, among the survivors of the first round a week ago. The contestants are evenly matched and the play should be of unusual interest.

Proceedings in Tort.

Papers were issued from Justice Hand's court yesterday for the case in tort of Mrs. Ida M. Phillips against Miss Pauline Nast. The papers are returnable Monday morning; $200 is the amount of suit.

COMMISSION AT WORK

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert is Chosen President.

GEO. H. FROST RESIGNS

James F. Buckle Likely to Fill the Vacancy on the Board.

Following a long season of inactivity, the Plainfield Park Commission got together last night and it now looks as though something will be accomplished toward securing a suitable park for the city. While nothing definite was done last night, there was a discussion of the plans prepared for the proposed park on Randolph road, as well as other schemes, and future consideration will be given the subject for the purpose of deciding whether it will be wise to make any recommendation to the Common Council.

Those present last night were R. I. Tolles, Robert L. Lee, J. Stephen Higham and W. S. Tyler, representing the Common Council; Alexander Gilbert, P. V. B. VanWyck, D. L. S. Maclaren and J. F. Buckle. Although Mr. Buckle is not legally a member of the commission, it is likely that he will be appointed at the next meeting of the Common Council by President Tolles in place of George H. Frost, who was appointed in place of Jan vanHerwerden, but who declines to serve owing to many other duties.

Mr. Gilbert was chosen president of the commission. He will appoint a sub-committee of five from the commission to investigate the subject of a city park and the members will report to the commission at their convenience. Then some action will be taken regarding a report to the Common Council.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK IN OLD SOMERSET COUNTY

BOTH PARTIES ARE LIKELY TO POLL NORMAL VOTE.

A Trenton despatch in Wednesday's New York Tribune contained this reference to Somerset county politics:

"Reports received from Somerset County a day or two ago indicate general good feeling among the Republicans there. It is true that F. W. Olcott, who was one of the Republican electors for New Jersey four years ago, has declared that he will support Judge Parker in the present campaign. Mr. Olcott and Judge Parker have been warm personal friends for many years, it was said. It was not generally believed that Mr. Olcott's support of the Democratic Presidential ticket would lead him so far as to oppose State or local nominations. No other defections from the Republican party have been reported in Somerset County, but it is believed that some Hearst Democrats will decline to support the regular Democratic ticket.

"From information carefully gathered it would appear that President Roosevelt will receive the full and united support of the Republican party in Somerset County, and that, if ex-Senator Stokes should be nominated as the Republican candidate for Governor, there will be no break in the party support.

"Unless some changes in public sentiment occurs within a short time, Irving Hoagland probably will be the Republican candidate for the Assembly in Somerset County. The Democrats are undecided yet as to their nominee for the same office. The greater number of them, however, appear to be strongly in favor of the nomination of Nelson Dungan. The belief is popular that Mr. Dungan is the strongest Democrat in Somerset County, and that he would come nearer to defeating the Republican candidate than any one else who could be named. It is doubtful if Mr. Dungan would accept the nomination for the Assembly. Several of his intimate friends say that he would greatly prefer the nomination for State Senator, which is due next year, when, it is reported Senator Childs will not ask for a renomination at the hands of the Democrats.

COLORED BAPTISTS MEET

Twelfth Annual Session of State Afro-Americans.

IN MT. OLIVE CHURCH

Convention Began This Morning and Continues Until Sunday Night—The Proceedings.

Preceding the twelfth annual session of the Afro-American Baptist State convention, which opened at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, this morning at 10 o'clock, the annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Union was held yesterday, commencing in the forenoon. The session was opened with devotional exercises, after which reports were presented of the past year's work. These were all of an encouraging nature and showed an increase in membership, interest and contributions. The election of officers was held in the afternoon. These were chosen:

President, Mrs. S. E. Boroughs, Madison; vice president, Mrs. E. D. Crawley, Roselle; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. T. Watkins, East Orange; recording secretary, Mrs. N. J. Belts, Newark; treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Roberts, New Brunswick.

The treasurer's report showed that $484 was raised last year for all purposes. The sum of $61 was received at last night's session.

An early adjournment was taken and last night the women were addressed by Rev. Dr. A. J. Young, of Jersey City. He spoke of the grand work being accomplished by the Missionary Union and offered helpful suggestions for the continuance of the same.

When the convention opened this morning Rev. Dr. George Morris, of Morristown, was chosen to preside. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. P. H. Matthews, of Orange, and Rev. W. H. Taylor, of Elizabeth. Then followed the appointment of the various committees. At 11 o'clock the annual sermon was delivered by Rev. J. H. Travis, of East Orange, followed by the reading of letters.

At 1 o'clock dinner was served to the delegates in the basement of the church, the women of the church being in charge. Mrs. Lulu Dempsey, Mrs. M. S. Shields, Mrs. Richard Hancock and Mrs. P. H. Brown were at the head of the committee.

Among the other events on the programme this afternoon besides the president's annual address and an address on missions by Rev. Dr. C. S. Morris, of New York, the reading of the letter of welcome from the Mt. Olive Baptist church and response by Rev. J. W. Anderson, the delegates will be welcomed to the city by Mayor O. L. Jenkins, or his representative. There will also be the election and installation of officers.

This evening there will be addresses by Rev. C. S. Klugh and Rev. Dr. M. W. Gilbert, of New York.

The convention will continue tomorrow and Sunday, and will adjourn on Sunday noon. There were nearly 200 delegates to the Women's Missionary Union meeting and it is expected that there will be over twice that number to the regular convention. Rev. Dr. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, is very active in directing the business of the sessions and assisting to make the affair a success.

One of the most important matters to be considered by the convention will be the action of changing the name of the organization to the "New Jersey Baptist State Convention, (colored)." For some time the members have been dissatisfied with the name "Afro-American." In changing the name to that proposed and adding "(colored)," it distinguishes it from the white organization by that name in this State. Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, has been instrumental in bringing about the change which will probably be made today.

Jackson to Build.

Permit has been secured by James W. Jackson, of Crescent avenue, for the erection of a two-and-a-half story dwelling on West Seventh street, near Plainfield avenue. The building will be a frame structure, to measure 26x40 feet. Oscar S. Teale, of New York, is the architect. The mason work will be in charge of J. H. Snyder and Rimmer, Apgar & Cozen is to be the carpenter firm.

—Scheuer & Co.'s store will be closed Saturday, September 10, on account of holiday. Will open 6 o'clock in the evening. 9 7 3

—End of week special Marshal Ney, clear Havana diplomaticos, seven cents each, four for a quarter, at Kirch's, 120 North avenue. 9 9 2

CO. K'S COMMANDANT ON JERSEY EIGHT WHICH WON TROPHY.

Captain W. B. Martin, of Co. K, was a member of the rifle team of sharpshooters, representing the 1st, 2d and 3d Regiments, which won the Dryden trophy match at Sea Girt yesterday, after they had failed to get better than third place at the 200 yards and fourth at the 600 yards' target. Last year this trophy was won by the United States army infantry. The District of Columbia was second and New Jersey was third. The army shooters did not enter the contest this year.

Capt. Wm. B. Martin.

Yesterday's contest was the second annual match for the trophy which was presented to the State Rifle Association by United States Senator John F. Dryden, of Newark, to be competed for annually by teams of eight men from the regular army, navy and marine corps and the National Guardsmen of the various States. Government ammunition and service rifles were required.

The New Jersey team, in addition to the custody of the trophy for one year, receive $150 in cash; the second and third teams receive $100 and $50, respectively.

Captain Martin was one of three members of the team to tie for first place with a total score of 123. The total score made by the team was 987, as against 978 for Ohio, 969 for the United States Marine Corps, 967 for District of Columbia and 831 for Maryland.

REGIMENTAL PRIZE WINNER IS IN DOUBT

LIKELY THAT IT WILL GO EITHER TO PLAINFIELD OR PRINCETON.

While many members of Co. K believe that their organization has won the prize in the regimental shoot, they have been unable to get definite information as to the standing. It has been reported that the company is a tie with Co. L, of Princeton, for first place, but even this cannot be verified. If the conditions are that the company qualifying the greatest number of men gets first place, the local company will undoubtedly win, but if they provide for the highest per centage in marksmanship, it may be doubtful.

Co. K made special efforts this year to have as many members as possible appear on the State range and qualify. The result is that the number qualifying is the largets in its history. This is gratifying to Captain Martin, who has given unusual attention to his command this year. He has been on the range whenever the Plainfield boys have been there to practice and he has coached them with considerable success. Being an excellent marksman, the captain has been well qualified to instruct those under him.

The local company has felt the absence this year of Sergeant Albert I. Litteli, who has been laid up with a broken leg. There is perhaps no more enthusiastic member of the organization in the matter of rifle practice and largely through his untiring efforts the boys have become interested in this part of their work. It is often difficult for some of the boys to get off to practice at Sea Girt and if they are obliged to make a trip at other times than those prescribed it means some expense to them which they do not always feel like bearing. Word regarding the standing the company is expected at any time and the members are anxiously hoping that they have landed in first place.

A PYROTECHNIC DISPLAY

Italian Celebration Attended by a Great Throng.

GIFT TO BANDMASTER

Medal is Presented to Leader of of Musicians at Banquet in Hotel.

Fireworks such as seldom seen before in this city drew large crowds to Concert Park last evening on the occasion of the concluding exercises in the two days' celebration of the feast of Santa Maria Vargginia by the Italian societies of the city and borough. The band concert and fireworks drew nearly twice as many people last evening as the night before and there was no hitch in the musical programme or the display. Though the festivities did not conclude until late, few left the grounds before the final numbers were played and "Home Sweet Home" signalized the conclusion. Then there was a rush for the trolleys, which were taxed to their utmost capacity, many having come from the suburbs and from Westfield, New Brunswick, Somerville, and other towns on the through line.

The musical programme was especially well rendered. Under the direction of S. Nardiello, the twenty seven musicians on the stand gave most satisfactory rendition of a series of National and popular airs, interspersed with Italian melodies. Especially well performed was a piece where the melody was carried on by individual musicians dispersed through the grounds, giving an accurate representation of an echo.

The fireworks consisted of about a dozen elaborate set pieces and scores of mines, rockets and bombs. The exhibition was the feature of the celebration. Nicolo Mariano was in charge of the fireworks. The concluding piece was a twenty foot representation of a fancy goblet, reproduced in red, green and blue fire. The band played Italian airs during its display.

At the conclusion of the exercises, the societies and band adjourned to the Hotel Waldorf, where a banquet was served and speech-making followed. S. Nardiello, the leader of the band, was presented with a handsome gold medal by Salve Velard, leader of the society. The medal was purchased by the societies and Mayor Smalley, of the borough. A similar gold medal was presented to Nicolo Mariano, who was in charge of the fireworks display. Italians from societies of neighboring towns and Raritan were present at the banquet.

Salve Velard, the leader, announced this morning that the committee was nearly $75 behind in the expenses of the celebration. Opportunity for contribution from the public is asked to make up this deficit.

R. C. JUBILEE.

Three Months' Commemoration is Begun in the Local Churches.

Local Roman Catholics commenced yesterday a three months' celebration in commemoration of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. From now until December 8, members of the faith will observe the rules laid down by the Holy Father.

The celebration is in accordance with proclamation by Pope Pius IX, fifty years ago. Plainfield Catholic churches will observe the commemoration of the jubilee by a series of special services and masses.

In the Borough Court.

For causing a disturbance at Wednesday evening's fireworks exhibition, Albert King, of Summit avenue, appeared before Recorder Dond in the borough court last evening and received a suspension of sentence. His companion on Wednesday night was also to answer the same charge, but failed to appear, so that when he does come up for sentence, the Recorder will probably have a good sized stick ready for him. The borough police are on the look-out for the second man now.

Mrs. Whitney Now Over the Brook.

Mrs. "William C." Whitney, who recently figured in a sensational dispossess case on Watchung avenue, has secured apartment at Manning and Watchung avenue, in North Plainfield. Some time ago she announced herself the widow of the late William C. Whitney, but she is still seeking to prove her title so as to inherit part of the estate.

ROBT. ABBOTT FAILS AS DID F. O. REINHART

PLAINFIELD LOSES ALL CHANCE OF WINNING AT BALTUSROL.

Plainfield's one representative left in the National amateur golf tournament at Baltusrol, yesterday was Robert Abbott, but before the day's play was over he was defeated by A. Haveymeyer, of Sebright, 1 up in 19 holes. Abbott put up a great fight for position and honors were even until the last hole was reached.

Mr. Abbott has no reason to feel discouraged, however, as Walter J. Travis, the amateur champion, went down to defeat at the hands of George A. Ormiston, of Pittsburg, who made a 71 to 81 for Travis.

While the Plainfielders did not make as good a showing as was expected, especially Frank O. Reinhart, there is some satisfaction in knowing that some of the best players in the country were retired early in the tournamentand the calculations of the wiseacres were upset.

GREAT SCHOOL MASTER.

Tribute to Rev. Dr. George M. Whitney in Current Journal.

The educational [number of the Christian Advocate for last month contains an article of interest entitled "Two Great Methodist Schoolmaster by Two of Their Former Pupils." The accompanying illustrations are the pictures of Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, President of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, N. J., 1869-1904, and Rev. Dr. Herbert E. Fisk, President of the Northwestern Academy, Evanston, Ill., 1873-1904.

The head master of Hackettstown has for his chronicler Rev. Dr. Eugene A. Noble, who gives to Dr. Whitney's character, attainments and personality such unqualified praise as can only come from profound respect and affectionate regard.

HEBREW NEW YEAR FEAST

Congregation of Children of Israel to Observe Festival.

BEGINS AT SUNSET

All Shops to be Closed From To-Night Until Sunday Night.

Rosh hashona, the festival of the New Year, begins this evening and the celebration ceremonials will continue until sunset on Sunday. Today is the first of the month Tishri and marks the birth of the year 5665 in the Herbew calendar, which goes more than 3,500 years back of the beginning of the Christian era. The services in the Congregation Children of Israel synagogue will probably be conducted by a rabbi from New York, arrangements having been made for that purpose yesterday.

As the festival continues for forty-eight hours all places of business controlled by Hebrews will be closed tomorrow. When questioned as to the failure of certain Hebrews to live up to the strict observance of the custom of closing for the entire duration of the festival, a prominent trustee of the local congregation said that contrary to the general belief it was not due to any question of orthodoxy but a merely personal and mercenary preference for keeping open shop.

It is expected that some of the New York people who attended the dedication ceremonies at the synagogue recently will be in this city for a part at least of the festival. Among the expected visitors will be Mr. Compus, a New York merchant, who paid $100 for the privilege of laying the first brick in the foundation of the building last fall and who was the donor of the silver pointer which William Newcorn presented to the congregation in his behalf at the dedication.

Another important date in the Hebrew calendar will fall on Monday, September 19, when the Day of Atonement will be rigidly observed by all consistent Hebrews. Like other Jewish church observances, this day begins at sunset; in this case on Sunday evening and continues until the same hour Monday. During this time atonement is offered by continuous prayer and fasting throughout the day for the transgressions of the past year. This ceremony forms one of the most impressive in the Jewish religion, especially when one recollects that all over the inhabited world the same form is being gone through with on the same day by millions of the Chosen People as has been their custom for over 5,000 years.

All visitors, whether Jew or Gentile, will be welcome at tomorrow's New Year celebration and many are expected to be present.

BURMESE SPEAKER.

Nellie Tolu Addresses the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of First Baptist Church.

The meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, held Wednesday afternoon at the church, was addressed by Miss Nellie Tolu, of Burmah. Miss Tolu, or Miss Yaba, as she is often called, is the daughter of Yaba Tolu, a Karen, who was brought to this country about thrty-five years ago in company with another Karen boy, Myaasa Pokway.

They were educated by the First Baptist church, and spent their vacations from college at the homes of the late William White, of North Plainfield, and the late Evan Jones, who resided at that time on Watchung avenue. Yaba became a teacher and Myaasa is pastor of the Baptist church at Bassein, Burmah.

Miss Tolu has come to America to secure a medical education, hoping to practice medicine in her native land. She speaks English fluently and is an interesting speaker.

Men's Meeting Speaker.

Rev. J. A. Francis has been secured as the speaker at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He has been a very popular supply at the First Baptist church of this city where he supplied the pulpit for four Sundays.

In Justice Hand's Court.

Judgment for $11.75 and costs has been awarded Peter Dixon, who recently brought contract proceedings against Mrs. Emaline Ruggles.

—With such excellent quality peaches selling at 85c, $1 and $1.25 a basket at Neuman Brothers, you can't afford to put off your preserving any longer. There'll be 200 baskets of choice yellow and white Jersey fruit on sale there in the morning.

In a new house or in an old house, electric wiring is easily introduced. Allen B. Laing, the North avenue electrician, does the work.

Whenever you contemplate building consult Contractor Titus H. Laury. If he gets the work you can rest assured it will be done to suit you.

A nickel smoke; a Nickel Yara. And it's a first-rate smoke, too. Dobbins, the tobacconist, sells them. His store is at the end of North avenue.

First-class hotel accommodations with private dining rooms can be reasonably secured at the Hotel Waldorf, on East Front street. Henry Windham, proprietor.

Hoagland's express is the surest medium of local transportation to which you can entrust your goods because skillful as well as responsible people have the work in hand.

If your next winter's supply of coal is purchased from the Keely Coal Company on South avenue, you will be assured of plenty of heat and entire satisfaction will be found in the burning of the coal.

Is your watch "out of sorts"? Dirt in the works, that's what's the matter. Take it to Moraller's, the Park avenue jeweler, and have it put in condition. A watch needs overhauling at least once a year.

Have you looked into the water question thoroughly? If you contemplate the use of a fine table water as many people do when placed on a diet by their physician, just look up the analysis of Washington Rock Water and judge accordingly.

Peck is showing the finest assortment of flannels ever seen in the city. They represent all that is best in French, English, Scotch and angora flannels made. The same quality pervades the whole stock as his regular patrons are well aware.

Carry on your banking with the City National Bank. This organization is conducted upon first-class business principles and has a powerful financial backing. There is an interest department and strong vaults for the storage of silverware and valuable papers. Front street and Park avenue.

Let the Plainfield Trust Company take care of your money for you. It will not only be absolutely safe and available at any time you want to use it but will be earning interest at a fair rate which will be compounded every six months. No banking institution in the State has a more thoroughly representative board of directors.

While the extensive alterations are being made at the dry goods store of Levy Brothers on West Front street, exceptional opportunities will be offered for bargains. A special drive is now made in hosiery for school children, and school dresses, also muslin skirts, while other departments are filled with bargains. Don't forget that a finely-appointed millinery department is a feature of this store.

Prepare the children for school by getting their outfits at the Surprise Store, 324 West Front street. Prices are right and the goods could not be better. Boys' D. B. and Norfolk school suits that cannot be equalled for serviceability and neatness of appearance at figures that are only exceeded in attractiveness by the famous "Cadet" waists and blouses. "Eagle" and "Lucky" school shoes for misses and girls too. The kind that wear as well as they look and look well enough to wear anywhere.

THE FORUM.

Communications from readers of The Daily Press on all subjects of local interest are invited. All such communications must be stripped of personalities, and must be signed by the writer. His name will not necessarily be published. The editor is not responsible for views expressed in this column.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The Church of the Heavenly Rest, Clinton avenue, has had twenty years' existence, yet now there seems to be a new awakening to it. A bright enthusiastic young minister is in charge. He is planning for a glorious winter's work. A class for confirmation is announced; class to meet in the church on Friday evenings at 7:45 o'clock, the first one on Friday evening, September 16, at 7:45 o'clock, to which the people in general are invited. He also announced the reopening of the Sunday-school next Sunday morning, at 9:45 o'clock, earnestly requesting every teacher and pupil to be there promptly. Holy communion will be celebrated at the 11 o'clock service. Hoping the time is not far distant when this little mission shall become a flourishing parish, he wishes all interested to attend and become interested in the work, I am,

A Well Wisher.

SHELLED KORSAKOFF

Japanese Bombard Russian Harbor of Refuge.

JAP COLUMN BLOWN SKY HIGH.

Mine Exploded Under Marching Regiment—Oyama Trying Again to Encircle Kuropatkin's Army. Fight Near Shakhe.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Japanese have bombarded Korsakoff, the port on the island of Sakhalin in which the cruiser Novik took refuge after her escape from Port Arthur and where she was destroyed by ships of Admiral Kamimura's squadron.

Japanese cruisers shelled the town for several hours. It is thought this action was taken to prevent Korsakoff becoming a harbor of refuge for Russian ships.

A Chefu report says that a Japanese column numbering approximately 700 men while marching along at night in the valley between Long hill and Division hill met a frightful disaster through the explosion of an electric land mine. The mine was carefully laid by the Russians three weeks ago. It covered nearly a mile of available marching space. The explosive was placed at the bottom. Rocks were placed next, and on top of these clay was packed so carefully that the ground gave the impression of not having been disturbed. The indications of Japanese activity in this vicinity put the Russians on guard. Near midnight the outposts rushed in and reported that the Japanese were approaching. The Russians withheld their fire for some time. Suddenly they threw a searchlight up the valley. The Japanese opened with a rifle fire. The Russians waited until apparently the whole Japanese column was in the danger zone. Then the mine was exploded. The force of the explosion knocked a number of Russians down, and the sight of Japanese rifles, water bottles, legs and arms hurling through the lighted space made by the searchlight was an awful spectacle. Some rocks landed inside the Russian lines. There was one appalling moment, during which the garrison itself was stunned, then a deathlike silence. The searchlight coldly lighted up the road and hillsides strewn with dead. The following day the Russians buried the dead, but owing to their dismembered and mutilated condition the Russians were unable to accurately estimate the number of killed.

A Harbin dispatch says that it is thought Field Marshal Oyama is trying to repeat at Mukden the enveloping movement which failed at Liaoyang.

If the armies continue to race northward to Tie pass, forty miles north of Mukden, in the opinion of the best military critics it will become of supreme importance to Kuropatkin if the door of his retreat is closed there. In the event of defeat he would be forced westward.

In order to protect his army against such a possible catastrophe Russian troops from Harbin have taken possession of this pass.

Advices from Mukden say that a fight has occurred at some point between Shakhe (eleven miles northwest of Liaoyang) and Mukden, and news of it is hourly expected.

Among the many reports current is one to the effect that General Kuroki has been killed and that two Japanese generals have been made prisoners, but no one seems to know where the reports originated and no confirmation is obtainable.

The fighting near Mukden has ceased, and the Russian transports and army are moving without interruption. There is much uncertainty concerning the movements and purpose of the Japanese.

General Kuropatkin evidently is not seeking to renew the battle, but if challenged he will not decline an engagement.

The best information of the war office indicates that General Kuropatkin lost about 17,000 men during the ten days' battle at Liaoyang.

General Kuropatkin reports that he did not lose a gun during the retreat.

Roosevelt Sent Chair and Books.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt has presented to the Oyster Bay Free library the chair presented to him when he was governor of New York. It is a highbacked mahogany chair, richly carved and upholstered in leather. On the back is a silver plate bearing this inscription: "The State of New York. Theodore Roosevelt, Governor, 1898-1900." In addition to the chair the president also presented to the library fifty volumes of history. No formalities attended the presentation of the gifts. Having been informed they would be very acceptable, President Roosevelt merely sent them to the library by messenger.

Wheat Burned For Seven Months.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—City Surveyor Raleigh C. Thomas reported to the burned district commission that his men, who were doing some field work on Smith's wharf here, uncovered a large quantity of wheat that was still burning—exactly seven months after Baltimore's big fire. "The wheat was so hot," said Mr. Thomas, "that we could not handle it. We had to let it cool off before we could proceed with the work. The wheat was in solid chunks, but the grains were distinctly visible."

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 9, 1904.

It looks very much as if North Plainfield Republicans will cast their congressional and gubernatorial votes for Trenton men.

Don't beg in your advertisement. If there is one thing above another that people despise, it is a beggar. Write your ads in such a way as to leave the impression that it is as much to your customer's interest to buy as it is to your interest to sell.—Ex.

The address made by Mr. Parker to the Democratic editors yesterday was lofty in tone and was characteristic of the man. It was a decided contrast to the speech of a spellbinder and showed very clearly that the Sage of Esopus does not intend to sink to the level of a Mr. Bryan in his appeal for votes.

It is unfortunate that there is no legal remedy when an objectionable structure is erected in a district wholly confined to handsome residences, for it does seem that the shack occupied by Italians in East Front street will depreciate the value of property in the immediate vicinity as well as spoil the neighborhood. The house occupied by Marro, the Italian, is wholly out of keeping with the surroundings and it would be impossible to convince any fair minded person that it was not built for some ulterior purpose. In fact it is a disgrace to the neighborhood. Naturally the adjoining property owners are indignant, but it is sensible for them to refuse to buy the tract upon which the shack stands. The offers made to former Mayor Randolph, who owns a valuable estate near by, lead one to believe that the purchase of the piece of ground and the erection of the type of building which now disgraces the immediate vicinity was a scheme of a questionable kind, although there is no direct proof. Marro, the reputed owner, must answer in the local court for the alleged violation of city ordinances. We believe that if he is proven guilty of the offences charged no mercy should be shown him. Plainfield is too small a place for men who deliberately wreck a neighborhood and the sooner they are made to learn it the better it will be for the community.

O. F. C. PLANS.

Squad of Candidates for Eleven to be Tried To-Night.

The big squad of candidates for positions on the football eleven to be put in the field this season by the Orange Field Club will meet this evening on the club grounds on Westervelt avenue for the initial try-out practice and warming-up of the year. A dozen members of last year's squad are again eligible to draw from and these men represent the best and fastest of the material. In addition to them, twenty-four fast and heavy local football players have signified their willingness to enter the season's try-out. Among these are Irving Martin, for several seasons a fast player on the end and in at quarter, Howard Guinn, last year's Alis centre, Edward Slingland, Harry Kenyon, Lucius Koons and Jack Douglass.

With all this material on hand, the club management has made up the nucleus of a good schedule, and Clifford Smith, the team's manager, is anxious to book games with other teams in city, borough and vicinity. Among the games thus far arranged are a series with the Indian League teams of Brooklyn, to be played in this city. The season for the Orange Club players will open two weeks from tomorrow, when the team will play a practice game.

No field has been secured yet for use during the season's games, but a committee has been appointed and is considering several fields for grounds. It may be possible that the club can make some arrangement for joint use of grounds with the Alis Club. Final arrangements will be completed within two weeks.

—Rockyford melons have a flavor all their own. Once tasted, always sought after. Neuman Brothers sell them. A consignment tomorrow.

CAST FOR "HECTOR" AND ENTIRE PROGRAMME

SERPENTINE AND FANCY DANCES AND ILLUSTRATED SONGS.

Charles Lawrence's comedy, "Hector," which is to be produced at the South Plainfield Hall Friday evening, September 16, by the Willard Dramatic Club, provides in its happy arrangement of characters almost endless opportunity for the members of the cast to distinguish themselves in their interpretation of the wholesome humor of the author. The performance is to be for the benefit of the local council of the Daughters of Liberty and parts in the cast have already been assigned as follows: Frederick Long, a merchant, A. K. Willard; Louise, his wife, Mrs. Willard; Oscar Spence, a young student, Mortimer Slater; Jacob Einstein, a pawnbroker, Harvey R. Linbarger; August, a servant, M. D. Sweeney; Watson, a clerk, Walter Emmons; Fanny, a chambermaid, Miss Lottie Willard; a messenger boy, Harold Willard.

The programme will also include serpentine and fancy dances by Mrs. Willard, illustrated songs by an artist from New York and cornet solos by Ben LaVere. The hall has a seating capacity of about seven hundred people, and a good stage. The latter will be improved by the addition of some of Mr. Willard's properties and effects, which together with Mortimer Slater's skill as an electrician, will add greatly to the effectiveness of the presentation. Frequent rehearsals are being held and the members of the cast are rapidly rounding into professional form. A large attendance is expected as the citizens of South Plainfield and vicinity are in the habit of filling the hall to its full limit whenever an attraction of any merit is offered them.

Old Livery to Dissolve.

Mrs. Keely, who with the assistance of her son, John E. Keely, of East Seventh street, has conducted the extensive livery business since the death of Patrick Keely, some years ago, has decided to dispose of the same during the latter part of the month. With this action, one of the oldest livery concerns in the city will go out of business. It was started many years ago by the late Mr. Keely and conducted with considerable success.

Teachers' Union Anniversary.

Extensive preparations are being made by the members of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union for the observance of the ninth anniversary to be held Monday afternoon in the small hall at the Y. M. C. A. There will be a programme of music and addresses by prominent workers.

Mrs. F. G. Mead and daughter, of East Front street, are home from Rhode Island, where they have been spending the summer.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Bijou Theatre on Monday evening, September 19, a distinguished visitor will make his first bow to a New York audience, "Mr. Wix of Wickham," one of the funniest and cleverest of modern comedy characters will then be introduced by that versatile impressario, Edward E. Rice. Mr. Wix is a department store manager, who, by a whimsical turn of fortune's wheel, is for a time placed in the proud position of heir to an English dukedom. Throughout the two acts of this ultra-modern musical comedy in which his adventures are presented, he is surrounded with a number of well contrasted principal characters played by capable artists, and all are set in the midst of a rose-bud garden of feminine beauty. Manager Sire has made all the improvements suggested by the city authorities and the cosey Bijou will be one of the most attractive places of amusement in the city. The sale of seats for the opening performances will commence Thursday morning, September 15.

Blanche Walsh, whom Grand Opera House patrons have missed for many seasons, will make her reappearance in the Grand Opera House theatre on Monday evening, September 12. She will be seen in "Resurrection" with the complete and elaborate production precisely as it was presented at the Victoria Theatre last year when it had a run of 150 nights. Interest in this engagement is pronounced, not only because the play has been the dramatic sensation of Europe as well as America, but because Miss Walsh in the role of Maslova has made the most distinct personal triumph that has been recorded of any actress on the American stage in the serious drama in many seasons There have been many plays presented under this title, but there is only one play that has been the basis for all the controversial comment which "Resurrection" has called forth and that is the play our patrons will have opportunity of witnessing next week. It was dramatized from Tolstoy's famous novel by Henri Bataille, produced first in Paris, then in London and lastly in New York. It proved a dramatic sensation abroad, but in America it has enjoyed a far greater success than elsewhere, thanks to the brilliant work of Miss Walsh in the leading character of Maslova, which is more or less the play.

HAMBURG BELLE.

Favorite Won Easily at Sheepshead Bay Track.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Hamburg Belle, the 7 to 5 favorite, won the Flight stakes at Sheepshead Bay. Hamburg Belle and Alan-a-Dale ran close together to the bend, where Alan-a-Dale stopped. Hamburg Belle then took the lead and won easily by one length from Jocund, an added starter. Alan-a-Dale was third.

The Russet handicap, one mile and a half on the turf, went to Shorthose. Dalesman, who was played down from 8 to 1 to 5 to 1, made the pace for five furlongs, when he ran out, and Rose-tint showed the way to the stretch, where Odom sent Shorthose through next to the rail and won. Councilman, a two-year-old and favorite, won the fourth race, one mile, by eight lengths against older horses. He ran the mile in 1 minute 39 3-5 seconds.

New Jersey Got Dryden Trophy.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 9.—New Jersey won the Dryden trophy match, the most important event of the meet, by surpassing the work of the other competitors at the 1,000 yards range. At the conclusion of the firing at 600 yards, the second of the three stages of the match, the Jersey team stood fourth and was 20 points behind the leader, Ohio. At the longest range, however, the Jerseymen forged to the front and passed the United States marine corps, the District of Columbia and Ohio, who took second place, and won the contest with a lead of 9 points over the next highest competitor. The marine corps was third.

Racing at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 9.—Good thing players had another inning at Highland park. The first coup was effected with Safeguard in the first race. Safeguard opened at 10 to 1, but was backed to 4 and won in a driving finish with Alibert. Again in the fourth the long shot players backed Martha Celia from 20 to 8 to 1, and that filly came home a winner. The third attempted killing was with Narod in the steeplechase, but the horse fell in the first turn of the field, and Sam Harmer won easily from Balzac. None of the other winners were first choices, favorites, as a rule, just falling to land.

Sweet Marie Was Beaten.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 9.—Twenty thousand people saw the great Charter Oak stake of $10,000 trotted at Charter Oak park in the grand circuit meeting. While under the conditions each heat was a race, the feature was the beating of Sweet Marie, the favorite, by Tiverton, the second choice. Although Tiverton won the major part of the money, Dr. Strong furnished the sensational trotting of the race. He won the first heat in 2 minutes 7½ seconds, which equaled the fastest mile ever made in this event.

Jack Young at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9.—Jack Young, the extreme outsider in the betting, won the Delmar feature by half a length from the Regent, third choice, who was five lengths in front of Just So.

Dan Patch Failed.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 9.—At the state fair park yesterday Dan Patch attempted to lower his record of 1:56¼. The best he could do on the heavy track was 2:03¼.

LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

THE MODISTIC HORIZON.

The Vogue of Painted Lace—Colors For Traveling Toilets.

There are indications no bigger than a man's hand on the modistic horizon that painted lace is again coming to the fore. On one or two handsome coats seen at a Paris atelier it has made its appearance. In one instance the lace was introduced on a beautiful coat of pompadour silk, with a hood of real valenciennes, while a deep flounce of the same ran all round the bottom. The flounce was headed by tiny rosettes of pale pink, mauve and blue ribbon.

WHITE CLOTH FROCK.

There is no reason to quarrel with painted lace any more than with painted chiffon, provided the lace subjected to this treatment is of the cheaper varieties. To paint old lace is almost a crime.

The colors most in vogue for traveling costumes just now are those which come under the general head of pain brulle, running up the scale from the palest buff to a bright and very charming nut brown.

In the millinery world the brilliant shades of parrot are still in great demand. Entire green hats are shown in the shops, and owls' heads, breasts or wings of vivid green are in high favor. The idea of having the hat match the costume is gaining popularity with amazing rapidity, and milady may find it necessary in the very near future to purchase a new hat with every gown. The large, short back sailors, with straight brims, or those bent down at the back have been christened the Charlotte Corday and are almost universally becoming. The crowns are square, round, oval or triangular and surrounded by velvet ribbon, arranged in conventional loops.

A white cloth frock is an indispensable possession of the smart woman, and the picture given is of this genre. The skirt is accordion plaited, while the stunning coat, with its three-quarter length basque, is bordered and trimmed with knife plaited frills of white taffeta glace, the upper part being arranged with frills that are curved to give a bolero effect.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE WORLD OF CLOTHES.

The Indispensable Dinner Jacket—A New Voile Material.

The coffee coat, or, as many prefer to call it, the home dinner jacket, has ceased to be a fashion and has become an indispensable necessity. It is such a comfort to slip into a pretty loose dinner jacket after a strenuous day instead of getting into an elaborate dinner blouse. The coffee coat, too, is to the single girl what the tea gown is to the married woman.

SPOTTED CHALLIE WAIST.

Point d'esprit mounted on a lining foundation of brussels net is a delightful combination for a jacket of this sort.

A new material belonging to the voile family has recently made its appearance. It is very similar in weave to voile, but much finer and so glossy that when seen from a distance in certain lights it has been compared to spun glass. Gowns of this new material will be trimmed with heavy lace which sets off the pretty glossy fabric to the best advantage.

Could there be a daintier or more girlish waist than the one in the picture carried out in spotted challie, with cambric hemstitched yoke and pretty cavalier cuffs? JUDIC CHOLLET.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1903, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"He may have the frigate," answered Hawke. "Do you go over there and get your things and shift them to the Torbay. Tell him that I shall want him to keep ahead of the fleet and to starboard just within signalling distance. The Coventry will be in the same position to larboard. I want a bright lookout kept for Confians, too."

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE SINISTER EFFACEMENT OF A SHIP.

MEANWHILE, what of Grafton and the Torbay? He first engaged La Formidable and poured his broadsides into L'Heros and Le Magnifique, and had successfully hammered his way through the French rear until he brought his vessel alongside Le Thesee.

De Kersaint had well and worthily upheld his reputation as a skilled seaman and a great fighter upon that day, and all of the advancing British ships bore the marks of his prowess. It so happened that neither Le Thesee nor the Torbay had been materially injured in their previous fighting, and it also happened that the chance arrangements of the battle, which placed them side by side, left them to fight it out unhindered. Never were two ships more fairly and equally matched in size, gun power, crew and captain.

Grafton had no personal animosity toward de Kersaint. On the contrary, he had pursued him as a foeman entirely worthy of his steel. He knew the man, and that he would certainly be found in the thick of the action. He trusted to compel him to strike, in which case he could at once obtain possession of Anne—and that was the guiding hope of his heart. Other captains might be fighting for duty alone, or for the sheer love of the combat; he was swayed by all of these emotions, but he fought for love, too—for a woman, his wife!

He resolutely put out of his mind the peril she would be in. He had to do it. To dwell upon it would have unnerved him. Like most men of action, he was something of a fatalist, and he believed that Providence, which had brought about the present state of affairs, would inevitably bring them together again happily in the end. He knew that some one had to fire upon Le Thesee, and he preferred to do it himself. He reassured himself by thinking that Anne was stowed away safely in the chain-lockers—which was true—and that her peril would not be great.

At any rate, he found himself at last alongside his desire, but to leeward, a fact which, though he deplored it at the time, afterward turned out fortunately for him. The leeward ship practically has to await the decision of the weather ship, which may attack at pleasure, hence the advantage of the windward position. The windward enemy may attack, or wait, the leeward must wait or run.

De Kersaint had no idea of retreating, however. His national hatred of all Englishmen had at last got itself localized and was correspondingly deadly and bitter. He had learned—indeed, it had been impossible to conceal it from him—that his promised bride had been married to Capt. Grafton. He hoped and intended to kill the Englishman sometime, perhaps on that day of battle, and then marry the woman he loved, as if that previous marriage had never taken place. Her loss only intensified his love for her.

She did not love him, evidently; indeed, she made no secret of her love for her husband. What mattered it? The passion of the old makes up in intensity and persistence for the lost opportunities of youth. The follies of love—the greatest follies, that is, after all—are the follies not of youth, but of old age! He would have her, anyway, with or without her love, in the end. De Kersaint had surmised that Grafton would certainly be upon one of the ships of Hawke's fleet, though upon which one he could not, of course, determine.

The two ships were very close together before they engaged, each reserving his fire for a smashing blow, and the men on the poop-decks were already clearly visible to each other. Grafton could see the huge form of de Kersaint standing to leeward, looking at the Torbay as she came up. By his side stood the tall, thin form of the old marquis. Behind him rose the burly person of faithful Jean-Renaud.

They had embarked, as the marquis had declared, then. In order to get a better view of them Grafton sprang up on the rail, and, steadying himself by the backstay, stared hard at the little group on Le Thesee. Where was his wife, he wondered, with a word of quick prayer. Anxiety unspeakable filled his soul.

At the same moment the Frenchmen recognized him. The marquis pointed him out to de Kersaint. The count flung his hand to Heaven in a gesture half of rapture, half of prayer, and shouted an order for Le Thesee to put up her helm and swing toward the Torbay. Joy was in the Breton's heart and savage determination. The opportunity he had prayed for was granted him.

"He's coming!" cried Grafton to the men of his staff, as he saw the movement. "To the batteries, gentlemen! Tell them to be ready—— By Heaven, he's opening his main-deck ports in such a sea! We'll not be outdone by him. And his is the greater risk. Have our main batteries scaled."

He welcomed the attack with a fierce pleasure; the distraction of action alone saved him from breaking his heart. A short space of water and two wooden walls separated him from his wife—so little, yet the water was lashed into mad turbulence by the tempest, and the wooden walls were pierced by 100 guns ready to sweep him from the sea. Yet he would have her!

Both ships were, of course, heeled to the wind, but Le Thesee, being to windward, was forced to fight her lee battery; and the main-deck ports, as she lay over under the furious gale, were so close to the waves that the waters splashed and rippled over the port-sills with every roll. It was reckless trifling with the deadliest of perils, but that he could do so indicated the emotions animating the soul of the French captain. Grafton, being to leeward, fought his windward guns, and the inclination of the ship lifted his own main-deck battery a little farther above the water. Still, his own position was also dangerous in the extreme.

Hawke had opened his main-deck ports, but it was in the stiller waters of the bay that he had done so. Grafton and de Kersaint were yet off the Cardinals, the very roughest, stormiest position in the melee taking place all about them. Their action was madness; yet, if the Frenchman did it in his overwhelming desire to crush the man who had stolen his bride, and now rolled along under his lee, the Englishman could do no less than meet him.

Simultaneously the two broadsides roared out. Again and again, as the ships swept on, they poured a torrent of destruction upon each other from every gun that bore. The firing upon both sides was fast and furious, but the English, with the advantage of the weather battery, proved the better gunners. Many of the shot from the French ship struck the water and glanced over the English ship, but the steady broadside from the Torbay made deadly havoc on the magnificent French liner. Yet her offensive powers seemed undiminished, and she fought on. The Torbay, too, soon began to show evidences of the terrific pounding she was receiving. Both ships were filled with dead and wounded men and were much cut up alow and aloft.

Grafton fought to win his wife, to serve his country, to avenge the shattering of the little Boxer five years before, and with no bitterness in his heart. De Kersaint fought not only for the honor of France, but with a jealous rage in his heart to kill the man who stood between him and his hopes. Neither would be denied. They drew nearer to each other. De Kersaint resolved to resort to a coup de main. Grafton also at last made up his mind that he would have to carry the opposing ship by boarding, which was quite in consonance with his desire. He had even gone so far as to call his boarders away, when a sudden squall struck the two ships. For the moment the wind blew a hurricane.

The two vessels heeled suddenly under the terrific impact, going over and over under the irresistible pressure until they lay almost upon their beam-ends. De Kersaint put the helm of Le Thesee hard down at once. But she did not respond. The water rushed in her open ports. She began to settle like a stone, righting slowly as she went down. The Torbay was scarcely in better condition. On the return roll to windward the water began to rush in her main-deck ports also.

"Close the main-deck ports!" shouted Grafton, as he saw the French ship going so fast, his first impulse being to save his own ship. "Lively, for God's sake!" The peril of the ship was reflected in his voice.

The men below sprang to the port-shutters, and in spite of the fact that the water was already sweeping in, by superhuman efforts they got them closed, but not until the ship had been half filled. She lay like a sodden log in the waves, six feet of water in the hold. The gun fire had ceased instantly.

Meantime, what of Le Thesee?

Grafton stood in the darkening evening on the rail of his own ship and stared at his rival. She was sinking in silence. No human power could keep her afloat. Before his eyes the water was streaming through the open ports and gushing in through her riven sides. It had come so suddenly that there was scarcely time for those below to reach the spar-deck, which was yet swarming with men. Where was Anne? O God, was she below still?—abandoned! lost!

A little group still stood on the quarter nearest him. There was de Kersaint, the bold captain; by his side a young man, his head bound about with a blood-spattered cloth, his arm hanging useless by his side. It was de Vitre. There was the marquis, too, tall, spare, imperturbable as ever. There was old Jean-Renaud staggering aft, and in his arms—God of Heaven, a woman! The faithful old Breton placed her on the rail and held her there erect. The stop of Grafton's heart told him who. Her black hair was blown away from her face by the force of the wind. She stood, without a cloak, in a white dress, like a bride of death. She recognized him, stretched out her hands toward him in love and appeal. It was his wife. There was nothing he could do. He was helpless. He could only look and look—he could not pray, even.

LEAPED WITH HER FAR OUT.

The French ship was lower now. Her decks were awash. Anne waved her hand to him in farewell. He cried out to her over the dark water. She could not hear. His wife! His wife! O God, his wife!

The old marquis laid his hand tenderly upon her shoulder, striving to calm her. De Vitre had fallen forward and lay motionless on the rail. Perhaps, happily, he was dead already. De Kersaint stood undaunted, with folded arms, looking at Le Thesee sinking before and with him. The habit of years had re-established itself. He was a sailor first of all now. He would go down with his ship with colors flying.

Old Jean-Renaud suddenly stepped upon the rail. He took Anne in his arms. What was he about to do? The marquis nodded his head, kissed his granddaughter's hand, and that faithful Breton leaped with her far out into the black waters. He would fight for her life. Her husband watched him strike boldly out with her, and then a wave rolled over them and they were gone from view. It had all transpired in a few moments.

"Starboard the helm!" shouted Grafton, awakening from his daze of agony. "Flow the head-sheets!"

"My God, Capt. Grafton!" cried his first lieutenant, an old and experienced seaman, "what mean you to do?"

"Luff up toward yon ship!"

"But, sir, we can't do it. Our vessel is full of water!"

"Sir, sir," cried the master, "we'll sink in this wind! We must go off or lose the ship!"

"My God, sir, look at the French ship!" cried another man.

GRANT AT BULL RUN

Strong Position Held by Army of the Blue.

WINT HARASSING BELL'S ADVANCE

Grant Has Selected a Position to Defend Washington So That He Can Be Easily Re-enforced by Reserves That Are on the Way.

GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 9.—General Grant, commanding the blue army, holds a strong position behind Bull Run. This fact has not yet been ascertained by General Bell, commanding the attacking brown army. The advance along the Wellington pike was harassed just west of Pageland lane by the first brigade of General Grant's army, under General Wint. General Bell opposed this force with his first brigade, under General Lee. Taking this as his adversary's center, he threw the brigades of Barry, Regan and Smith to the right of Lee, seemingly in an effort to get around what would be the original left wing of the blue army. When nightfall came this had not been accomplished, owing to the distance the main line of the blue army was behind its rear guard or Wint's brigade.

General Grant selected the position behind Bull Run in which to defend Washington in order that it might be as easy as possible for his re-enforcements, which are on the way, to join him. His position is not what General Bell evidently has calculated on in ordering his turning movement, so the Parker Greets Democratic Scribes With First Speech.

HARMONY ESSENTIAL TO SUCCESS

Candidate Said He Need Not Hesitate to Compare Statesmen of Cleveland's Cabinet With Those of Present Administration.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The Democratic editors journeyed by the steamboat St. John, which awaited them at Hyde Park on their arrival by train from New York. They were met by Secretary McCausland and the Rev. C. M. Hall and were conducted to Judge Parker's home.

The editors cheered for two minutes when Judge Parker greeted them.

When the handshaking was over the editors gathered on the lawn south of the house.

In reply to Charles W. Knapp of the St. Louis Republic, who was the spokesman chosen by the editors to address the presidential candidate in their behalf, Judge Parker said:

"It is indeed a great pleasure to welcome to Rosemount this body of representatives of the great American press, one of the mighty forces in the upbuilding and strengthening of a sturdy American citizenship.

"You have been in conference to the end that your work in this campaign may be as effective as possible. Organized effort and concerted action must always increase the effectiveness of the common endeavor of many hands.

"The leaders who have made a thoroughfare through history, down which in all the centuries their fame will march with giant strides, have all been men who, though unmoved by hasty expression of the hurried judgment of the people, were yet guided in all their public acts by the knowledge of what the deliberate and mature judgment and will of the people would be.

"So the great papers are those which anticipate the careful judgment of the majority. The great tribunal of the American people may be implicitly relied on to decide all questions with unerring and exact justice when all the evidence is in and deliberation had, and those who would hold place as leaders of the people must be so thoroughly American, so discreet, so far-sighted and so sure of the pulse of the people as to discern the course public opinion will take. Though the instant judgment of the people may be often at fault, the ripe and final decision is always for the right. And the part of leadership is to know the right and to honestly, patriotically, fearlessly and zealously advocate it.

"Just as long as the press can discern and lead the unhurried and well considered judgment of the people so long will its power grow mightily and so long will it hold its place in the front rank of the unfaltering and vigorous march of national progress. To the upbuilding of the power of the press and to the best use of that power you have devoted yourselves.

"There are questions of great import to be passed upon by the people in November—questions that it will be your duty and therefore, I, am sure, your pleasure as well, to present honestly and so clearly that the people will understand them.

"I shall not take up your time, however, with any reference to the great issues upon which our party, through its platform and candidates, confidently appeals to the people for indorsement, but crave your indulgence while I briefly refer to a single feature of the platform of the Republican party.

"That platform opens with a declaration of that party's many years of control of the government, coupled with the assertion that it 'has displayed a high capacity for rule and government which has been made even more conspicuous by the incapacity and infirmity of purpose shown by its opponents.'

"This challenge to a comparison of Democratic and Republican administrations since the Republican party came into existence should be welcomed. Fortunately we have eight recent years of Democratic administration of the executive department of the government which we will gladly compare with any similar period since 1860.

"The comparison will show that under Democratic control the administrative purity of the fathers was observed in the conduct of the government, that no one of its departments was permeated as of late with corruption rivaling the days of the star route frauds, that a successful effort was made to check the growth of expenditures, that it resulted in each instance in cutting down the expenses within the control of the executive department of the government below that of the preceding administrations. The comparison will also show that each succeeding Republican administration after 1898 increased expenses, and in some instances so greatly as to indicate reckless extravagance and waste of the people's money.

"During Mr. Cleveland's first term the average annual expenditure was about $269,000,000. For the past three years it has been about $510,000,000. The governmental expenditure last year mounted up to $582,000,000, which is not equaled by any year since the civil war, with the exception of the year of the Spanish war. There is an inevitable result to such extravagance. Instead of a surplus in the annual receipts of about $80,000,000—which the present executive found on assuming control—there is now a deficit to be found of $42,000,000.

"The limits of this address will not permit a further reference to the conduct of administration, but it should receive careful examination at your hands. And you will be convinced that 'reform is necessary'—aye, far more necessary than in 1876—'in the scale of public expense.' And when convinced you will do less than your duty if you fail to make the people understand it.

"The challenge of the Republican platform permits you to compare the details—the everyday life, so to speak—of the Democratic administrations with both predecessive and successive administrations, and you will not shrink from it.

"The sturdy honesty, marked ability and thorough devotion to principle of all those in high place during those Democratic administrations may without hesitation be placed alongside of the qualifications of similar officials in any and all other administrations. Who, I pray you, would hesitate to compare the members of the cabinet of those years with the present one or with any one? Is the fame of Bayard, Manning, Fairchild, Endicott, Whitney, Vilas, Dickinson, Garland, members of the 1884 cabinet, and Olney, Carlisle, Lamont, Smith, Francis, Herbert, Bissell, Wilson and Harmon of that of 1892 dwarfed when contrasted with the cabinet officers of today?

"When the comparison is once completed you will be eager to ask the people which is the better. They will declare the victor in the contest between administrations to be the one which in addition to other excellences saved many millions a year to the nation.

"Extravagance is running riot in federal, state and municipal governments in spite of the well directed efforts of some excellent officials. The indebtedness of municipal government is steadily piling up, bond issues are increasingly frequent, and the people have not the satisfaction in many instances of a full equivalent in improvements for the money expended. And the federal government is leading in the race of great expenditures. Ere long the people will demand a reform in administrative expenses. And they will do it now if they are made to appreciate the whole truth.

"The Democratic party is not a machine. It is a body of citizens who believe that on the whole its fundamental principles are best adapted to the conduct of the government.

"Among so many patriotic and intelligent men it is inevitable that divergence of opinion as to minor questions and differences of view as to the correctness of the disposition of dead issues should be found. The party is concededly united today as to every vital article of faith which can reasonably enter into the pending canvass.

"Our adversaries are intrenched, in full possession of every department of the government, and it is a mistaken policy that would drive away voters who would help to oust them. The cause cannot be advanced by attacks on others within the party with whom we have had disagreements, but who are now working with us for a common result.

"All men who have attained any degree of prominence have their friends, and the exercise of ordinary prudence forbids the alienation of allies who are willing and anxious to assist.

"The coming election is not to be determined by the September vote in hopelessly Republican states, where local issues and candidates even are grievously handicapped, but the result in Vermont on Tuesday admonishes us—and there can be no harm in giving voice to the admonition—that a harmonious co-operation of all and the elimination of personal, factional and unimportant differences involving no surrender of principle are essential to success."

Judge Parker read most of his speech. He read with great care and deliberation, using few or no gestures. The editors frequently applauded and several times broke into cheers and laughter at the speaker's attacks upon the Republican administration. The highest pitch of enthusiasm was reached toward the close when he deprecated attacks on others within the party. Cries of "Good; that's right!" and the like broke from various parts of the audience, and for several moments the speaker had to wait for quiet.

After the speaking Judge Parker and the members of his family greeted all the guests at an informal reception held on the veranda. The entire delegation and other visitors then proceeded to the boat, where luncheon was served.

Doc Bliss Is Dead.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—Thomas W. Lansdrum, alias Dr. David C. Bliss, alias J. R. King, died in the Baltimore city jail last night of tuberculosis. Lansdrum was sentenced to one year's imprisonment last spring for stealing a satchel from a runner of the Merchants' National bank of this city. Last week Lansdrum made his will, bequeathing his worldly possessions to Mrs. Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America. Photographs of Doc Bliss adorn rogues' galleries in all parts of the country.

Unknown Disease Kills Cattle.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 9.—A peculiar and unknown disease has attacked the herd of J. Julian Perrows, a Campbell county stockman. Five have died, and forty are ill with the malady. The cows are attacked with a cough. They run at the mouth and die in a short time. An examination of one revealed its heart four or five times its normal size. A veterinary has been sent to study the disease.

CHIEF'S IDEAS OF FIRE DEPARTMENT'S NEEDS

LIFE NET AND WATER TOWER HE SAYS WOULD BE OF SERVICE HERE.

Chief T. O. Doane in common with other practical heads of fire departments, argues that fire drills are essential to a high degree of efficiency in the fire department and this is realized by Chief Doane. In speaking of the drills, the chief says that he is not properly equipped for such drills or he would have introduced them long ago. One thing needed very much is a life-net. Every first-class department in the country has one or more of these nets and the time has arrived, says Chief Doane, when Plainfield should have one. He declares that he will not ask the men to take unusual risks without this protection to life. It is only a comparatively short time that scaling ladders have been used in the department, but oftentimes these cannot be used owing to the absence of the life-net.

Another improvement sought by the chief is a water tower. This he believes to be very handy. While the tower may not be considered a necessity by many, the chief thinks that this will be shown some day when possibly there may be a large fire in the city which will call for its use.

By the way of further improving the department, Chief Doane hopes that the time is not far distant when a fire house, fully equipped, will be built in the East End of the city. It is surprising how fast that section of the city is growing and it is too much to ask, he thinks, that the apparatus at headquarters be compelled to cover this rapidly-growing territory. It makes a long run from the centre of town to Netherwood or Leland avenues or even to Woodland or Hillside avenues, especially when one considers the hills to be encountered in the Netherwood district.

In addition to a fire house in the East End the chief thinks it will not be a great many years when one will be needed in the southern part of the city, which is also building up rapidly in the vicinity of Muhlenberg Hospital. That also makes a very long run for the apparatus from headquarters and is hard on the horses.

Of course, these improvements, while desired, may be a long time coming, but Mr. Doane will continue to press his arguments until he gets them. Chairman Lee, of the councilmanic fire committee, agrees with the chief in many respects as to the improvements and as soon as the necessary money can be obtained they will undoubtedly be made.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Denman, it is said, still sticks to it that this is his last year as a baseball manager in Westfield. If this is true, it is safe to say that the Westfield team thereafter will not amount to much.

Lajoie, of the Clevelands, leads the American League in batting, with "Willie" Keeler a close second. Stovall, of the Detroits, who was on the bench for Westfield last Saturday, is third, being on point behind Keeler.

Chance, of Chicago, heads the National League in batting, with an average of 346. Donlin and Dunn of the New Yorks are second with an average of 342, while Wagner, of the Pittsburgs, is third with an average of 341.

Manager McGraw, of the New York Nationals, has signed Shortstop Neal, of the Springfield, Ill., team in the Three I League. Neal is one of the heaviest hitters and fastest fielders in this league and will no doubt turn out to be a good find.

Somervillians are getting interested in the coming contest between the West Ends and Plainfield A. C., scheduled for Saturday, September 17, on Crescent Oval. They say their team must win this game and they will bring a big crowd of rooters along to help.

Trenton is having a feast of baseball at present, in fact an attractive schedule of contests has been presented during the season. On Saturday Chatham will play at the capital and on Monday Paterson, of the Hudson River League, will meet the Trentonians, and on Wednesday they will have the New York Nationals as their opponents. Egner will probably pitch against the Leaguers and McGinnity or Ames for them.

The baseball management of the Plainfield A. C. has entered a protest with the Westfield Baseball Association against Umpire Watt officiating in any more games between these teams. This is according to the privilege allowed the club when the series was resumed. It is therefore improbable that Watt will officiate at the tenth contest, provided it is played. All will depend on Saturday's game. If Plainfield wins, another game will be on, and if she loses the series will terminate.

In reviewing the baseball contests between Plainfield and Westfield, it is interesting to note that the total number of hits made by Westfield exceeds by two those made by Plainfield. Manager Denman's team has a total of fifty, while Manager Johnston's aggregation has forty-eight. These only include the eight championship contests. In one game each team was allowed but one hit, while the greatest number in any one contest was fifteen, made by Westfield off "Lefty" Davis. Plainfield made as high as ten off Waller.

The second round match play in the Governors' competition at the Westfield Golf Club will be played tomorrow.

The playoff of the tie for the Holiday cup at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will probably be an event tomorrow.

The surprise of the season in golf was the playing of Frank O. Reinhart at Baltusrol on Tuesday. He was decidedly off his game.

The local golf courses are in the best of condition, left so by reason of the rains of a few weeks ago, and low scores are made every week.

The Central Jersey Golf League will resume its schedule on Saturday when the Cranford team will play at Colonia. A week from tomorrow the Parks will go to Westfield.

Morris J. Dumont has been doing excellent work this year at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, although his time for play has been limited. Twice he has made a score of 74 for eighteen holes.

It is a source of regret on the part of their many friends that J. Whitney Baker, Dudley H. Barrows and R. S. Rowland failed to qualify at Baltusrol on Tuesday. They have been playing a good game.

The various competitions for prizes at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the Park Golf Club are close and exciting. Any one of a number of contestants are likely to win, so evenly matched are the players.

Considerable satisfaction has been expressed among golfers over the new arrangement under which the National amateur tournament has been played at Baltusrol, this week. The scheme was the invention of Leighton Calkins, of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club.

TENNIS.

The women's tennis tournament for the championship of the club will be held tomorrow morning on the courts of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. Entries must be made before 8 o'clock this evening to Miss H. Goddard, East Ninth street.

WORLD'S GREAT PITCHER

"Christy" Matthewson, of N.Y. Giants, a Renowned Twirler.

HE IS A PLAINFIELDER

The Home Life and Achievements of a Modest Baseball King.

It is the special pride of every local lover of the National game that probably the best baseball pitcher playing the game today is a resident of this city. He is Christopher Mathewson, familiarly known as "Christy," or "Matty" to those who follow the sport closely. In places far and near are persons who sound his praises and never tire of talking about his wonderful achievements. Thousands of people will attend games in which he takes part simply to see him pitch and he is the idol of all cranks.

Mr. Mathewson was born in 1878 at Factoryville, Pa., and it was while attending the public school in that town that he began playing ball. As a mere lad he attracted attention as a clever player. From his home he continued his studies at the Keystone, Pa., Academy and it was there that he displayed remarkable ability as a twirler. He liked the position and he soon learned to control the leather sphere in rmearkable fashion. While at the academy he won every game in which he pitched, and later while at Bucknell University, he had a string of straight victories. It was at this time that he was induced to play professional ball. The game was attractive to him and he decided to make a business of it.

When he made up his mind to join the professional ranks, he promised his mother that he would neither play Sunday ball nor drink. This promise he has continued to keep and by so doing has won the respect and admiration of his fellows as well as the patrons of the game.

After leaving Bucknell he began playing for money by joining the Norfolk, Va., team. While with this nine he attracted the attention of the management of the New York Nationals and toward the end of the season was signed to play in New York. He pitched two games for New York that season, the first being against the Brooklyns. He defeated his opponents by a score of 3 to 2 and he still has the ball that was used in that contest. From that time to the close of the playing season he sat on the bench.

The next season, 1901, he was used frequently and continued to do good work, for which he received high commendation. In 1902 he performed the feat of winning seven straight games, the seventh being a shutout for Brooklyn, 7 to 0. At the beginning of last season he signed to play with the St. Louis Americans, but the baseball commission returned him to New York. His record during the season was remarkable and he did something which may never be excelled. He defeated Pittsburg in every game played against that team. In the forty-five games in which he took part last year he had a batting average of .226, was third in individual fielding average with .974 per cent, and was third in pitching, winning thirty contests, losing thirteen and having a per cent. of .697.

A year ago Mr. Mathewson was married and after the close of the baseball season he and his wife decided to make their home here. When not with the team he always spends his time at home. Of a quiet genial disposition, he always makes friends. He is very modest and he is never heard sounding his own praises or talking of his achievements, preferring to let his record talk for him. Last year he signed a three-year contract with the New York Nationals for which he is to receive a handsome

TELEPHONE COMPANY IMPROVING ITS PLANTS

DECIDED CHANGES MADE AT WESTFIELD SIMILAR TO THOSE HERE.

The rapid improvements made by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in this section of New Jersey, indicates the concern is working to bring the service up to a high point of efficiency. After installing a new plant in this city to meet the constantly increasing business, attention was turned to Westfield, another hustling town, where it was discovered that the plant was too small for the growing town.

A new office has been located at the corner of Broad and Elm streets, and the work of fitting it up was commenced. It is now complete, the work of cutting in the new office being done a few days ago. This improvement has been under the supervision of Charles W. Runyon, manager of the local exchange.

The new exchange at Westfield is practically a duplicate of the one in this city, except being on a smaller scale. It is so arranged that additional operators can be engaged. There are now over 250 subscribers in Westfield and the number is growing. New aerial cables have been installed and Westfield now has every telephone advantage that larger cities enjoy.

DEMOCRATS ACTIVE.

The Elizabeth Supporters of Parker and Davis to Display the First Banner.

Invitations have been issued by Elizabeth Democrats for several local politicians to be present at that city this evening on the occasion of the unfurling of the first Parker and Davis banner in that city. Such invitations have come to Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, James E. Martine, William J. Conroy, Walter Linbarger, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., J. V. F. Dilts and others.

Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer has been asked to speak on "State Issues." Among the other speakers on this occasion are Franklin P. Quinby, of New York city, Assemblyman James A. Hammill, of Hudson county, and Jacob L. Neumann, of Newark. Prominent Democrats from practically all sections of the State will be present.

Epworth League Busy.

Coming together for the first time since the beginning of the vacation season, the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church met at the church on Park place, in the borough, last night and held its regular monthly business meeting. Acting on the recommendation of Secretary Andrew H. Wilson, the meeting took up the question of revision of the membership list. It was decided to have the president appoint a committee, the size of which he shall decide, and of which the secretary is to be chairman. This revision committee will see each member personally and the names of those who are no longer able to attend will be dropped for the list. The secretary also proposed that the league purchase a sufficient number of ribbon badges of the regular convention type to provide one for each member to be worn at all special occasions. The matter was placed in the hands of a committee.

Jumped the Track.

Trolley car No. 1948, of the through line, which left the North avenue trolley depot at 7:30 last evening, going west, jumped the switch on West Front street at the beginning of the double track near Somerset street. The forward trucks of the heavy car left the rails entirely and owing to the fact that the crew had no "jumpers" necessary to get the wheels back to the rails again, there was a delay of thirty minutes until these tools could be fetched from the depot.

"Dutch Jake" Dead.

Jacob Gruer, who was employed for a number of years by David M. Sharp, of Annandale, died at Muhlenberg Hospital a few days ago while undergoing an operation for the removal of a goiter. He was familiarly known as "Dutch Jake."

Moffett's Record.

It is stated that Assemblyman Charles L. Moffett, of Plainfield, has announced that he cannot accept a renomination, for business reasons. This is to be regretted, as he, with his associates, made an excellent record in the last Legislature.—Rahway Union Democrat.

UNION CO. W. C. T. U. TO MEET SEPTEMBER 29

TWENTIETH ANNUAL CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN ELIZABETH.

Officers and members of the Union County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of which Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of this city, is the president, are making preparations for the twentieth annual convention to be held in the Fulton Street M. E. church, Elizabeth, on Thursday, September 29. There will be three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening, and an attractive programme has been arranged for each in which some Plainfield women will take part. Mrs. Tomlinson will preside at the convention.

After the opening of the convention in the morning at 10 o'clock, there will be the roll-call, appointment of committees — courtesy, resolutions, pages. The greetings for the Union will be by Mrs. M. F. Francis and for the church by Rev. Dr. Galloway, with responses by Mrs. W. Taylor, of Westfield.

Then will follow the president's address and the annual reports of the corresponding secretary and treasurer, after which the election of officers will be held. After the luncheon there will be a meeting of the executive committee, superintendents and resolution committee.

The afternoon session will be opened with devotions by Miss Julia A. Barker, of New York, and the report of the executive committee. Then will follow reports of the various departments. Among these reports one will be presented on work among the railroad employes, soldiers and sailors by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, superintendent, and on Sabbth observance by Mrs. M. Winter, and Christian Citizenship, by Mrs. S. A. Cahoone, of this city.

There will be the usual question box and social features. In the evening Rev. Dr. Galloway will conduct the devotions and the address of the evening will be by Rev. James Parker, of Jersey City, followed by the closing exercises. It is expected that the convention will be one of the best in the history of the Union, as the past year has been a prosperous one and much advancement has been made in the cause of temperance.

MR. FRENCH MENTIONED TO SUCCEED W. J. KEYS

BOROUGHITE BROUGHT OUT AS AVAILABLE FOR COMMITTEEMANSHIP.

The following political item dated from North Plainfield, but very probably emanating from Somerville, appeared in yesterday's Newark Evening News:

"The leaders of the Democratic party in Somerset County are looking about for a man to succeed former Senator William J. Keys as member of the State committee from this county. It is claimed that Mr. Keys spends the greater part of his time in New York and only puts in an appearance here two or three days before each election. It is urged by some persons that while a member of the State committee he has done nothing to strengthen the party organization in the county and they declare he is unpopular with the National leaders.

"Many of the local leaders and party workers say that a change should be made. Elston M. French, of North Plainfield, is looked upon as an available man for the place. He is much younger than Mr. Keys, and is very popular with the young men of the party. French distinguished himself by being twice elected tax assessor of the borough when the Republicans elected every other candidate on their ticket.

"Senator Childs is also looked upon with much favor. If Alvah A. Clark would accept the honor it is very probable it would be accorded to him.

"In any event the leaders feel that Mr. Keys has been on the committee long enough and that to continue him as a member of that body would prove a detriment to the success of the party."

Miss Kate Connolly, of this city, has ben visiting relatives at High Bridge.

Timothy Meaney, of this city, is visiting his parents at High Bridge for a week.

CAPTURED HORSE THIEVES

Chief Weiss Located the Pair in An Old Hay Loft.

WANTED AT SUMMIT

North Plainfield Chief's Daring Work Brings Two Men to Justice.

Chief of Police Weiss, of North Plainfield, made a double capture of horse thieves yesterday afternoon in a daring way. For some days past he has been on the trail of Joseph Duffy and David Clifford, Summit men who stole a gray mare and surrey from the barn of John B. Graves, of that place. Yesterday afternoon he traced them to their hang-out in the hay-loft of a barn on the Blume place in Washington Valley.

The Chief searched carefully and finally, in the hay, spied the projecting nose of one of the men. They were immediately hailed forth and placed under arrest despite their protestations of ignorance of the accusation against them. Right here Chief Weiss was confronted with the problem of getting his men down from a loft sixteen feet from the ground with out giving them an opportunity of overpowering him while scrambling down the frame timbers of the building.

The North Plainfield officer quickly decided this question by ordering one of them to jump to the ground and behave himself, at the same time emphasing his order by drawing a six-shooter. The prisoner meekly complied and a moment later he was on the ground beneath. Handcuffing himself to the other man, the Chief followed instantly, the pair striking the ground almost at the same time.

In a short time the men were safely lodged in the borough lock-up, awaiting Chief Brown, of the Summit police department, who came this morning and served the necessary papers on Justice Mattison, taking his prisoners back with him by carriage.

The first trace of the men was at Rahway where the mare and surrey were recovered some days ago after the thieves had attempted to exchange them for another rig. They drove into a private yard, hitched the stolen outfit and were detected in the act of taking a horse and carriage from the tie-post where it was hitched. They ran when they saw that they were discovered and apparently made for North Plainfield township where they have hidden for several days; in the woods near the Mountain Park Inn, at first and afterward in the barn where they were captured. Duffy was living with his father-in-law in Washington Valley until just previous to the theft and it was through an attempt on his part to get some clothing from his home, that the North Plainfield authorities nabbed the pair. The stolen mare was in a sorry condition when recovered, having been overdriven. Otherwise the rig was intact except the blankets which were missing until this morning, when they were found by Chief Weiss at the home of Duffy's father-in-law.

THEIR BOOTY $1.50.

Thieves Got No Silverware at C. Frank French's Home Thursday Night.

A thrilling story of a "great silver robbery at the home of Dr. Frank W. French" appears to have been founded on fact, but the foundation was badly overloaded. According to C. Frank French, whose Washington avenue residence was broken into and pretty thoroughly ransacked on Thursday night while the family were all absent at Asbury Park. There was no loss of any account.

Mr. French was notified by Chief Weiss of the borough police, and on his return made a thorough search which revealed the loss of about $1.50 at the outside. This was the contents of two small banks belonging to Mr. French's small sons. The marauders, who appeared to have been after money or silver, failed totally on the latter score as the silver was locked in a safe which they appear to have considered too strong for them.

Mrs. Daniel Page, of Harrisburg, Pa., who has been visiting here for a few weeks, has returned home.

Lafayette Rosenstiehl, of Somerset street, goes to Asbury Park today to spend the week end with his wife, who has been staying there for some time.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE TO BE CHAS. C. BLACK

HUDSON COUNTY MAN TO BE NAMED FOR GOVERNOR THURSDAY.

New Jersey political events as they are now shaping themselves seem practically to assure the nomination of Charles C. Black for Governor by the Democratic State Convention which will meet in the State Street Theatre at Trenton on Thursday. While indications have pointed to him as the candidate ever since the opening of the campaign, there is an undercurrent of sentiment, particularly in South Jersey, favorable to some other candidate, and the man most mentioned for the gubernatorial nomination by those South Jersey Democrats is State Senator Thomas M. Ferrell, of Gloucester County.

Those Democrats who are for Ferrell express the opinion that if he should be nominated he would prove strong enough with the voters of South Jersey to make tremendous inroads in the Republican vote.

They profess to believe that Ferrell's popularity is sufficient to materially reduce the adverse majority in the strong Republican counties, especially in Cumberland, the home of E. C. Stokes, the prospective Republican candidate, and to place in the Democratic column, on the gubernatorial vote at least, the close counties of Gloucester and Salem, and perhaps Cape May. It is claimed, however, that the advocacy of the nomination of the Gloucester senator has for its basis more of a "favorite son" sentiment than any actual hope that Ferrell can really secure a place at the head of the State ticket.

Differences of opinion as to who constitutes the strongest candidate will exist until the convention meets but it is understood that Hudson, Essex and Passaic Counties have become united and that Hudson will be allowed to make the nomination.

This, of course, means only one thing, that Robert Davis and the Hudson County Democracy will favor the nomination of Black for the office. He has been the one candidate to whom the Hudson people have consistently adhered from the start, despite all the opposition.

It is claimed by prominent Hudson County men that with former Senator James Smith, Jr., and State Chairman William E. Gourley, of Passaic County, supporting Mr. Davis, there will be little doubt of the result.—Trenton True American (Dem.)

Women's Federation Meet.

The New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs has accepted the invitation of the clubs of Newark to meet there for the annual meeting to be held the latter part of October, 27 and 28.

Special interest in this meeting centers in the election of officers, which takes place every second year. Mrs. D. M. Miller, of Elizabeth, is chairman of the nominating committee, and has in preparation the ticket for the coming election.

FRAZER IN THE BOX FOR PLAINFIELD TODAY

GARVIN QUITS TO BECOME NEW YORK AMERICAN TWIRLER.

Virgil Garvin, formerly of the Brooklyn Nationals, who has been pitching recently for the Plainfield A. C., and who was to have been in the box today in the contest against Westfield, yesterday signed to pitch for the New York Americans for the balance of the season for a fancy price. Manager Griffith had his eye on Garvin ever since he left the Brooklyn. According to the newspaper stories it was only a question of price and the New York manager finally agreed to pay it.

This action on the part of Garvin has necessitated a change on the part of Manager Johnston, and he was fortunate in securing Fraser, of the Philadelphia Nationals, to pitch for him today. He is a strong twirler and undoubtedly will be able to hold Westfield down. Hartman, formerly of Burlington, Vt., will play shortstop, and Manager Johnston is looking for a victory. The game will be called at 3:45.

A BANK DIRECTOR.

David M. Runyon, the Cashier, Succeeds Newton B. Smalley at First National.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley having retired from the directorate of the First National Bank, his place has been filled by the election of David M. Runyon, the cashier. Sometime ago Mr. Smalley presented his resignation and it was laid on the table by the Board of Director for future action. It is understood that Mr. Smalley insisted that affirmative action be taken, hence the acceptance of the resignation.

Mr. Smalley's retirement dates back to the time of the last election. He alleged that certain employes of the bank were working against the administration and he took exception to it, in view of the fact that the bank was a depository for the borough.

BARKIS CONWAY.

The Deacon Says His Bride Will be a Philadelphian.

Deacon Spencer Conway, of Calvary Baptist church, was indignant today when he learned that a report had been spread broadcast in colored society circles that he had arranged to get married again, choosing a Plainfielder as his bride. Deacon Conway wishes the following published:

"Report that I am to be married now is not so I am pleased with a lady in Philadelphia and I think that in the near future I may get married if the correspondence is continued. She is a lady of refinement and wealth and seems to be pleased with me for I am one looking after the betterment of conditions in this life. I have even taken a trip to Philadelphia to look at the property she now owns."

—Mrs. L. C. Backer, of Whitehouse, removed to this city yesterday.

Clinton Avenue Baseball Team.

One of the most successful of the local baseball teams, this year, is the Clinton Avenue nine. Thus far twenty games have been played and fifteen have been victories, an excellent record. Two contests were lost to Dunellen, one to New Market, one to the Y. M. C. A., and one to the A. O. U. W., of Westfield. No double figures have been scored against the team in any contest.

On the side of victories the team has won two games from the Emeralds, of Perth Amboy; three from Dunellen, two from West End Field Club, two from the Reform Club, and one each from East Millstone, Rahway A. A., Parkways, of Newark, and Park A. C.

The players who have taken part in the contests comprise the following: Ira VanArsdale, James Bolman and James Scott, pitchers; W. O'Loughlin and George Herman, catchers; Norman Barnes, 1b; David B. Martin, 2b and captain; Samuel Beekman, 3b; John Martin, ss; William Magee, lf; James Scott, cf; George Herman, rf. Earnest Dorflinger is manager of the team and it is largely through his efforts that success has been attained. That it is the best aggregation that ever represented Clinton Avenue is conceded. The team is composed of heavy hitters and good fielders. Brit Martin has made a hit in every game played.

On Saturday the team will meet an aggregation from the Stevens' car works of Elizabeth on the local grounds for $10 a side.

COLORED BAPTISTS ELECT

Morristown Minister Chosen President of Organization.

MEMBERSHIP GROWING

Rev. E. E. Jackson Reads Letter of Welcome and City Officials Fail to Appear.

The reports presented at the twelfth annual convention of the New Jersey Baptist State Convention (colored,) yesterday afternoon, showed that twelve new churches were added to the membership during the year and about $1,400 was raised. Of this amount $500 was contributed to education and $200 for home missions. Foreign missions have also been contributed to and poor churches assisted.

These officers were elected at the afternoon session:

President, Rev. Dr. George E. Morris, of Morristown; vice president, Rev. A. Smallwood, of Long Branch; district vice president, Rev. W. A. Harris, of Madison; recording secretary, Rev. W. P. Watkins, of Orange; corresponding secretary, Rev. R. D. Wynn, of Jersey City; treasurer, Rev. M. W. Vaughn, of Roselle; Board of managers, Rev. E. E. Jackson, Plainfield, chairman; Rev. E. B. Samuels, of East Orange; Rev. P. T. Morris, of Mattewan. Rev. Dr. Motley, of Jersey City, installed the new officers.

A feature of the afternoon session was the annual address by the president, Rev. Dr. George E. Morris, and the reading of the letter of welcome by Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Mayor O. L. Jenkins was to have been present to make a short address of welcome to the city, but in his absence he asked City Judge William N. Runyon to do it. Through some misunderstanding Mr. Runyon was not present.

Last night's session was opened with devotional exercises by Rev. J. L. Burton, of Trenton, and Rev. M. D. Crawley, of Pennington, followed with a paper by Rev. C. S. Klugh, of Princeton. The address of the evening was by Rev. Dr. M. W. Gilbert, of New York.

This morning Rev. T. T. Tucker, of Jersey City, conducted the devotional exercises, after which the convention transacted routine business. The rest of the morning was occupied with the introduction of visitors and corresponding delegates and after memorial service an adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning.

The programme for the morning will include devotional exercises by Rev. P. W. Ross, of Westfield, and Rev. J. W. Spruell, of South Orange, and at 11 o'clock the doctrinal sermon will be delivered by Rev. Dr. George E. Morris, of Morristown. The convention will then adjourn.

There are about 200 delegates attending the convention.

The committee on entertainment consists of Mrs. P. H. Brown, Mrs. Rody Hancock, Mrs. S. M. Field and Mrs. Kittie Gordon.

R. R. STATION SHEDS.

Permits for Their Erection at Grant and Clinton Avenues Granted.

Persistent requests on the part of citizens in the West End for some sort of covered shelter from the trolley to the railroad stations at Grant and Clinton avenue stations has resulted in action by the Jersey Central Railroad Co., in constructing storm sheds at West Front street and Grant avenue and West Front street and Clinton avenue.

The sheds will be fifty feet long and ten feet wide and will extend from the street to the platform. Permit of erection was granted yesterday. Joseph Jewkes the company's carpenter at Jersey City, will have charge of the work of erection.

The New Small Grand

is the latest art product of our manufacture. Competent judges pronounce it The Most Remarkable Grand Piano of Its Size Ever Made. It occupies but a trifle more space than the upright and supplies a need where economy of room-space must be considered, and at the same time practically possesses all the Tone-power, Sweetness, Purity and Breadth of Melodic Expression that marks the FULL GRAND.

It is unique in design and satisfies the aesthetic sense of the most exacting. It must be seen and heard to be appreciated.

PARLIAMENTARY UNION.

Delegates From Many Countries For St. Louis Peace Conference.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—The Interparliamentary union, composed of 226 delegates from America, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Sweden and Switzerland, has arrived here on two special trains and on Monday will open their twelfth annual session at the fair grounds. This body is composed of the members of the different national legislatures.

The organization was perfected at Paris in 1888, having grown out of the conference of ten English and thirty French parliamentarians who had assembled to discuss the execution of an arbitration treaty between England and France. With the exception of one year annual sessions have since been held, including the meeting in Paris in 1900 and the peace conference at The Hague.

At this session questions which were discussed at The Hague congress will be taken up probably for final decision, and the St. Louis session promises to be the most important assemblage ever held.

PARKER TO GO TO NEW YORK.

At Rosemount He Is Not Closely In Touch With Party Leaders.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—There is every reason to believe that Judge Parker will make arrangements to come to New York for temporary residence soon after his formal letter of acceptance is made public.

It is known that leading Democrats have strongly represented to him that his continued presence at such an inconvenient location as Rosemount, with no hotel accommodations, has kept Judge Parker from personal contact with many prominent men who are frequently in New York city, but who have not time for the journey to Esopus.

The plan has even progressed as far as the making of tentative arrangements for him to take a suit of rooms here. According to those close in Judge Parker's counsels his idea is to be immediately in touch with the party leaders and accessible to those whom it is needful and desirable to meet as the campaign progresses.

DALAI LAMA RETIRED.

Britain Concluded a Peace With the Tibetans at Lassa.

LASSA, Sept. 10.—Colonel Younghusband, head of the British mission, and the Tibetan officials have signed a formal treaty in the palace of the dalai lama at Potala. The ceremony was simple and was conducted amid quaint and picturesque surroundings.

The terms of the treaty were read out only in the Tibetan language, and its details will be published later by the foreign office at Simla. The proceedings closed with a short speech by Colonel Younghusband.

The dalai lama is now supposed to be well on his way into Mongolia, and the officials insist that his action amounts to abdication. The administration is now carried on by a council of regency. It is believed that the tashi lama will eventually be recognized as the supreme religious head.

The arrangements for the return of the British mission are complete.

Expedition to Hudson Bay.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 10.—A party of ten Newfoundland seamen, engaged for three years to assist in navigating the Canadian cruiser Arctic, formerly the German steamer Gauss, in Hudson bay, have left here to join that vessel at Quebec. The Canadian plans for this expedition are likely to be seriously disarranged. The Arctic should meet at Port Burwell Sept. 15 the steamer Neptune, which is already in Hudson bay, but it is not likely that she will reach there before two weeks from that date.

Dentist Dead on Car Top.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—When the Chicago limited mail train arrived at the Grand Central station the body of a young man, with his skull crushed, was found on top of the mail car. The only clew to the victim's identity was offered by a letter signed "Paul Hanke, dentist, of 19 Lexington avenue, New York," recommending as a dentist "A. Jacobson." It is supposed that the man was beating his way on top of the car and was struck by a low bridge.

Negro Train Wreckers Caught.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 10.—The Baldwin Detective agency of Roanoke has captured Joe Fuquin, "Major" Guthrie and Roland Gerst, three negroes wanted for attempting to wreck a passenger train on the Southern railway at a point near South Boston, Va., some time ago. The men were arrested near the scene of the attempted wreck and have been held for the grand jury. It is said that Guthrie and Gerst have confessed.

An Albanian Protest.

ROME, Sept. 10.—Ricciotti Garibaldi, son of the Italian patriot, in a letter to the Tribuna says that there will soon be presented to the powers a protest by 70,000 Albanians living in Italy against the alleged action of General de Giorgis, commander-in-chief of the international gendarmery in Macedonia, in favoring Austria against the interests of the Albanians.

Visited Sons of the Golden West.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Many of the visiting Knights of Pythias crossed the bay to witness the celebration of Admission day at Oakland by the Native Sons of the Golden West. Several hundred knights and their ladies inspected the fortifications of the harbor. Receptions were held by nearly all the commanderies.

MUST STOP KUROKI

Safety of Kuropatkin's Army Depends on Meyendorff.

COMBATANTS HAVE LOST 50,000 MEN

Mukden Is Being Evacuated, and the March Toward Harbin Continues. The Japanese Said to Be Exhausted With Pursuit.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A late report from St. Petersburg says that the Russian army is now divided into five columns. The first has reached Liao pass, forty miles north of Mukden, and is preparing to defend that place against the Japanese. The second is midway between Mukden and Liao pass. The third is at Mukden. The fourth, consisting of 40,000 men, under General Meyendorff, is holding General Kuroki in check by hard fighting twelve miles south of Mukden. The fifth, of about 12,000, is farther south, exhausted by incessant fighting and is surrounded, on three sides by the Japanese, its position being one of extreme danger from which it can hardly hope to escape.

"Everything now depends," says the report, "on Meyendorff's ability to hold Kuroki in check, which so far he has successfully done."

Advices from St. Petersburg say that it is definitely established now that Field Marshal Oyama's tired troops have practically abandoned the attempt to head off General Kuropatkin, and the latter's army has arrived safely at Mukden after frightful experiences in floundering through mud and mire over the Mandarian road.

Some descriptions of the scenes along the line of retreat are almost incredible. They tell how the men lay down in the mud and slept in a drenching rain and without shelter.

It is evident that the last determined effort of the Japanese to bring Kuropatkin to any was made on Tuesday, but the Russian commander in chief faced about and two corps with artillery fell on the Japanese, while the remainder of the troops continued the march to Mukden. After that the Japanese could only hang on to the flanks and try to shell the retreating army columns from the hills.

The armies are still in contact, but they are not even exchanging shots.

The detailed statement of Russian losses, which it is promised will be issued on Saturday, is awaited with intense interest. The general expectation is that the losses will approximate 20,000 as against 30,000 for the Japanese.

The work of burying the dead was left to the Japanese, who were forced to attempt the task as a matter of self preservation, but it was almost impossible. The awful rains have handicapped the work of cremation on which the Japanese relied and only shallow trench burials were possible under the circumstances. Not only is this work one of the greatest difficulty, but it is almost valueless from a sanitary point of view, the storms undoing it soon after it is accomplished.

The care of the wounded has taxed the hospitals to the utmost. One correspondent says that 12,000 wounded had passed through Mukden hospitals up to Sunday, and only the most severe cases could be attended to by the nurses and surgeons. Many, therefore, had to be left to the rough but well meant care of their comrades.

Advices from Mukden say that the evacuation of Mukden is now nearly completed and adds that the Japanese have not yet crossed the river Hun, which flows a few miles south of Mukden.

The Viborg regiment, of which the German emperor is commander, before advancing to storm the village of Skywantun was drawn up in front of the tent of Major von Runckel, the German military attache, and cheered for the German emperor. The regiment in carrying Skywantun lost 2 officers and 50 men killed and 150 officers and men wounded, including the colonel of the regiment. It afterward retired in good order.

The Russian retreat to Mukden has been accomplished without losses and with the precision of a review at Krasnoye Selo. The accumulation of wounded between Liaoyang and Mukden has tested to the utmost the resources of the Red Cross. Most of the transport was carried in the roughest kind of two wheeled carts, but the arrangements for providing the troops with food along the line of retreat worked magnificently.

The Russian government has agreed to indemnify the owners of the British colliers Ettrickdale and Frankby, which were captured by Russian torpedo boat destroyers and brought to Suez, where they were released by order of Emperor Nicholas.

Wreck on Southern Railway.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 10.—Two men have been killed and another seriously injured in a wreck on the Southern railway between Dogwood and Wilton on the Birmingham and Selma division here. The train was running thirty miles an hour when the engine jumped the track and struck the crossties, turning completely over, crushing the engineer beneath it.

ROME, Sept. 10.—Justice Adelbert P. Rich of the supreme court of the state of New York and members of his family have been received in private audience by the pope. They were presented by Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American college.

WRECKERS AT WORK

Seaboard Train Goes Through High Trestle at Catawba.

SEVEN KILLED AND THIRTY INJURED

Bridge Structure Collapsed—Coaches Went Down Twenty-five Feet Into a Stream—Freight Train Following Piled on Top.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Seven persons were killed and more than thirty injured in a wreck on the Seaboard Air line at Catawba Junction, S. C., near here.

Passenger train No. 41, from Portsmouth to Atlanta, five cars and a sleeper, went through a high trestle over a small stream. An extra freight train following the passenger piled in on top of the wreckage a few minutes later.

The division superintendent's office of the Seaboard Air line gives out the following names of the known dead: Mrs. T. F. Black, passenger; E. Y. Barksdale, engineer; Trainman Ferguson, Ed Roberts, fireman; unknown woman passenger.

The train had crossed a bridge over the Catawba river and was on a trestle when the structure collapsed. The train, with the exception of the Pullman car, fell twenty-five feet to the ground.

A light freight, following close behind the passenger train, struck the Pullman, and all fell over on to the wreck, the engine of the freight and box cars piling up on the Pullman.

The superintendent's office here has received information of the discovery of evidence that the joints in the track were tampered with, causing the wreck.

J. M. Barr, first vice president and general manager of the road, said that there was evidence of a malicious attempt to wreck the train, a number of joints having been found disconnected.

The wrecked train was in charge of Conductor Richard West and Engineer Gaston Mears. The wreck occurred about 1 o'clock in the morning at the trestle just south of Catawba river, South Carolina, and twenty-two miles southwest of Monroe, N. C.

Two Pullman employees, six railway employees, one mail clerk, one Southern Express company employee and twenty-three passengers were injured.

The wrecked train was running about forty miles an hour when the trestle, which is about 300 feet long, spanning a meadow near the Catawba river, gave way. The engine and some of the cars passed over, but were drawn backward into the abyss and upon the other cars, and then to add to the disaster a light engine and caboose ran on top of the train of wreckage before it could be flagged.

Gaston Mears, the engineer of the passenger train, escaped with some bruises and a painful scalp wound. How he escaped death is beyond his own or any one else's comprehension. He said that he was driving at the rate of forty miles an hour as he crossed the bridge. Just before the engine had swept entirely clear of the structure he felt it sinking, but the impetus carried the engine and all the cars except the first class passenger car and the Pullman over and clear of the yawning gulf which was left when half the bridge collapsed, but the engine and cars were swerved from their course to the right, tearing the rail loose from its fastenings and hurling the entire train upside down over an embankment to the meadow, about thirty feet below.

The accounts of the survivors are terrible. When the train went crashing over the embankment every light went out, and passengers were thrown head over heels against the sides of the coaches, bleeding and bruised.

Hot Spring Stops Tunnel Work.

ROME, Sept. 10.—Work on the Simplon tunnel, which is was expected would be completed by the beginning of next month, has been suddenly stopped owing to the exposure of a hot spring flowing 1,500 gallons per minute, while the temperature in the tunnel reached 112 degrees. Refrigerators will be installed and the work resumed a month from date. The Simplon tunnel, which is being cut through Simplon mountain, will be 21,374 yards long, and it has already been pierced for a distance of 21,142 yards.

Fire Attacked Snow Sheds.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 10.—Fire attacked the snow sheds in the neighborhood of Blue canyon, destroying, according to the meager reports received here, about 500 feet of the inclosure. The telegraph wires are down, and definite information cannot be obtained. The east and west bound overland trains were held on each side of the fire for several hours.

Darkness From Solar Eclipse.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 10.—Guayaquil was almost in complete darkness from 4 to 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on account of a solar eclipse, which was preceded by a slight earthquake shock. At a few minutes before 5 the sun reappeared.

Unique Fate of Negro.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 10.—Jesse Allen, a negro, has been legally executed at Oxford, N. C., for criminally assaulting a little girl some months ago. The hanging was private. The negro showed wonderful nerve.

Guessing Contest, Says Odell.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Governor Odell still insists that the state convention is open and the nomination for governor a guessing contest. He says the convention will be in session two days.

COLONIAL GIRL.

Conqueror of Hermis Gets the Omnium Handicap.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10. — Colonial Girl, who defeated Hermis in the $50,000 World's Fair handicap, won the Omnium handicap, one mile and a furlong, at Sheepshead Bay. She was played down from 10 to 1 to 5 to 1. Colonial Girl and Hurstbourne ran like a team to the stretch, where Colonial Girl drew away and won driving by three-quarters of a length from Hurstbourne. Dolly Spanker was third. McChesney was practically left at the post, but ran a good race, finishing fourth.

Oiseau, the 13 to 20 favorite, won the Goldenrod stake by half a length from Pasadena. The time, 1:19 4-5, for six and a half furlongs on the turf, is a new record for the stake.

Jockey W. Davis rode the winners of the three last races, and his riding was one of the features of the day's racing.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report an Encouraging Outlook.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Holiday influence is calculated to check distribution of merchandise, but the past week has brought more encouraging results in the business world, and from many points come reports of steadily expanding trade, while it is not exceptional to find comparisons with the corresponding week last year favorable to 1904. Retail trade in fall lines of dry goods, clothing, millinery and nearly all wearing apparel shows a healthy growth, and for hardware, household utensils and kindred lines there is a broader demand. The best development of the week was the resumption of work in many industries that have suffered through strikes, while several serious controversies were averted.

Crop progress is better than average, and high prices promise large profits to the farmers. Railway freight is heavy, chiefly due to the marketing of grain and cotton, and earnings in August were 2.8 per cent larger than in 1903.

A slightly firmer tone in the money market has scarcely altered quotations as yet, but declining bank reserves and transfers to the interior promise to bring better rates shortly. Gross gold in the treasury is close to the maximum, and funds in the hands of the people are at the highest figures on record, while speculative activity has extended to the bond department.

Signs of better conditions in the leading manufacturing industries multiply as the season advances, and the actual amount of business in sight has increased very materially, despite the indisposition of the railways to place orders freely for rolling stock, rails and other equipment. At first glance it may appear puzzling and inconsistent that the same week brings reports of increased pig iron production, decreased stocks and a cut of $4 to $6 a ton in quotations of plates and structural steel and other minor changes in the direction of weakness. The apparent contradiction is explained by the statement that new business is placed subject to such prices as are in effect at the time of delivery, and it is thought wise to get orders on the books before the demand expands, as it is expected to do in response to the more attractive terms offered. Among the new orders may be mentioned two large shipbuilding contracts.

Commercial failures for the week in the United States are 200 against 222 last week, 205 the preceding week and 172 the corresponding week last year. Of failures this week in the United States sixty-eight were in the east, fifty-three south, fifty-six west and twenty-three in the Pacific states, and sixty-three report liabilities of $5,000 or more.

PEACE IN VIRGINIA.

"Cease Fire" Has Sounded on Bull Run Battlefield.

BELL PIERCED GRANT'S DEFENSE

Honors Evenly Divided at the War Game's Close—Maneuvering Pronounced to Be of Highest Order In This Bloodless War.

GAINESVILLE, Va., Sept. 10.—General Corbin has ended the war game maneuvers by a general order. When the order came General Bell, with his broken army, had advanced across Stone bridge, pushing General Grant back, and also had swung a large part of his force from the left wing to the entire right flank of General Grant and put them across Bull run at Sudley Springs.

The second maneuver problem has thus ceased with General Bell, commanding the brown army, demolishing General Grant's command, the blue army, east of Bull Run. This result awards victory to the attacking force in each of the two problems and makes General Grant the victor and General Bell the second so far as results can be estimated without bullets.

The maneuvering on both sides was pronounced of the highest order. General Grant's plans were not fully developed on account of the desire on the part of General Corbin not to put too long a strain on the militia. The spectacular feature of the work was the battle of Stone bridge. General Grant had a strong line of defense on the east side of this stream, consisting of Price's brigade, including two battalions of the Alabama and another in the rear and a detachment of engineers.

The brown force which had approached the bridge consisted of Barry and Regan's brigades. The attack was made by the Second Massachusetts and Twelfth New York. They were driven back twice with great loss after advancing under heavy fire. Just as they came up for the third time the Ninth regulars succeeded in fording the stream below the bridge and came up in the rear of the blue force.

This movement was executed so cleverly that the blue force was not aware of their danger until the infantry was within twenty yards of them. The umpires ruled out all of the blue force at this place as either killed or captured. Previous to this the browns had brought up two machine guns within range of the rifle fire of the blues and unlimbered for action. As this movement was not covered by any fire of any kind the guns were ruled out of action. The umpires ruled that the bridge was blown up by the blue army, and the brown troops which were brought up in force at this place all had to ford the stream.

In the meantime the brown force which had crossed Bull run at Sudley had made its way down on the blue side. A blue line was formed back of the bridge and was being pushed hard by the brown force, which also had formed in skirmish line for advance. Just as these two lines were becoming actively engaged the brown force from Sudley poured an enfilading fire into the blue line from its right, and had not Colonel Wagner, chief umpire, sounded "cease fire" the blue line probably would have been completely surrounded by the brown force.

Three Walked Out of Jail.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Three prisoners, John Case, Walter Bettys and another whose name was Sullivan, walked out of the open door of the Warren county jail while the under sheriff took supper to other prisoners. Case was one of the trio who dug through the jail wall last week, but after ten days of wandering gave himself up. The three men were all awaiting indictment by the grand jury for burglary.

Tennis at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 10.—The finals in the ladies' doubles and men's doubles were played at the tristate tennis tournament here. In the ladies' doubles Miss M. McAteer of Pittsburg and Miss M. Weimer of Washington defeated Miss W. Closterman and Miss H. Neely. L. D. Little and Robert Leroy of New York easily won from Beals Wright and Edgar Leonard of Boston in the finals for the men's doubles.

Russian Deserters at Ogdensburg.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Three Russian army deserters arrived here without funds or passports and were sent back to Canada. Several others who entered here and who are now working as farm hands came well supplied with money. One Russian who is still wearing a part of his army uniform, said that he deserted with an entire outpost of fifty men.

Parker has decided to take the stump. Roosevelt is not so modest. He wants to capture the election.

The decrepid Elizabeth Times "points with pride" to the prosperity under Democratic rule from 1890 to 1860.

The ninth contest in the series between Plainfield and Westfield takes place on Crescent Oval. No matter which way the game goes it will be "I told you so."

Signs point to the selection of Charles C. Black, of Hudson County, as the Democratic gubernatorial candidate. The State convention of the party to be held at Trenton on Thursday will no cut and dried affair for, although Mr. Black seems to have a powerful enough backing to insure his nomination, the booms of favorite sons will be pushed for all they are worth. The friends of Thomas Ferrell, Samuel Swackhammer, and several other ambitious ones will endeavor to capture delegates wherever possible, but the guiding hands of James Smith and Robert Davis will show the majority of those entitled to decide upon a candidate who "the man of the hour" is and it is generally believed that he is none other than Mr. Black.

Early this season there was some doubt as to his regaining his form, but later performances show that he is still a top-notcher and able to "deliver the goods."

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The controversy between the Dunellen A. C. and the Clinton Avenue A. C. in regard to the winning of the recent series has led the manager of the Dunellen A. C. to look up the matter. The Clinton Avenue fans claim that since the Dunellen A. C. has been reorganized only four games have been played between the two teams, each winning two. The manager of the Dunellen A. C. says that the team was reorganized on June 25. On that date the team played for the first time without any paid players and defeated Clinton Avenue by a score of 4 to 1. On July 23, Clinton Avenue defeased Dunellen 18 to 3. On August 6, Clinton Avenue again won 9 to 4. On August 20, Dunellen won 3 to 2, and again on September 3, 2 to 0. This gives three of the five games to Dunellen and fully settles the question of supremacy. One more game will be played on September 24 on neutral grounds. If possible Crescent Oval will be secured.

A meeting of the teachers of the local schools and the Board of Education was held with President Hamilton on Thursday evening to discuss plans for bettering the local school system.

A World's Wonder.

We often hear of the seven wonders, though in these times there are perhaps one hundred times that number, and perhaps the most popular wonder region in this vicinity is Mauch Chunk. Mauch Chunk is high up in the Pennsylvania mountains, and the several peaks have wide outlooks in every direction. A main attraction is the Switchback Railroad, the road forms an eighteen mile loop over and around the mountains, and is a very novel engineering feat. The first incline extends up Mount Pisgah to a height of 1370 feet above tide water. The car then bowls along a decline for several miles only to reach the base of another mountain which is climbed to a height of 1530 feet above tide water. The descent to the home stretch lies through a beautiful valley, and when the journey is finished the tourist is rather anxious for a renewal of the experience. On September 18, 1904, the New Jersey Central is to run a popular priced excursion to Mauch Chunk, the rate for the round trip to be $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk early in the day, and as the return trip does not leave the Mountain City until 5:40 p. m., there is plenty of time for exploring the charms of Mauch Chunk.

Improving Big Tract.

H. C. VanEmburgh, the civil engineer, has just completed the survey and new map of the land extending from Park avenue to Watchung avenue and along the intermediate streets west of Hillside avenue, which was recently purchased by F. M. Welles & Co., of 45 Broadway, New York, and contracts are being let for work on the streets, grading, macadamizing, setting out shade trees, etc. This will greatly improve that very desirable portion of the city and values should rapidly increase from the present low levels. J. F. MacDonald, 149 North avenue, is the local manager. The concern's advertisement on page eight of this issue offers some flattering bargains.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

A question often discussed by baseball fans but one seldom decided is: who is the best first baseman in the big leagues to-day? Every ball player is recognized as having some weakness, be it in fielding, batting or base running. In the opinion of Comiskey, owner of the "White Stockings" in the American league, John Ganzel, of the New York American league, is the prince of all first sackers of to-day. Comiskey was a first baseman of the first magnitude in his day and knows a good one when he sees him. As a fielder, full of ginger and always fighting, Ganzel probably has no equal, he thinks. High and low throws are alike to him and whether the ball is hit to either the right or the left or straight at him makes no difference. Many a ball ticketed for a safe hit is knocked down by him as it is speeding over the bag close to the foul line and the runner is retired. Frank Isbell, Comiskey's substitute first baseman, is another great fielder, much on the same order as Ganzel. He is a product of Comiskey's, who retired him from the pitcher's box to teach him the intricacies of the job about first. But Isbell cannot hit the ball and for that reason Comiskey picked up "Jigs" Donohue. Donohue is not regarded as in Isbell's or Ganzel's class as a fielder, especially on ground balls, either thrown or hit, but he can hit the ball timely and hard. George Lachance, of the Champion Boston team, has one qualification that entitles him to be classed as a first baseman and that is his hitting. As a fielder he is not up to the class of Ganzel or Isbell and as a base runner he is a "joke." All the others of the American league are one-sided players, troubled with either a lack of base hits or inability to field well. In the National league the brightest star is thought by many critics to be Fred Tenney, of the Boston club. "Kitty" Bransfield, of the Pirates is a good one, too, especially as he can hit the ball some, but for general all-round work Tenny is regarded by experts and ball players alike as the best in that organization. Tenny's one weakness is a low ball, especially a low throw. Anything above his knees he eats up with avidity, but lower than that the result is problematical. Chance, of the Cubs, has developed wonderfully and is especially valuable on account of his great hitting ability. His effectiveness is somewhat nullified on account of his numerous injuries, his affliction of rheumatism and lack of perfection in fielding. Sifting the 16 first basemen of the two leagues down apparently brings the question of decision between Ganzel and Isbell as fielders of the American league, and Tenny and Bransfield, of the National, with odds in favor of the New York American leaguer.

John Ganzel.

To do some thing no American has ever before accomplished is the ambition of John C. Lorden, of Cambridge, the winner of the great Boston Athletic association Marathon run last year. In order to satisfy this ambition he has entered in the Marathon run to be held at the St. Louis fair. It will be a run of 40 kilometers, or nearly 25 miles. At Athens in 1896 it was won by a Greek and at Paris in 1900 a Frenchman won it. Athletes from all over the world are coming to take part in these games, and in this long run Lorden will be pitted against the best long-distance runners on both sides of the Atlantic. John Lorden, who is 28 years old, is an Irish-American, having been born in the old country, but came over here at an early age, however, and all his noteworthy running has been done in this country. He is five feet seven inches in height and weighs 135 pounds. His weight never varies. While it was the Marathon of 1903 that brought Lorden into national prominence, it was not his first great race by any means. He ran in the race of 1901, and finished fifth. Again, in 1902, he ran and was beaten only by Sammy Mellor and J. J. Kennedy, of Roxbury. The next year he won. He has also won many cups in races at shorter distances.

John C. Lorden.

The final installments on the forfeit of $15,000 have been posted for the Jeffries-Monroe contest, the date of which is set for August 26, next. Of the total amount of forfeit Jeffries has paid in $5,000. Monroe $5,000 and the same amount by the Yosemite club, under whose auspices the battle will be fought.

By defeating Harry L. Waidner in the contest for the northwest tennis championship at Minneapolis, Reuben G. Hunt added another title to his credit. Hunt now holds several tennis championships. He also successfully defended his title of champion of Wisconsin at Milwaukee by defeating George Parks.

R. F. Doherty and H. L. Doherty, the English champions, will not defend their doubles and singles tennis championships at Newport. The Dohertys failing to defend their championships, the winners of the East vs. West doubles match will become the doubles champions, and the winner of the all comers in the singles will become singles champion.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FASHION'S FRILLS.

Checks to Be Worn—New Embroideries and Walking Hats.

Checks are rampant again this fall. This, however, was a foregone conclusion, as the tendency has been that way since the spring, and perhaps—who knows?—we may succeed in rounding off the story during the autumn. The new checks are emphasized by a large overrunning plaid of definite color. A brown and white block check is plaided over with a line of red and white and black with blue or green, and so on. It will be quite the exception to see whole frocks made of the check, as most of the best creations will be deftly combined with some happy coloring in plain cloth.

Bonnaz embroidery, which is really nothing more than embroidered kid, is a freak of fashion chiefly used for the under brim of felt turbans.

A very useful toque is made of brown chenille and champagne velvet with a shaded white, fawn and brown feather quill at the left side taken through a large ring of cut beads. It is early to prophesy as to just what shape of hat the modish woman will affect, but I am inclined to believe that flat and medium sized crowns will be chosen in preference to the very high ones.

A commonplace looking hat can be given an air of distinction by draping it effectively with a long veil. Veils made of crepe chiffon in light tones of gray, blue and lavender are bordered with taffeta ribbon in self color about three-quarters of an inch wide. The ribbon, although light, weighs down the edges and keeps them from flying about in the slightest breeze. Some of these veils are finished with deep hemstitched borders and have huge lozenge shaped spots of chenille at wide intervals in order that they may not interfere with the wearer's eyes. There is something truly feminine about a long veil, and to this may be attributed its extended vogue.

The smart looking walking hat reproduced in the picture is a model following the Romney lines. It is made of cream felt faced and trimmed with hunter's green velvet. Through the chou are stylishly stuck two speckled quills.

Roses Are Much Used as Adornments For Gowns.

Some charming little hair accessories are emanating from the Rue de la Paix. The daintiest is an amber pin carried out in the form of an oak leaf, over which a pearl caterpillar is seen wandering. Another is an amber serpent, with a pair of gleaming ruby eyes, which coils into an attractive wide comb for the back of the hair. A third is a casque comb in dark shell representing a series of buds and leaves arranged in symmetrical array. These little hair adornments are quite a novelty after the stiff "tabs" folding over the hair which have generally characterized this style of comb.

The most fashionable way of wearing roses as a gown adornment is to choose the tiny kind, form them into empire wreaths and tack them on the front of the skirt and bodice. Many of the old fashioned brocades will be made to open over a white front trimmed with flowers that appear in the pattern.

Here is a stunning home gown of gray voile simply made with tucks. Medaria lace is inset in the skirt and forms a bolero on the waist.

LITTLE FRANCE

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

She had been settling evenly, but at last she went down with a mighty plunge. For a moment the sea was black with heads—men struck out frantically only to be sucked under in the mighty vortex that followed her disappearance. The last glimpse Grafton caught of the group on the poop-deck, de Kersaint still stood with folded arms looking forward. The marquis took off his hat and looked up toward the flag. "France! France!" he murmured. He made a fine end for a soldier. The English saw it fluttering on the surface of the water for a moment as the mighty spars sank slowly down, and then the waves washed over it. The ship was gone. Not a cheer was heard from the English decks; a groan of horror broke from her men, in fact, as they witnessed this sinister effacement of a ship.

Scarcely a minute had elapsed since the last broadside was fired, and now it was over. A few bits of wreckage, a few desperate men clinging to them, perhaps a score out of 800 gallant souls who had manned and fought her a moment since—that was all! Grafton gave one agonized glance aft. He thought in the darkness he could make out the forms of Jean-Renaud and his wife in the water drifting on. Another moment and they were lost to view.

"Have we a boat that will swim?" he cried in despair to the master.

"Not one is left at the davits, sir," answered that officer, sadly.

"Breakers! Breakers ahead!" roared one of the officers forward.

They were right on the Cardinals.

"Up with the helm! Hard up!" shouted Grafton, instinctively. But the sluggish ship steered slowly. For a few moments she held her way toward the rock. They thought she was doomed also. For himself Grafton did not care, but for his men! They waited in awful apprehension, but at last she slowly swung around and glided by, and peril was escaped. Right next to her was the French ship Le Juste, spitting fire and shot from her guns at the Torbay.

"We will attack that ship!" cried Grafton, recklessly turning the prow of his vessel toward her. "Fire on her. Let her have it, men!"

But there was no response to his command. His guns were silent.

"Beg pardon, sir, the magazines were flooded and all our powder was wet when we came so near foundering," reported the gunner who had just come on deck.

"Ah, I had rather have gone down with the Cardinals than be thus helpless," murmured the young commander, quite beside himself with the disappointments and anxieties of the hour.

"Sir, sir, some dry powder is found!" cried another, running up on the instant.

"Engage! Engage, then!" screamed Grafton, fiercely. His mind was so overwhelmed by the catastrophe that he could find no relief save in action, and presently from the iron muzzles of his hot guns once more rang out the deadly discharge. A savage desire to slay, to kill, had supplanted every other emotion in Grafton's heart. He stood, wild-eyed and despairful, a madman on his own deck, inciting his men to action.

After half a dozen broadsides Le Juste, badly riven and shattered, sheered off and attempted to withdraw, having had enough of it. Grafton, however, was not to be shaken off. He pursued the retreating French ship with implacable ferocity, working every gun that would bear upon her.

As the two ships swept along before the wind Grafton suddenly found himself mixed up with six other ships, one of which happened to be Le Tonnant, carrying de Beauffremont. Having had enough of the fight, the vice admiral—not greatly to his credit—had called these ships about him, and they were all endeavoring to escape to the southward through the narrow pass between Le Four bank and Pointe de Croisic on the shore. But the young Englishman's blood was up now, and he followed hard on their heels, and the singular spectacle of one waterlogged and sodden ship pursuing six ships of the enemy was presented. In their wild haste to get away the French neglected the opportunity afforded to capture him.

As they swept around Le Four and headed for the south, Grafton, who was ignorant of these waters, as were all the English captains, headed straight for them, firing on them with his chase guns at the same time, the French making but a feeble reply. He had gone only a few cables' length, however, when, without any warning, in the darkness his ship took ground. She struck with tremendous force upon the rocky shoal of Le Four, and each succeeding wave lifted her higher and higher and hurled her farther upon the shore. The light spars snapped like pipe-stems at the first blow, and as the ship pounded upon the reef, mast after mast went, until she lay grinding on the sands a total wreck, the waves breaking over her and sweeping her from stern to stem.

The last shot from Le Juste struck the Torbay on the quarter just as she hit the reef. It sent a shower of splinters inboard, one of which struck Grafton in the breast and hurled him over the rail to windward. He caught feebly at a backstay, shouted a command, and the next moment a falling spar dashed him into the sea.

For him and for all the rest the battle was over.

CHAPTER XXX.

WHAT WAR MEANT IN THAT DAY ON THE SEA.

IN ONE of the cabins of Le Formidable lay Captain Philip Grafton. He had been badly wounded by the splinter (a piece of timber six feet long) which had hurled him to the deck of the Torbay just as she went on the rocks. The moment in which he had been thrown overboard would have been his last had it not been for the heroic devotion of old Slocum.

Seeing the helpless condition of his commander he had plunged into the water after him, and with superhuman strength, skill and courage had supported him until he had been able to lay hold of one of the floating spars of the Torbay. Slocum had lashed Grafton to the spar and had clung desperately to it himself during half the night. After being tossed about in a sickening way for hours, the piece of timber, with its two exhausted occupants, had been washed athwart Le Formidable's cables. Slocum's cries had attracted the attention of Midshipman La Perouse, afterward the celebrated navigator and discoverer, on board her, and the two Englishmen had finally gained her decks.

The old man was not much the worse for his adventure, but Grafton was in a frightful condition. The blow, the shock, the strain of the combat, the mental agony he had suffered over the loss of his wife, had reduced him to a pitiable state. He was delirious with fever. As he lay in the berth he fought over the battle, heard once more the roar of the guns, witnessed the sinking of Le Thesee again, saw once more his white-clad wife——

Le Formidable was a veritable charnel-house. The surgeon and his mates were utterly overwhelmed by the unheard-of demand upon their services. Nearly every officer on the ship had been killed or wounded, and five hundred men in addition, before she had struck her flag. She had, indeed, been fought gallantly—nay, terribly! The ward-rooms and cabins were filled with groaning, raving men, many of whom had suffered amputation the day before, and had the tourniquets still screwed on the stumps! In some cases the blood vessels were not taken up until the third day after the battle. The gun-room, the steerage, and every available space between the guns on the lower deck, even the cradles in the hold, to say nothing of the cockpit, were filled with men in every stage of wound and agony. The ship's medical staff were entirely unable to cope with the situation. They worked like heroes, nor eating, nor sleeping, nor taking any rest, doing their best.

The chaplain had been killed, and the suffering and dying were without the consolations and comfort of their religion even. With every plunge of the ship, the wounded, unsecured, unprovided with cots or hammocks (for there were so many that there was no place to lay them except upon the bare decks), were rolled about and thrown against each other with results too sickening to dwell upon. One hideous yell from every part of the ship mingled with the scream of the tempest. The men prayed to die, and some of the unwounded broke down and became crazed by the awful signts and sounds.

The officer who commanded the French marines upon her, stated to the English prize lieutenant that every man of his detachment had been killed or wounded, that he had served in the army for thirty years, and had been present on the bloody field of Fontenoy, but he had never witnessed such a scene of carnage. In fact, all the surgeons could do in capital operations for hours during and after the battle had been to "amputate, smooth stumps and apply torniquets."

Surely never on any ship was exhibited so much of the finished horror of warfare as on this unlucky vessel. The 1,600 men who had gone down on Le Thesee and Le Superbe were to be envied in comparison with the fate of this unfortunate crew. It seems to be a modern phrase to say that "war is hell," but Le Formidable presented an ancient example of its eternal truth. Her captors gazed upon the melancholy ruin they had wrought, and to them came an old saying with a new force:

"Blessed are the peacemakers!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE WOMAN BEREFT.

TO RETURN to the Maidstone. She carried in her cabin a passenger—nay, two. The frigates, while not daring to take part in the action, had kept well up and as near as they could to the contending ships. Hatfield had naturally marked the Torbay. He had seen the loss of Le Thesee, and had put his ship over toward the place where she had gone down. As he drew near, he had ordered out his boats, and at a fearful risk—for it was a most perilous undertaking to launch a boat in such a sea—he succeeded in saving some 20 people from her crew, among them being Countess Anne and old Jean-Renaud.

There were neither accommodation, clothing, nor any other conveniences for the reception of a half-drowned woman on the frigate, yet Hatfield had done his best for her. He had given up his own cabin to her and had made her as comfortable as possible therein, while he beat out to sea during the awful night to save his ship.

Buckets of sand in which had been placed heated shot had raised the temperature of the cabin, and Anne's clothing had at last dried on her person in the warm room. She had been unable to sleep, and with difficulty partaken of food. Her condition was indeed deplorable. She had seen her country's fleet defeated; her grandfather had been most certainly drowned, de Vitre and de Kersaint likewise. The ship on which she had been had gone down, although by Jean-Renaud's action she had been spared much of the horror of that awful scene. What had become of her husband she knew not, consequently she was filled with grief on the one hand and apprehension on the other.

Her state of mind, however, was not quite so bad as that of Grafton, for he thought that he had lost her, and she still cherished the hope that she would be able to rejoin him. If she were only assured of his safety and they could be together again in the end, she felt she could bear all the other hardships and losses, terrible though they were.

She was ignorant, of course, of the wreck of the Torbay, as was every one else on the frigate, and Hatfield, who had soon discovered her identity, endeavored to reassure her as to her husband's safety. But it was with a sick heart, indeed, that she stood on the deck by his side, in spite of the storm, wrapped in a boat-cloak which had belonged to Grafton, and which he had left behind in his hasty departure for the Torbay a week ago, while the Maidstone was running into the bay. With him she stared hard at the broken, shattered ships straining at their cables in the storm which swept them on. She marked the three which had been wrecked upon Le Four, two of them dismasted and ruined with the ceaseless waves still pounding them to pieces. She saw further away great bursts of flame and clouds of smoke rising from the two which were on fire and burning furiously.

Hatfield, whose treatment of her had been perfect—she would never forget it—kept by her, supporting her on the uneasy deck of the unsteady ship, intently surveying the scene, too. He did not see the Torbay among those at anchor. As he drew nearer to the group, however, he happened to cast a glance to leeward, and instantly recognized the wrecked ship on Le Four. The involuntary start he gave, as the recognition came to him, attracted the attention of Anne, who turned to him as he stared at the remains of the Torbay. Intuitively she divined that something had occurred, and she gave him no rest until he told her the truth.

It seemed to her that fate could have laid no heavier burdens than those she had already borne, until this last blow came She would have fallen to the deck had not Hatfield supported her. He endeavored, of course, to comfort her, but without success. Though the Torbay was wrecked, they could see that many of her men remained on her, and she still held together. It was quite likely that Grafton was safe, he urged; in which event she would soon see him.

Nerved by this thought, she summoned her resolution once more, and leaning over the rail gazed at the wreck of her husband's ship, and possibly of her own hope and happiness, as they swept on. She would know all in a short time, she thought; meanwhile she must have the strength to wait a little longer. That wait was to be longer than she dreamed, and of all the demands upon her strength made during the past week it proved the greatest and the hardest to be met.

Hatfield intended to send a boat off to the flagship at once, but when he reached a suitable position for anchoring, the seas were running so heavily and the storm blowing so hard it was impossible for him to do anything all that day. Indeed, he had to bring all his seamanship and experience to bear to save his ship. Anne, in a fever of impatient anxiety, had to wait as best she could. Philip might be there on that ship, wounded, dying, she could not get to him; he might be dead, and she, not knowing it, yet alive. Oh, the raging sea, the cruel storm!

She forgot the anger of men which had wrought such havoc, and railed in her heart against wind and wave and tempest. She was almost beside herself. Hatfield, whose anxiety for his friend was also very strong, had the greatest difficulty in calming her. Indeed, he had but little time from his duties. He had to watch his ship constantly. Great are the demands of duty, but great are its compensations as well. If Anne only could have had something to do she could have borne the killing suspense better; alas! she had only to wait. The strength of woman is to wait. Weakness is passive, yet it conquers, or dies, in the end.

For the same reason of the storm no help could be offered the men on the wrecked ships. Some of them made rafts and escaped to the shore, where they were promptly captured, but most of them clung to their vessels until the weather moderated, when they were rescued.

TRULY UNIQUE MONUMENT.

It Is the Arch of an Old Washington Hand Press and Marks an Editor's Grave.

Boston (Mass.) Special.

In Greenwood cemetery, Bristol, Vt., is a unique monument, erected by the Wilson brothers, publishers of the Bristol Herald, in memory, of their father, Myron F. Wilson. This monument is the arch of a Washington handpress, Tuft's pattern, and is in acorn shape.

The interior of the arch was taken out and a marble panel inserted, on which were inscribed the names and dates of birth and death of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Wilson.

The press was used in Burlington some time before 1830 and 1840, but in what office is not now known. It came into the possession of John R. Forest, of Winooski, and in 1875 he sold it, with other printing material, to Myron, Preston and James Wilson. In 1870 the outfit was moved to Bristol, and used to print the Bristol Herald for about two years.

Myron F. Wilson, in whose memory the monument was erected, was born in Westford, Vt., April 1, 1819, and was the son of Loton E. and Lodica (Felton) Wilson. He entered the office of the Free Press, Burlington, in 1837, when George Stacy was foreman. A. L. Pappineau, William W. Atwater and a Mrs. Houghton, afterward of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Riverside Press, Boston, were employed in this office at the time. After completing his apprenticeship Mr. Wilson worked in Albany, N. Y.; Cathage, N. Y.; Malone, N. Y.; and Gouverneur, N. Y.

About 1850, at the solicitation of the late Lawrence Brainerd and the late Ex-Gov. John Gregory Smith, he went to St. Albans and started a paper, the Franklin County Journal, which he later sold, and for a few years worked as foreman of the St. Albans Messenger.

In company with the late George Church he started the St. Albans Democrat, but in 1860 sold his interest to Church and again entered the Messenger office as foreman.

In 1860 he moved to Richford and started the Frontier Sentinel, which he sold in 1868 to J. B. Bowditch, now of Pawtucket, R. I. He moved to Burlington, thence to Bristol, in 1879, and died there December 25, 1893.

TEACHES A BIBLE CLASS.

Young Teddy Roosevelt Tells Oyster Bay Children of the Heroes of the Scriptures.

Oyster Bay (L. I.) Special.

One of the most interesting Sunday school classes in the United States is that taught by Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the 17-year-old son of President Roosevelt. The membership of this class is composed of 12 little lads, who are devotedly attached to their young teacher.

The boys in his class are all about eight or nine years of age, and they are all rugged and sunburnt. The most of them are sons of men who make their living in Oyster Bay. Two are the sons of caretakers of the homes of summer residents out near the president's place. One is the son of a clerk in a grocery. The fathers of two of them are Oyster Bay storekeepers and two are the sons of men who work on Long Island railroad trains.

Young Theodore has made it his practice during the short time that he has had the class to give the boys a talk each Sunday on some of the noted Biblical characters. This is entirely aside from the regular lesson.

A few Sundays ago he talked to them about David and Saul. The lesson was about the arrest of St. Paul. The boys were told how St. Paul got permission from the captain of the Roman soldiers to speak to the people from the castle stairs; how they listened to him patiently at first and then attempted to kill him, and how he was carried by the soldiers into the castle and then scourged.

ARMIES AT BULL RUN

GREAT MIMIC WARFARE TO BE FOUGHT OUT THERE.

Thirty Thousand Regular Troops and Militia Are to Work Out War Problems on the Historic Battle Ground.

The roar of the cannon and musketry, din and clash of battle, the heavy tramp of marching armies and the thunder of the hoofbeats of the dashing cavalry which over 40 years ago shook the hills and the valleys of Virginia is soon again to be heard upon the historic battlefield of Bull Run. It was here that the first great battle of the civil war was fought. And it is here that the greatest army maneuvers which have ever been attempted in this country in times of peace will be carried out. The battle of Bull Run, or battle of Manassas, as it is referred to in the south, is to be fought over again. There will be no bloody carnage to be sure, such as marked the desperate conflict between the blue and the gray, and the features of gallant charges and desperate assaults will be lacking, owing to the improved engines of war, but the maneuvering of the 30,000 troops which will be present will be something more than military display. New problems of warfare which have arisen with the advent of the small bore, high-powdered magazine arm, the deadly machine gun and the powerful, long range seige gun, will be worked out.

The 30,000 troops from the regular army and the militia organizations will come from almost every state in the union east of the Mississippi river, and great benefits to both the regular establishment and the militia organizations are expected to result from the operations. The actual maneuvers will last from September 5 to September 10, but the greater part of the regular troops and some of the militia will be on the ground before the former date and will remain for some time after the last of the sham engagements has been fought and the set problems of mimic warfare have been satisfactorily solved.

Maj. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, former adjutant general of the army, and now in charge of the military division of the Atlantic, with headquarters at Governors island, New York, will be in supreme command, and the two divisions of the force under him will be commanded by Brig. Gen. J. Franklin Bell and Brig. Gen. Frederick D. Grant, son of the famous soldier president.

The First division, under Gen. Grant, will occupy Maneuver Camp No. 1, near Manassas, and will wear the old style blue flannel blouses, while the enemy, the Second division, under Gen. Bell, will be encamped at Thoroughfare, more than ten miles away, and will be uniformed in khaki.

THE LOCATION OF BULL RUN BATTLE FIELD.

The ambulance, medical and signal corps of the militia organizations will accompany the troops from their states and participate in the operations.

The high officers of the army who are now engaged in working out the details of the maneuvers are satisfied that when, after five days of fighting, of march and of countermarch, of night attack and armed surprise, the regulars and the militia rest on their arms, they will have a better idea of the general scheme of war than they could possibly obtain in any other way. And they believe, too, that the men of the blues and of the browns, after they have listened for days and nights to the roar of artillery bombardment, the crash of infantry volleys and the vicious drumming of the machine guns, will return to their posts or to their homes with a very wholesome respect for the instruments of modern war and a vastly increased knowledge of how to use them.

The area of operations of the union and confederate forces before and during the Bull Run engagements was bounded by Centerville on the east, Groveton on the west, Sudley Spring on the north and Manassas on the south, and it is to this famous square that the maneuvers will be confined.

Officers of the army who have been at Manassas and Thoroughfare recently, laying out the camps of the various divisions and brigades, say that the battlefield itself and the country roundabout has changed very little since civil war days—so little, in fact, that the maps used by Beauregard, Johnston and McDowell in July, 1861, and those used later by Jackson, Longstreet, Lee and Pope at the second battle of Bull Run in August, 1862, would still serve to guide the opposing armies of the blues and the browns through the woods and hills, pastures and fields of Prince William county to-day.

DIAMOND DUST.

There is a rumor that the Chatham team will be transferred to Morristown next year.

Flemington has won the baseball championship of Hunterdon county by defeating Clinton, Frenchtown and Milford.

"Pop" Watkins, of the genuine Cuban Giants, is fifty-two years old. He has been playing ball for twenty-eight consecutive years.

The Washington, Warren county team, has won the championship for three counties—Morris, Warren and Sussex. During the last week the team shutout Newton 3 to 0 and Hackettstown 8 to 0, with Badgley in the box.

The Plainfield A. C. will probably play the Elizabeth Stars three games before the season closes. Manager Frank Burke, of Elizabeth, feels sure that he can defeat the locals. His team will be considerably strengthened for these contests.

A week from today the West Ends, of Somerville, who have been cleaning up everything in sight recently, will meet the Plainfield A. C. on Crescent Oval. Somerville is very anxious to win this game and will make every effort to do so. It is understood that the team will be strengthened.

POLITICAL CHAT.

The Colored County Republican Auxiliary Committee is at present without a chairman, W. H. Kline, of Plainfield, who occupied that position, having resigned.

The New Jersey Democratic State Executive Committee met Wednesday afternoon at 15 West Park street, Newark. Chairman W. B. Gourley, of Passaic, and William S. Devereaux, of Monmouth, the able secretary of the committee, with a representation from nearly every one of the twenty-one counties was present. The South Jersey members seemed to want to press the name of former Congressman Thomas Ferrell as their candidate for Gubernatorial honors. As the situation now stands it appears that Hudson will demand the nomination on the ground that their county is entitled to it if for no other reason than that they roll up the Democratic majorities in New Jersey and that Essex had the nominee three years ago in the person of former Mayor Seymour, of Newark. The headquarters are now permanently located at 15 West Park street, Newark, and are to be kept open until election day. Secretary Devereaux has charge of the headquarters and his well-known affability will no doubt attract many up-State Democrats to that place when they are down that way. A new State Committee will be elected at the State convention which will be held in Trenton on September 15. The committee is beginning to send out documents and other political matter to the various county chairmen throughout the State. After the State convention meets the committee will go to work in earnest and put up a hard and persistent claim for the support of their candidates, Parker and Davis, and the whole Democratic State ticket.

Bread Prices the Same.

The local bakers have decided not to raise the price of bread from five to seven cents a loaf. After a thorough discussion of the matter, the dough mixers voted to keep the price where it is. The question was agitated for the reason that there has been an increase in the price of flour.

ALL TO CHARITY.

Somerville Spinster's Will Cuts Off Sole Near Relative.

The will of the late Miss Alicine Lord, of Somerville, a spinster and recluse, has been offered for probate in the Somerset County Orphans' Court. It is very probable a caveat will be filed against the document by her half-brother, Porter Lord, her only near relative, because the whole estate, valued at about $50,000, is left to churches and charitable institutions.

After minor legacies to a few friends the will sets aside $500 for a fund for a new rectory for St. John's church in Somerville, $4,000 to the indigent ministers' fund of the same denomination, $200 for a drinking fountain for Somerville in memory of her late brother, John H. Lord, and $1,000 to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Episcopal church. After these the balance of the estate is to be divided proportionately among the four beneficiaries, which will increase them sixfold.

Democratic Candidate's Tour.

The itinerary of the Democratic candidate for Governor has been fixed by a special committee of the Democratic State committee. The candidate will make his first public appearance at the convention of clubs at Newark on Wednesday, September 12. He will complete his first tour of all the counties by October 17. The itinerary will include the following assignments: Essex, September 21; Passaic, September 22; Bergen, September 23; Somerset, September 24; Sussex, September 26; Warren, September 27; Hunterdon, September 28; Mercer, September 29; Middlesex, September 30; Union, October 1; Camden, October 3; Gloucester, October 4; Salem, October 5; Burlington, October 6; Ocean, October 7; Essex or Hudson, October 8; Atlantic, October 10; Cape May, October 11; Cumberland, October 12; Monmouth, October 14; Hudson, October 15 and Morris, October 17.

PLAINFIELD A. C. VICTORS

Westfield is Defeated in the Ninth Game of the Series.

TWO HOME RUNS MADE

The Locals Give a Fine Exhibition of Batting and Fielding—The Detailed Score.

It was Plainfield's turn to win on Saturday, the local team defeating Westfield on Crescent Oval in clever fashion by a score of 6 to 4. It was one of the most exciting contests in the series thus far played, there being plenty of hitting and fielding. There were more errors than usual, but the game was a lively one throughout, the features being two home runs made in the second inning, one by "Pop" Dietrich, and the other by Fraser. They electrified the crowd and wild enthusiasm followed. "Pop" had a new bat and he predicted that there would be something doing. Fraser was in excellent form and when necessary he shut off the hitting and the runs. He was ably supported by the team. Hartman, the new shortstop, showed up well and put lots of ginger in the play.

Farmer was handicapped in his work, sustaining a severe injury to his finger. Dr. Zeglio was obiged to reset a joint which was knocked out of place. The catcher pluckily finished the game.

Waller was not quite up to his usual condition, neither were some of the other members of the visiting team. "Red" was touched for eight hits, including the two homers and a three bagger by Oregan. There was a decided improvement in the batting of the locals. The series now stands five to four in favor of Westfield and the tenth game will be played at Westfield on Saturday, September 24.

NEW YEAR'S FESTIVAL OF HEBREWS IS CLOSED

IMPORTANT RELIGIOUS FEAST ENDED SATURDAY NIGHT.

With the setting of yesterday's sun the annual observance of Rosh Hashona, the festival of the New Year, came to an end with the evening prayer in the Jewish Synagogue. This festival, which is among the most rigidly observed of all the feast days in the Hebrew calendar, has attracted many visitors from out of the city, many coming from New York and vicinity. After the regular afternoon service yesterday supplementary services were held for the benefit of those unable to get out earlier. When ever ten or more of the late comers had gathered, a layman would read the service and the regular ceremony would be gone through with as was done by the congregation earlier in the day.

Some of the treasures of the Synagogue were displayed, including the solid silver pointer used in the reading of the scroll of the Scriptures and three volumes containing the portions of the Scriptures prescribed for use during the various festivals and feast-day observances, such as that just closed and the Day of Atonement which occurs next Monday, called in Hebrew, Yom Kippur. These old leather bound volumes, with their brass clasps are worth a large sum of money, having been printed in 1708 at Wilhelmsdorff in Alsace, and are therefore 196 years old.

The young people of the congregaion point proudly to the massive chandelier in the center of the church and which bears a bronze plate with an inscription stating it to be the gift of the Plainfield Hebrew Juvenile Auxiliary Society.

MR. BENTON BURIED.

Funeral Services Over His Remains Were Held Yesterday Afternoon.

Simple funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the body of William S. Benton, who was drowned in the Harlem River about August 30. The funeral discourse was delivered by Rev. H. DuB. Mulford, of Hudson, N. Y., at Runyon's undertaking parlors on Park avenue and interment was made at Hillside cemetery, where the Rev. John S. Zelie officiated.

Conspicuous among the beautiful floral pieces was one from Mr. Benton's fellow-employes at A. M. Griffen's hardware store, many of whom were present at the service. A large number of friends were present also, as well as relatives from Hudson and Brooklyn, N. Y., and Elizabeth and Jersey City.

Those who acted as pall bearers were Arthur M. Griffen, C. Frank French, Henry Patterson, N. H. Randolph, Asa F. Randolph and F. S. Valentine.

COLORED BAPTISTS.

Their Twelfth Annual State Convention Terminated Yesterday at Noon.

The twelfth annual session of the New Jersey State Baptist Convention, colored, came to a close at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, yesterday noon. All business was concluded on Saturday, and yesterday morning's session was opened with devotional exercises by Rev. P. Ross, of Westfield, and Rev. J. W. Spruell, of South Amboy, after which the doctrinal sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. George E. Morris, president of the convention. After the sermon adjournment was taken.

It is the opinion of all the delegates that this convention has been the most successful of any yet held. There was an increase in the number of delegates and all reports show that more work than usual has been done during the past year.

To Raise Republican Banner.

Preparations are being made today by Charles W. Runyon, manager of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, who has the matter in charge, for the erection of a Republican banner on North avenue. It will be hung in front of The Daily Press office between the Hotel Kensington and D. W. Littell's building opposite. It is the same banner used four years ago, repainted and improved. Pictures of Roosevelt and Fairbanks replace those of McKinley and Roosevelt.

—Do you realize it's now the middle of September? This is preserving time, and if you wait, you lose the choicest fruit. Neuman Brothers will have 200 baskets of fancy canning peaches on sale tomorrow morning. They are 75c, 85c, $1 and $1.25 a basket.

NEGRO ATTACKS A WOMAN

Miss Annie Davis Robbed While on Her Way Home.

ASSAILANT ESCAPES

After Asking for An Address the Highwayman Grabs Silk Bag Containing Money—No Clue.

Highway robbery in a most cowardly form, assault upon a defenceless woman, was committed on West Seventh street, Saturday evening, by an unknown colored man who attacked Miss Annie Davis, who makes her home with the family of Chief T. O. Doane on West Fifth street. Miss Davis was thrown to the ground by the assailant in his haste to wrench a silk bag from her wrist and she narrowly escaped a fracture of her left arm, that member having been broken several years ago and never having regained its full strength.

Miss Davis first saw the negro when passing the Congregational church parsonage near Madison avenue, while on her way home from G. H. Goddard's residence on East Ninth street. He approached her with a request that she direct him to the home of John V. Beekman, of West Eighth street. This she did, but the man dogged her steps across the street and followed her as far as Mrs. Rowland Cox's home, between Madison and Central avenues, explaining how difficult it was to find the place he was looking for.

Just as Miss Davis reached the middle of the block, the negro stepped beside her and tore the silk bag, she carried, from her left wrist, with such force as to throw her to the ground. The ruffian then fled through A. H. Atterbury's driveway toward Eighth street. Another negro who rode up just then on a bicycle assisted Miss Davis to her feet and offered to pursue her assailant, but failed to do so.

As Miss Davis was uninjured except for the nervous shock, she hurried home, and the police were notified by telephone. Detective McCarthy responded at once and was searching the neighborhood of the scene of the crime within fifteen minutes of its occurrence. T. O. Doane, Jr., arrived home at this time and assisted in the search, inquiring also at the Beekman home, where he was told that no man of the description given by Miss Davis was known.

While Miss Davis regrets the loss of the five dollars or so which the old-fashioned alligator pocket-book in the bag, contained, the cowardly character of the crime make it a particularly aggravated one. Beside the pocket-book, the thief secured a pair of aluminum-mounted straight-bowed spectacles.

Joseph Cooney, a private watchman in the neighborhood, was told of the case, but reported no suspicious circumstances on his beat. The police are still on the case and Chief Kiely has hopes of a capture very soon. This is the second attack of this character within the past two months and there is much indignation expressed in consequence.

C. H. HAND PURCHASES P. S. C. TROLLEY STATION

BUYS TRACT ON WATCHUNG AVENUE AND SECOND STREET.

Another important real estate deal has just been completed, whereby Charles H. Hand has purchased the property at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street, which includes the building now used by the P. S. C. as a waiting room and office. The property extends 100 feet southeast from the corner of Watchung avenue and Second street and is eighty feet deep.

There is somewhat a mystery about the deal, it being a question whether Mr. Hand has secured the property for himself or the trolley company. It was formerly owned by the New Jersey Central Land Improvement Company. There is also some talk that Mr. Hand, together with Charles Sebring and Seaman Williams, owners of adjoining property, will combine interests and erect an opera house on the corner.

at 9, according to Superintendent H. J. Wightman's programme. The new entrance to the High School building is nearly completed and will improve the whole appearance of the place, the high wooden porch and steps having been removed and replaced by a short flight of stone steps leading to the entrance of the superintendent's office. The doorway opposite the office has been permanently closed and a new walk is being laid from the steps to the sidewalk.

A CAMPAIGN BANNER.

Democrats Unfurl a Parker and Davis Banner at Elizabeth Saturday Night.

Political spirit ran high at the displaying of the first campaign banner of the season by Union county Democrats at Elizabeth Saturday evening. The big banner was unfurled at East Jersey and Broad streets. Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, J. V. F. Dilts and Walter Linbarger were among those present. S. S. Swackhamer made an address on "State Issues."

Children Drank Carbolic.

A careless act of Mrr. John Blaine, of Dunellen, in leaving a dish of carbolic acid on the dining room table this morning, nearly cost the lives of her two young daughters, whose curiosity led them to ascertain what the stuff war. The girls got a taste of the deadly poison, when their screams attracted the attention of the mother. She hastily summoned Dr. P. W. Brakeley. Fortunately, the children did not get enough acid to cause any serious consequences.

FATAL FEAT AT A CIRCUS

William Muir Dies As Result of Fall From Ladder.

HIS SPINE BROKEN

Fifteen Year Old Boy Conscious to the Last After Sad Accident.

As a result of an accident while performing athletic feats at an amateur circus given by some lads in the West End Saturday afternoon, William Muir, the fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Muir, of Essex street, lays dead at his home with a broken neck. The fatal injury was the result of a five foot fall from a ladder, stuck up in the ground and on which young Muir was performing a climbing act.

Before a group of about twenty-five of his young playmates, who had assembled on St. Mary's baseball field to see the amateur "circus," the boy had succeeded in climbing the perpendicular ladder and was in the act of descending head downwards by the aid of his hands and feet, when he missed his grip and fell heavily to the ground, striking directly on his head. His friends immediately rushed to where he lay. Though stunned for a few moments, he soon spoke, telling those who crowded around him that he was not hurt. When he tried to raise he fell back again with a cry, and the other boys, becoming alarmed, ran for assistance.

George Feiring and Louis M. Dunavan, at Fire House No. 3, across the street heard the boys' calls for help and rushed to the scene of the accident. Seeing that Muir was badly hurt, Feiring telephoned from the engine house to Muhlenberg Hospital and the ambulance soon responded. Muir was removed to the institution, where Dr. B. VanD. Hedges made an examination and discovered that the spine was broken about two inches below the base of the brain. The splintered bone protruded entirely through the flesh.

Though the case was hopeless from the first, young Muir made a brave fight for life, retaining consciousness until the end. Death came at shortly after 3:30 this morning. The entire family, with the exception of Mrs. Muir and Thomas M. Muir, a brother, were present at the death bed.

As soon as it became known how serious the accident was, an effort was made to communicate with Mrs. Muir and her son, who left last week to attend the St. Louis Exposition. The two left the Exposition yesterday and are on their way to Iowa, where they intended to spend a few days. En route thither, as they were, telegraph communication was impossible, and they were unable to hear of the fatality until this morning, when they arrived at their destination.

The young man, who celebrated his fifteenth birthday but two weeks ago, was one of a family of eleven children, nine brothers and a married sister. At the time of his death, Muir was employed at the Potter Press Works. He was a member of Hope chapel and attended the Sunday-school.

TREE CLIMBING COSTLY TO THESE TWO YOUTHS

ONE'S WRIST DISLOCATED, OTHER'S HIP BADLY INJURED.

While climbing a tall chestnut tree in the northeast portion of the borough this morning, Joseph, the fourteen-year-old son of Joseph Flack, of Codington avenue, a patrolman on the North Plainfield police force, fell nearly one hundred feet and seriously injured his hip. His fall was somewhat broken by intervening branches. As it was, he sustained a bad fracture of the left thigh.

George Francisco, aged fourteen years, of 150 North avenue, watched the ball game between Plainfield and Westfield at Crescent Oval on Saturday, from a tree at the extreme rear of the oval. During a moment of excitement caused by the home runs made by Dietrich and Fraser, the lad made a misstep and fell to the ground, sustaining a slight scalp wound and dislocating his wrist. Friends assisted him to the hospital. He was able to go home yesterday.

Coppers' Next Game.

STREET SPRINKLING NO SMALL TASK HERE

EIGHT WATER WAGONS KEPT BUSY FROM MORNING UNTIL NIGHT.

Some facts concerning municipal street sprinkling is interesting just now because the first year of this work has about been completed and the many advantages of it attest to the wisdom of introduction here. John E. Keely was successful in getting the contract on a competitive basis and through his constant personal attention, the work has been conducted in a most satisfactory way, very few complaints having been received.

There are at present eight sprinkling carts, eighteen horses and eight drivers employed in this work. Sixteen horses are regularly employed, the other pair being held in reserve as extras in case the other horses are sick or meet with an accident. It requires a large building to house all these carts and horses, but Mr. Keely has such a place on East Seventh street, where his stables occupy a entire block.

Every day during the sprinkling season ninety miles of streets in the city are watered between 6:30 in the morning and 6 o'clock in the evening, and in the business center the streets are sprinkled three and four times a day, while those outside are covered at least twice a day. The carts are loaded with water between fifty and sixty times a day. The work was started the last week in March this year, and it is apparent that thousands of dollars have been saved to the taxpayers through the preservation of macadam, while the ten-inch roller on each wagon, the result of wheels lapping each other serves to help pack the macadam after it has been wet. Besides the cost to the taxpayers is so slight that it is scarcely felt.

This work is very hard on the horses. Each team is required to draw a weight of ninety hundred, when the wagons are filled with water. Five big horses have gone under during the present season, being unable to stand the work. These animals are fed every morning at 5:30 and every night they are washed and cleaned, the men working as late as 8 o'clock in completing their day's work. It is really a sight worth seeing to be at the stables either at night or in the morning.

The territory covered by these horses and wagons includes all streets from DeKalb avenue to Netherwood avenue and from the Green brook line to Randolph road.

The work is done under the personal supervision of John E. Keely and it is no doubt due to this fact that satisfaction is the result. The great expenditure in securing suitable horses, to say nothing of the harness and the employment of labor aggregates a very large sum and it is safe to say that as yet Mr. Keely has failed to realize much profit.

One advantage of this work is that the streets are sprinkled at least once every morning before the commuters are on their way to the train. As to the cost for this work, it has been estimated that each taxpayer's bill is not increased over ten cents a year for it, whereas under the old arrangement it would cost from ten to fifty cents a week to have the sprinkling done.

Firemen's Outing.

The first drill of Warren Engine Company in preparation for the coming firemen's celebration at Flemington will take place this evening. The members will meet at the club-room on Somerset street and go through their evolutions on the streets. It is expected that forty or more of the boys will turn out in uniform on the great day and their fancy marching stunts are counted on to throw all competitors completely in the shade.

ATTRACTIVE GOLF EVENTS

Hibbard and Cruikshank Win Honors at Hillside.

PARKS, 7; COLONIA, 6

Gus W. Faber Defeats John L. Watson for Holiday Cup—Results at Westfield.

There was a good field at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club on Saturday to take part in the weekly competition for the Golf Committee and Gaston cups, excellent scores being returned. The improved condition of the course was enjoyed by the contestants, as well as many others who just played around for the mere pleasure. H. D. Hibbard won first honors for the Golf Committee cup, with a net score of 74 and Robert Abbott finished second with a net score of 78, while E. B. Shoemaker, Henry L. Hall and E. A. Cruikshank were tie with a net score of 79 for third place.

These scores were returned for the Golf Committee cup:

H. D. Hibbard, 82, 8—74; Robert Abbott, 77, plus 1—78; E. B. Shoemaker, 88, 9—79; Henry L. Hall, 96, 71—79; E. A. Cruikshank, 98, 19—79; W. L. Glenney, 78, plus 2—80; C. B. Morgan, 87, 6—81; Roger F. Murray, 87, 6—81; E. E. Iremonger, 93, 11—82; Dr. J. H. Carman, 97, 14—83.

In the play for the Gaston cup, the honors were won by E. A. Cruikshank, A. E. Barclay and Harold Robert. These scores were posted:

E. A. Cruikshank, 98, 0—98; A. E. Barclay, 101, 0—101; Harold Robert, 101, 0—101; T. W. T. Maxwell, 103, 1—102; Harold Serrell, 107, 3—104; J. M. Unler, 109, 3—106.

The tie for the third eight in the play for the Fourth of July cup will be played off next Saturday between E. B. Shoemaker and E. E. Iremonger, as will also the tie between Henry L. Hall and A. E. Barclay for a leg on the Holiday cup played on Labor Day.

The chief event at the Park Golf Club on Saturday was a postponed team match between the home club and the Colonia Golf Club, in the Central Jersey Golf League tournament. The home team won by a score of 7 to 6, Nassau system. As most of those taking part in the team match have been competing for the President's and Park Golf Club cups, they were unable to play in both events on Saturday, and the weekly competition went by default. There was a playoff for the Holiday cup between Gus. W. Faber and John L. Watson, and the former won with a score of 73. His opponent made a net score of 78.

This is the summary of the team match:

Park Club—G. W. Faber, 3; Arthur Peck, 0; Herbert Rogers, 3; C. O. Faber, 0; Charles A. Reed, 0; T. U. Dudley, 0; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 1. Total, 7.

Colonia—H. D. Tucker, 0; A. E. Smith, 3; C. A. McCormick, 0; Edward Morris, 1; C. D. Ward, 1; G. W. Buck, 1; W. L. Oliver, 0. Total, 6.

In the second round match play in the Governors' competition at the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday, C. E. Halsted beat W. J. Bogert, 3 up and 2 to play; W. R. Davis beat E. E. Floyd, 6 up and 4 to play; H. W. Gladwin beat Hugh Talbot, 3 up and 2 to play, and M Whitlatch beat E. B. Proudfit, 5 up and 4 to play. The semi-finals between C. E. Halstead, M. Whitlatch, H. W. Gladwin and W. R. Davis will be played on Saturday.

Saturday night there was a dance at the clubhouse, there being a large attendance of members and friends. Those who received were Mrs. H. E. Knight, Mrs. W. E. Gibbs, Mrs. H. W. Gladwin, Mrs. Hugh Talbot and Mrs. R. A. Fairbairn.

EIGHT DROWNED.

Tragic Ending of a Philadelphia Party's Pleasure Trip.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The Delaware river steamer Columbia, on its way from this city to Bristol, Pa., last night, crashed into a steam launch about ten miles north of here, grinding it to pieces and causing the drowning of eight of the dozen occupants of the small boat. All of the party were Philadelphians. The dead are Joseph Fortescue, owner of the launch; Wade Auday, Thomas Duffy, Thomas Corvesier, Anna Young, Joseph Pfromer, Mrs. Joseph Pfromer and Engineer James Briggs.

The accident was the tragic ending of a day's pleasure trip on the river. The launch was owned by Joseph Fortescue, and the party had been made up from among a few of his friends. The day was spent in a cruise up the river as far as Trenton. The return trip was begun after nightfall, the pilot of the boat keeping close to the Pennsylvania shore on the run down the river. When a point was reached near Andalusia, the Columbia suddenly loomed up in the darkness. Fortescue jammed his wheel to starboard, but just a moment too late. The big steamer struck the launch squarely in the middle and cut it in half, throwing all the occupants into the water.

TWO TRAINS WRECKED.

Switch Locks Found Broken Indicate Dastardly Crime.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 12.—Train No. 3, from Savannah for Atlanta, Sunday night was derailed at Ogeechee in precisely the same manner that train No. 4, its opposite, was derailed Sunday morning at Rocky Ford. Fireman Gabe Polite, colored, of Macon was killed, and Engineer Arden and Express Messenger Littleton of Savannah were injured.

The switch was found open and the lock broken and on the ground, as in the case of the Rocky Ford accident. The stations are six miles apart. The railroad authorities attribute the derailments to the work of wreckers and have offered a reward of $500 for their apprehension. Bloodhounds are on the trail.

Peonage In Mississippi.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 12.—At the regular term of the federal court, which convenes at Meridian, the first peonage cases to be tried in Mississippi will be called. Iva Henderson, white, Kemper county, is under indictment for holding in involuntary servitude a negro named Shep Griffin on his farm in Kemper county. The Pickett brothers, also white, are charged with holding in involuntary servitude a negro named Dock Henderson. It is understood that there is considerable peonage being carried on in Mississippi just now.

Canadian Pacific Express Held Up.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 12.—The Canadian Pacific railroad westbound transcontinental express was held up by four masked men four and a half miles west of Mission Junction. At the point of revolvers the express messenger was compelled to hand over the valuables, and the safe was dynamited. The registered mail also was ransacked. The robbers escaped to the bush and are supposed to have crossed the boundary. They secured about $3,000 from the express safe.

Brutal Murder at Newell, Pa.

BELLE VERNON, Pa., Sept. 12.—Telegraph Operator J. W. Ehell cut the throat of William G. The murderer jumped through a window and escaped. Bloodhounds have been put on the track of the fugitive, and excitement runs high in the neighborhood.

Shortage In the Salmon Pack.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 12.—Pack of all varieties of salmon in southeastern Alaska up to Sept. 1, according to information received by local houses, aggregated 393,800 cases. Very few of the canneries have equaled their pack of last year, and in addition many establishments were closed up entirely this season. The total shortage in the Alaska salmon pack for 1904 is placed at 400,000 cases.

Double Tragedy In Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—Enraged because of the woman's refusal to marry him, John Guinasso, thirty years of age, killed Reina Fopiano, a widow, twenty-five years old, by cutting her throat with a razor, then took his own life in a similar manner. Mrs. Fopiano was murdered as she sat upon the front steps of her aunt's boarding house, on Stillman place, north end, in the Italian quarter.

Oyster Bay Pastor Preaches to President on Peace.

QUIET DAY AT SAGAMORE HILL.

No Callers of Consequence—A Visit From Charles W. Fairbanks Expected, In Which Republican Candidates Will Fix Things.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 12.—No official visitors were received by President Roosevelt, and he transacted no public business. As usual, the president and his family spent most of the day quietly at Sagamore Hill. Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and several of the children, the president attended service at Christ Episcopal church, where he listened attentively to a sermon on "The Peace of the World" delivered by the rector, Rev. H. H. Washburn.

Dr. Washburn maintained that the peace of the world could be insured only by the universal adoption of the principles underlying the precepts of righteousness. International arbitration, he indicated, was a long step in the right direction, but it had been proved that it does not overcome the powers of nature as exemplified in men. Of itself it would not prevent internecine strife nor abolish the horrors of war.

"The theory of arbitration," he said, "is beautiful and godlike, but we cannot overlook the fact that children are being born today who in the future will double up their fists at supposed wrong or injury as quickly as did their grandfathers and their great-grandfathers. How despite our boasted civilization have wars devastated our own and foreign lands? Alliances, triple and quadruple, have been as ropes of sand. What standing armies of thousands and tens of thousands confront one another on the lines which separate nationalities! What ships freighted with instruments of death and destruction plow the seas! We have to look beneath the surface of things to find the bedrock upon which our feet may stand. Not that efforts should be lessened to accomplish if possible by arbitration the settlement of international differences, but more than this in every civilized nation legislation must regard the principles underlying all precepts of righteousness as contained in the Old and New Testaments."

President Roosevelt expects a visit this evening from Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, his running mate on the national ticket. He and Senator Fairbanks will receive returns from the Maine election at Sagamore Hill.

CAMPAIGN FORMALLY OPENED.

Republican National Chairman Cortelyou Sends For State Chairmen.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—With the issuance of President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance the Republican national campaign may be considered as formally open. It then depends upon the various state organizations to arrange for their meetings, and the national committee will assign the speakers who are to do the work.

Partly in furtherance of this a number of state chairmen are being called in to see National Chairman Cortelyou, who has been in Chicago for the past week.

State openings will follow rapidly on the issuance of the president's letter. Michigan, Washington and Montana will begin on Sept. 15, Nebraska and West Virginia on Sept. 17, Indiana and Iowa on Sept. 20, Pennsylvania on Sept. 21, Minnesota on Sept. 24 and Ohio on Oct. 1. In Missouri and Kansas work already has begun.

SOLDIERS CHEER PARKER.

Eighth Massachusetts Visits Esopus Going Home From Maneuvers.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The Eighth Massachusetts regiment on its way home from the maneuvers at Manassas stopped at Esopus and enthusiastically greeted Judge Parker as he was boarding a train for Kingston to attend church services. The judge shook hands with as many of the soldiers as he could before his train started.

Judge Parker's only political caller was William F. Sheehan, chairman of the national executive committee, who drove over from his summer home at Atwood, where he spent Sunday. Requests that Judge Parker go on a speaking trip and also visit New York to personally direct the campaign continue to pour in, but as yet the candidate has made no changes in his original programme.

Senator Kearns Will Not Run Again.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 12.—A new feature was added to the recent movement in Salt Lake City and other Utah cities to reorganize the old anti-church party in this state by the announcement made by United States Senator Thomas Kearns that he will not under any circumstances be a candidate for re-election before the forthcoming session of the legislature. Senator Kearns also stated that it was his intention personally to advance by all honorable means the movement now on foot in Utah to free the politics of the state from alleged apostolic domination and to bring about a dissolution of the relations now existing between church and state in Utah. Senator Kearns heretofore has been an active candidate for re-election.

Congressman Payne Renominated.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Congressman Payne of Auburn has been unanimously renominated for congressman at the Republican convention for the Thirty-first district.

JAPS OCCUPY YENTAI

In Full Possession of Kuropatkin's Coal Mines.

RUSSIAN LOSSES ARE OVER 25,000

This Estimate Does Not Include Casualties In Rear Guard Actions Since the Evacuation of Liaoyang.

TOKYO, Sept. 12.—Telegraphic reports received here from the headquarters of the Manchurian army declare the Japanese to be in full possession of the Yentai coal mines, estimate the Russian losses up to the fall of Liaoyang at over 25,000 men and give additional details of the disposition of the Russian forces around Liaoyang during the battle. The estimate of losses does not include those suffered by the Russians in the rear guard actions fought after the evacuation of Liaoyang. The date upon which the Japanese occupied the Yentai coal mines is not given.

According to Russian prisoners and other men, the Russian force at Liaoyang included the full strength of the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Tenth and Seventeenth army corps and portions of other corps. One corps was posted to the west of Liaoyang, another was located south of Liaoyang, with a full corps in reserve; another placed to the northwest of the city on the right bank of the Taitse river, and another faced the Japanese right army.

General Stakelberg was in command of the Russian forces at Shoushanpao. Major General Mistchenko at first was in command southwest of Liaoyang, and later he directed the Russian defenses on the east.

Prisoners and others affirm that the Russian losses between the retreat from Anshanshan and the final fall of Liaoyang amounted to over 25,000 men.

Before the battle the Russians assembled a great number of railroad cars at Liaoyang, which were constantly used in the removal of wounded men and arms and ammunition to the rear for three or four days. Vast quantities of arms, ammunition and stores were burned at Liaoyang before the final retreat, but an enormous amount of shells, ammunition, powder wagons, stores and miscellaneous property was captured by the Japanese. Among the ammunition captured was a quantity of dumdum bullets.

BALTIC SQUADRON SAILS.

Rear Admiral Rojestvensky Off For the Far East.

CRONSTADT, Sept. 12.—The Baltic fleet, under command of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, has sailed.

The destination of the squadron is the far east. The vessels of the fleet were as follows:

The battleships Souvoroff (Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's flagship), Navarin, Sissoi Veliky, Borodino, Alexander III., Orel, Oleg and the Osliaba (Rear Admiral Voelkersam's flagship), the cruisers Admiral Nakhimoff, Dmitri Donskoi, Aurora and Almaz (Rear Admiral Enquist's flagship) and several torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

The fleet will merely touch at Libau, where it will be joined by twelve transports, colliers and supply ships already waiting there, and will then proceed direct to the orient.

TO PRAY FOR VICTORY.

The Russian Holy Synod Calls For Special Invocations.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 12.—The Official Messenger publishes the following resolution, which has been adopted by the holy synod:

"By virtue of an imperial ukase to the effect that during the present trials of our dear country more ardent prayers should be offered for the victory of the Russian troops, who are worshipers of Christ, over a cruel enemy full of guile, the holy synod pronounces the time ripe for special prayers to be offered in all of the churches in the empire on Sundays and holidays after mass, beseeching that heavenly aid should be sent to the Russian army, which is sacrificing its life for its faith, its emperor and its country; for long life for the victorious troops and for the repose of the souls of the warriors who fall."

JAP TRENCHES SHELLED.

Defenders of Port Arthur Keep Up the Good Fight.

CHEFU, Sept. 12.—According to the latest news received here from Port Arthur the Russians on Sept. 4 shelled the Japanese covered trenches in front of Pailchaung and destroyed them. Everything was quiet along the entire line during the night of Sept. 4, but in the morning it was seen that Japanese outposts had crept closer into the Russian lines. One incident of the recent bombarding of Port Arthur was the striking of the roof of a hospital by a Japanese shell. The Japanese fire was drawn to the hospital by the placing near it by the Russians of beacon signals.

One small Russian scouting party succeeded in creeping close to the Japanese intrenchment on Corner mountain, but the barking of dogs gave the alarm and prevented a further advance. Japanese reserves poured into the intrenchment and opened fire on the Russians, but a shell from a Russian battery landed in the trench and killed many of the Japanese soldiers and the remainder retired. This enabled the Russians to occupy the trench until dawn. The trench evidently was unimportant, for the Japanese made no attempt to retake it, and the Russian scouts withdrew shortly after daybreak.

On Sept. 6 a small body of Japanese troops captured some outpost trenches on High hill, which is not far from Corner mountain, but upon the approach of a Russian detachment they evacuated this position without fighting.

The Port Arthur Novikrai in a recent issue declared that a Japanese colonel has been executed because he failed to occupy a certain position on Corner hill within a specified time.

In its issue of Sept. 2 the same paper says that a Japanese torpedo boat struck a mine fourteen miles southeast of the harbor and sank, and that on the day after this occurrence the Japanese cruiser Itsukushima also was damaged by a floating mine.

All Quiet at Mukden.

MUKDEN, Sept. 12.—All is quiet in this region. It is understood that the main force of Japanese has retired to Yentai. A solemn service was held here for the repose of the souls of those killed in action. It was attended by the entire staff and garrison. A few distant shots were heard during the ceremony, but this did not disturb the solemnity of the service. The weather is threatening and more rain is expected.

Japanese Losses at Liaoyang.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Tokyo which reached the Japanese legation places the total casualties on the Japanese side at the battle of Liaoyang at 17,539 officers and men killed or wounded. NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The White Star line steamer Cedric, which has arrived from Liverpool and Queenstown, was delayed on account of stormy weather. A northwest gale was experienced Sunday, Sept. 4, lasting throughout Monday, the 5th and part of the 6th, with very high seas. The steamer's runs fell off considerably. She made 380 miles on the 4th, 286 on the 5th and 352 on the 6th. The Cedric brought a large list of passengers, 532 cabin and 2,162 steerage. The steerage passengers outnumbered those she brought on the record trip of the Baltic of last week.

BIG FLOOD IN TEXAS.

The Town of Presido Del Norte Practically Wiped Out.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 12.—A special to the Express from Marfa, Tex., says telephone messages received from Presido del Norte, in the southern part of the county, announce that it has practically been destroyed by the waters of the Rio Grande. A number of residences and business houses have been abandoned, including the United States custom house, but the government records were saved.

The inundation was the result of confluence of the Concho river in Mexico and Irbolo creek in Texas with the Rio Grande, each of which was greatly swollen by the very heavy rains of the past week.

Great property loss will be sustained, but no lives were lost.

Twenty-six natives were captured, and sixteen of them were executed for the crime.

The design of the natives was to murder all the whites, but this was frustrated.

Kolb, and her husband, who left this city Thursday afternoon in a thirty-eight foot naphtha launch, intending to go to Oyster Bay, N. Y. A few hours after the launch sailed out of the harbor a furious thunderstorm swept over the sound, and as no trace of the boat has been reported and no word from any member of the party has been received it is supposed that they were all lost in the storm.

Civil War Steamboat Beached.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The River Queen, beached in the Potomac, is the oldest steamer plying the Potomac. During the civil war she was in the service of the government. President Lincoln frequently used her as a dispatch boat. At the siege of Petersburg, Va., she was lying at City Point in the James river. President Lincoln was aboard, and he paced her decks during the cannonading.

Uruguayan Troops Defeated.

BUENOS AYRES, Sept. 12.—A further heavy engagement between the insurgents and the troops of the government, in which the latter are reported to have been defeated, is said to have occurred in Uruguay. Rumors concerning the casualties are conflicting. Negotiations between the Paraguayan government and the revolutionists there are still proceeding.

RUSSIANS IN FRISCO

A Disabled Transport Takes Refuge In American Port.

SHE COMES FROM VLADIVOSTOK

Carries 497 Men, 21 Officers and 23 Guns — Wants to Make Repairs. Port Authorities Telegraph to Washington For Orders.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—The Russian transport Lena, Captain Berlinsky, has put into this port for repairs.

The Lena is thirty-one days from Vladivostok, via Bayalwa, Sakhalin island. She made the run from Bayalwa in nineteen days, which is considered fast time. The Lena has a crew of 497 men and 21 officers and carries twenty-three guns. She has three funnels and three masts.

Captain Berlinsky, who officially declares the Lena to be a transport, states that her engines and boilers are in need of repairs. After passing quarantine the Lena anchored off the Union Iron works, where she now lies.

According to Brassey's Naval Annual, the Lena formerly was the Kherson of the Russian volunteer fleet. Brassey refers to her as a "volunteer cruiser" and also as a "transport vessel."

The Lena has a speed of 18½ knots. Her hull is of steel, and her displacement is 10,225 tons. She is 493 feet long, 54 feet 3 inches wide and has a draft of 24 feet. She has two propellers. Her indicated horsepower is 12,500. She was built at Hebburn, England, in 1895. According to Brassey, the Lena carries three 4.7 inch quick firing guns and twenty of smaller caliber.

The arrival of the Lena has been reported to Washington, and instructions are awaited.

Pilot McCulloch, who brought the Lena into port, says that chains were wrapped around her hull, indicating that some of her plates were loose.

Immediately after the Lena dropped anchor in the bay Captain Berlinsky left the warship, but the object of his visit ashore was not announced. An officer of the cruiser, however, stated that the Lena left Vladivostok on a cruising expedition, hoping to capture some of the transpacific vessels carrying contraband of war. It was admitted that the vessel most eagerly sought for was the steamship America of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, which company sent her from this port several weeks ago for the orient. The America arrived safely at Hongkong on Sept. 2.

Melba was greatly distressed and returned to the hotel, where she is now confined to her apartments.

Explosion In Westminster Abbey.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A singular affair took place in Westminster abbey. At the middle of the morning service a series of loud explosions came from the north transept and startled the kneeling congregation to its feet, causing an almost dangerous rush for the doors. It was discovered that the cause of the explosions was a firecracker, the label attached to which showed the outrage to be the work of a fanatical adherent of the late John Kensit, the antiritualistic crusader. The culprit escaped in the confusion following the explosions.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 12, 1904.

It's five to four in Westfield's favor now, but after Saturday's exhibition Plainfield's stock has commenced to soar and the local fans are sanguine that they'll capture the series of ten games.

President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance puts the writer and tells the Nation that he stands pat on his record, which is really the record of John Hay, one of the greatest statesmen America has produced. There are many intelligent Republicans whose loyalty is not shaken in the present campaign because of their confidence that Mr. Hay will be the ruling force if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected.

In neither the Fourth nor the Fifth District have the Democrats been able to get up any enthusiasm so far as the congressional fight is concerned. Francis B. Lee, of Trenton, who was urged to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination, absolutely declines to allow his name to be used. It was believed sometime ago that Samuel Swackhamer had his eyes on the nominaton, but he declares it's too expensive a job. In the Fifth district, DeWitt C. Flanagan was looked upon as desiring to make another try against Fowler, but the Morristown man says that he does not want the nomination although he adds that he will take it provided no one else will. James E. Martine, who declares that a seat in Congress is more coveted by him than a place in heaven, refuses to run for the nomination. His reason is that he is good in a race but not good in reaching the goal. The fact is no one seems to hanker after a nomination in either district and the Democrats are in a dilemma.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A baseball team traveling under the name of the Cranford F. C., came to town Saturday afternoon and attempted to give an exhibition of the National game. The exhibition they gave was not one which pleased the fans, as many of them left the grounds in disgust before the game was over. The locals did not have their regular battery at work, but even at that they won by a score of 12 to 1. Cranford scored on an error by Garvey in fielding a hit, but were far from dangerous at any stage of the game. The locals played a fast game in the field and hit Glddes' curves at will. Staats pitched a good game and Graham's throwing was the best seen here this year.

Charles Doolittle will be unable to resume his studies at Rutgers College this fall on account of his poor health. He was a sophomore at that institution. Mr. Doolittle will spend a year in building up his constitution and will resume his studies again next fall.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The township and borough primaries will be held tomorrow. Polls will be open at 1 o'clock. Under the new election law, primary elections are held under supervision of the Registry Board, the same as a general election. No contest will be wagered on the Democratic ticket as only the legal number of delegates have been named. Not so on the Republican side, as usual a contest is on. Only two delegates are to be elected to the county convention. Three have been named as follows: Edward V. Goodman, William D. Johnston and George H. Johnston.

No game was played on the local diamond Saturday afternoon as the Mount Pleasant team failed to put in an appearance. Many of the local fans took in the P. A. C.-Westfield game at Crescent Oval, while several from town went to Somerville. On Saturday afternoon the former local team meets the P. A. C. at Crescent Oval. A large delegation from town will be on hand to see the game.

The case of Lambert against the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company, which was to have been tried in Justice Clark's court Saturday morning, was adjourned until Friday afternoon, September 16, by request of defendant's counsel, Harry C. Runyon. Walter Hetfield, Sr., represents the plaintiff and an interesting legal battle is looked for when the case is tried.

The closing of Galvin's Park midway has meant a considerable dropping off in the number of passengers carried by the trolley on Sundays. During the rush hours, cars when arriving in town, would be so packed on Sundays that many rather than stand on the running board for a pleasure ride would return home.

Rev. G. M. Shott occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church, of Plainfield, yesterday. Rev. Dr. Greaves, of Westfield, occupied Mr. Shott's pulpit. Dr. Greaves, who has retired from active pastoral work, is no stranger to a local congregation and his discourse was enjoyed by a large audience.

AN AUTO FOR $1.45.

H. W. Marshall Gets a $650 Machine at a Lodge Drawing.

H. W. Marshall is the owner of an up-to-date automobile which cost him but $1.45. The machine is an Oldsmobile and is worth $650 if bought from a regular dealer, but Mr. Marshall just invested in one of a lot of tickets sent by Westwood lodge, F. and A. M., of Westwood, N. J., which conducted some drawings at a fair last week. This morning, the past senior warden of Anchor lodge, of the same order here, received a telegram that "B 145" was the lucky number and for him to send it on and take away his spick and span auto.

After the drawing, Mr. Marshall offered to exchange the ticket for one held by W. W. Warnock, but the latter declined, so the laundryman and not the baker will build a shed to store away an automobile.

A World's Wonder.

We often hear of the seven wonders, though in these times there are perhaps one hundred times that number, and perhaps the most popular wonder region in this vicinity is Mauch Chunk. Mauch Chunk is high up in the Pennsylvania mountains, and the several peaks have wide outlooks in every direction. A main attraction is the Switchback Railroad, the road forms an eighteen mile loop over and around the mountains, and is a very novel engineering feat. The first incline extends up Mount Pisgah to a height of 1370 feet above tide water. The car then bowls along a decline for several miles only to reach the base of another mountain which is climbed to a height of 1530 feet above tide water. The descent to the home stretch lies through a beautiful valley, and when the journey is finished the tourist is rather anxious for a renewal of the experience. On September 18, 1904, the New Jersey Central is to run a popular priced excursion to Mauch Chunk, the rate for the round trip to be $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk early in the day, and as the return trip does not leave the Mountain City until 5:40 p. m., there is plenty of time for exploring the charms of Mauch Chunk.

WAS A DAISY INDEED.

METEORIC CAREER OF KENTUCKY GIRL IN OKLAHOMA.

Gained Fame by Leaping from Cowcatcher and Hanging Her Skirt on a Bush, Thus Staking Her Claim.

An advertisement for the sale of a valuable lot by the administrator of the estate of Nannette Svegeburg means to those who are in possession of the facts that it is the closing chapter in the story of the most spectacular woman who has ever called Oklahoma home. She is dead now, and, strange to say, there are no distant relatives fighting over the wealth she left behind. A few there have been who have laid claim to the lands she owned, but when traced to the end their claims have proved false, or, at least, shadowy.

Miss Nannette Daisy, her name before her marriage, was a Kentuckian and a beautiful woman. It is related that prior to going to Oklahoma she was assistant state librarian of Kentucky, but further than this her antecedents are little known. But she was a good "mixer" and a "wire puller" and showed other evidences of having had her share in the politics of the state which claimed her birth.

The Chicago Inter Ocean says that it was on April 22, 1889, that she first came into prominence. Upon that date old Oklahoma, as it is now designated, was first opened for settlement. Miss Daisy contrived to make friends with the engineer of the first train which went into Oklahoma from the south. From a point near the southern border she boarded the train, taking a seat on the cowcatcher of the engine. When the train reached a point a few miles north of where Britton, Okla., and south of Guthrie, Okla., are now located, she gave the preconcerted signal to the engineer, who slowed the train while she leaped to the ground and hung on a convenient bush her petticoat, which she had inscribed with the legend: "This is my claim." Being a woman of considerable breeding and education, she naturally fell in with the better element and numbered among her friends the newspaper men and the politicians of the day. None of them, however, were better "wire pullers" or lobbyists than she, and the first few legislatures bear ample testimony to this fact. She was soon dubbed "Kentucky Daisy," and to the majority of the people of Oklahoma she so remained until, like her namesake, she faded from the life of the territory.

This fading process was a long way off, however. She had a facile pen, and while in Guthrie was correspondent for big dailies in St. Louis, New York, Chicago, Dallas and Cincinnati, and was occupied part of the time in doing local work for Guthrie papers.

A few years later this spunky and beautiful Kentucky girl was again a conspicuous figure in the public eye when she made the run with the thousands of others at the opening of the Sac and Fox reservation. Astride a strong white horse she was well in the lead and stood a good chance to once more win a claim, but the horse suddenly stumbled and she was thrown violently to the ground. It was thought she had been killed and was so telegraphed all over the country, but instead she was merely stunned, and upon regaining her senses laid claim to the ground upon which she had fallen.

This became a part of the town site of Chandler and is the lot which is now being advertised for sale.

Although she had had during her career many tempting offers of marriage, it was her fate to fall in love with a young and handsome Swedish soldier, member of a troop of cavalry maintained in Oklahoma by the government. This young fellow was some ten years her junior, but despite this they were married, and, while he remained in the army, she continued her work in public life. By this time, however, Mrs. Svegeburg, her husband's Christian name, was not so young and fresh as in the first days of Oklahoma, and for this and other reasons the Swedish soldier commenced to view his marriage as anything but tasteful. He was suddenly transferred to Chicago, and, although his wife remained in Oklahoma for a time, her love for her husband was strong, and at length yielding, she followed him there.

Upon her arrival she discovered he had secured a divorce from her and remarried. She never returned to Oklahoma, and was heard of no more until her death, which occurred last autumn. At that time a Chicago attorney went to Oklahoma and told of the pitiful death of the one time well-known woman.

LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM. PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FASHIONS OF TOMORROW.

Advanced Fur Novelties and Handsome Gown Fabrics.

There is one piece of news that has leaked out before its time, as it were, and that is that velvet and velveteen will enjoy a great vogue this winter. This is always good news, for the becomingness of velvet, especially in conjunction with furs, is indisputable, and every woman is aware that she will look her best in a combination of the two.

It is decided, too, that ermine is to take premier rank among the coming furs, yielding pre-eminence only to sable. As a lining for those who can afford it, it will hold its own against every fur in the market.

Velvet and velveteen gowns will be smartest made in directoire and Louis XV. hunting styles, while the princess gown created from costly velours is regal in the extreme.

A good many fashionable tailors are making the real Newmarket coat, which always requires perfect fitting and a tall, well proportioned woman to show it to advantage.

A daring but effective mixture in fall colors is that composed of orange and blue, and some of the blue serge Eton coats have double breasted waistcoats of orange cloth, the otherwise plain serge coat and skirt being braided in black in a narrow twisted scroll design.

The illustration shows an exquisite wrap of plum velours lined with ermine. The long shouldered effect widens out into pagoda sleeves trimmed with oriental embroideries.

LINGERIE NOVELTIES.

The Craze of the Moment Is For This Underwear.

The craze of the moment for lingerie de luxe is shown in beautiful and dainty clear white French lawn worked with patterns of the simplest description. The finest hand stitchery is used in making up the garments. Every woman likes dainty lingerie. A little patience in stitchery and the following of French designs solve the problem of cost at once.

A charming simple nightgown is made of lawn with a square or round lawn or lace collar cut in points. Collars admit of a good deal of variety, for they may be of the same fabric as the nightgown itself, or they may be composed of lace, embroidery or lace and ribbon insertion with cuffs to match. Here many of the sale remnants will prove useful.

For practical everyday wear lingerie of fine French linen, hand embroidered and buttonhole stitched, is excellent.

The manufacturers of shoes have added one article to the list that could be bought and included in a costume of "one color." Only a few seasons ago it was considered ultra fashionable to have slippers for evening wear match the gowns with which they were worn, and colored shoes for street wear were almost unheard of. Now in any high class shoe store one can buy white, champagne color, tan, brown, blue, green, red and violet colored shoes in several shades, the most fashionable tones being in evidence. To be sure, there are some women who have their shoes dyed to order, but as a rule they can be secured in almost any color. Huge silver or gilt eyelets are made in laced shoes, and fancy buttons are quite a feature in the buttoned models.

Herewith illustrated is an attractive shirt waist made with a V shaped yoke outlined with braid.

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

It was not until the gale blew itself out that Hatfield was able to communicate with Admiral Hawke. On the third day after the battle, therefore, the weather at last made it possible for him to call away one of his boats and repair to the flag-ship. Anne went with him, for she had insisted upon going in the first boat that left the frigate. The faithful Jean-Renaud—whose grief for the master he had abandoned (though by that master's order) was not less profound than her own for the husband she feared she had lost—accompanied her. Indeed, the old man would not be parted from her.

SANK TO THE DECK.

Sir Edward Hawke, hearing that there was a woman in the approaching boat, came to the gangway to meet them. The old sailor took off his hat before her and stood with bent head, the wind blowing across his gray hairs as Anne, pale and haggard, but still lovely, followed, and, assisted by Hatfield, clambered up the ladder and stepped upon the deck.

"Sir Edward Hawke," said Hatfield, as he saluted, "allow me to congratulate you on your victory, and then to present you to the Countess de——"

"Pardon, monsieur," said Anne—"Madame Philip Grafton."

"Is it possible!" cried the admiral. "My dear lady——"

"Where is my husband, sir?" interrupted Anne.

"Ah, madame, I know not! Yonder upon Le Four lie the remains of his ship. We have had no speech with them for two days. The boats of the Union, however, are now taking off the men. We will have a report presently. But you, madame, where were you, may I ask?"

"I was on Le Thesee, sir, with my grandfather, the Marquis de Chabot-Rohan."

"My poor child!" exclaimed the admiral.

"They are all gone, sir, are they not? Were any of them saved?" she asked him piteously.

"None! None! How terrible for you!"

"Yes, monsieur, and if I have not my husband, I am indeed lost."

"Pray God he may be saved, madame. And how did you escape?"

"This old man," she said, turning to Jean-Renaud, "seized me in his arms, leaped with me into the sea, and Monsieur Hatfield, my husband's friend, picked us up."

"You have done well, my brave man," said the admiral in French, turning to Jean-Renaud, and reaching out his hand.

"No, Monsieur l'Amiral," said the old Breton, shaking his head, tears falling from his eyes, "my master is gone and I am here. He bade me take mademoiselle. He went down with the ship, and I was not there."

"But you saved the mistress," continued the admiral. "'Twas an heroic deed."

"You will not hold him prisoner, sir?" asked Anne anxiously.

"Madame," said Hawke, "he is as free as the air. He shall be set ashore where and when he wills."

"No, Mademoiselle Anne," returned the old man mournfully, "they are all gone of the old house I serve, but you. I must stay with you while I am here. Where you go, I go. I could not live and not serve the de Rohans. I am your man now until the end."

"Be it so," said Anne, extending her hand to him. "I stay here until—until——"

"Will you not come into my cabin?" asked the admiral kindly, "and wait there? I shall have news presently, and it will be brought to you at once."

"No, sir," answered Anne resolutely, "I would rather stay here. I can at least look at his ship."

"A boat from the Union, sir, coming on board," reported the officer of the watch. "There are some of the officers of the Torbay in her. I recognize them, sir."

"Is one of them—my husband?" cried Anne.

"Your husband, madame?"

"Capt. Grafton," explained Hawke.

"No, madame," answered the young officer, looking at her sadly.

In another moment the first lieutenant of the Torbay stepped up to the admiral and saluted. He was haggard and broken from loss of sleep, exposure, responsibility and anxiety.

"Sir," he said, "I have to report the loss of the ship to the command of which I succeeded on the night of the battle. Capt. Grafton——"

Hawke raised his finger warningly, but before the lieutenant realized the situation Anne grasped him by the arm.

"What of him?" she cried.

The officer looked from one to the other in great bewilderment.

"Speak out now, man," said Hawke impatiently. "The tale must be told now."

"He was washed overboard when we struck Le Four and we have not seen him since, sir."

Without a moan or cry Anne sank to the deck at the feet of the old admiral. Stooping over her slight form he lifted her up himself as easily as if she had been his own child—his daughter. He carried her to his cabin, where he sent the surgeon and the old chaplain to her. They were not able to do much with her. When consciousness came back it brought such agony to her that she longed and hoped for death. The admiral visited her again, told her he had directed inquiries to be made as to whether any of the other ships had picked her husband up, bade her not despair—in short, the grim old warrior was as tender of her as a father, as gentle to her as a woman.

As the morning wore on communication was had with Le Formidable, and from her news of Grafton's safety secured. Hawke himself carried the news to the devoted woman, who revived so much on receipt of the tidings that she insisted upon going aboard the captured ship at once. By the admiral's direction his own barge, which had been uninjured in the battle, was called away and placed at her disposal. Hatfield accompanied her.

"Tell him from me," said Hawke, as he bade her good-bye at the gangway, "that he did magnificently. I marked his course. I saw his fighting. England shall hear of it. Tell him, too, not to worry over the loss of his ship. It was a thing that might have happened to any one. I am thankful we got off so easily." He stopped and looked gravely yet kindly at her, laying his hand on her head—she seemed to remind him of his own daughter. "Tell him, also, that the best share of the victory and the greatest prize has fallen to him since he has you. They tell me he is desperately wounded and unconscious, but you will revive him and bring him to life if anything can. Don't give way. He needs you now. I don't wonder he fought as he did! 'Twas not for England only, but for his wife as well—and such a wife! You must bring him back to the Royal George when you can, and come back yourself if you stay with him——"

"I shall never leave him again, monsieur," she murmured. "Whom have I now but him? I thank you; you have been good to me. I shall not forget it."

She seized his hand, and before he could withdraw it, much to his embarrassment she carried it to her lips and was gone.

CHAPTER XXXII.

FROM DEATH UNTO LIFE.

SINCE early morning the surgeons from the English ships had been working with the wounded on Le Formidable, and details of seamen had been working over the ship herself as well, so that, while she was still a picture of ruin and devastation, she was in a very much better condition than she had been. Most of the severely wounded had died in the interim, and their bodies had been cast overboard with as much reverence as the demands of the living and their pressing necessities admitted, which was not much. Those who yet remained alive were fast becoming amenable to the treatment, but the ship itself was a sufficiently ghastly place, in spite of all that had been done for her and for her crew, to have appalled the stoutest heart.

Philip's wife, however, saw nothing of this. There was nothing before her heart but her husband and his welfare. She knew nothing, saw nothing, thought of nothing but him. She had long since passed beyond the normal capacity of humanity to experience suffering—save in so far as he was concerned. Nothing else made any appeal to her deadened sensibilities. She had still strength to get to his side: after that——

She sat in the boat, as it made its way toward Le Formidable, with her eyes closed, her lips murmuring prayers. And though her eyes were opened on the ship, it made little difference to her. She stood on the wreck as one blind. Hatfield helped her tenderly over the side, and with a word of explanation to the prize-master took her immediately below to the great cabin.

They had given Grafton the room that had belonged to the brave Admiral du Verger, now peacefully sleeping beneath the waves on the scene of his heroic defence.

As they approached the door Anne could hear her husband's voice. He was alive, then, thank God! Hatfield pushed open the door and she entered. At the head of the berth on a low stool sat a grim old sailor, his face buried in his hands. He lifted his head as they entered, rose to his feet, and stared at her.

"IS IT THOU?"

"Who be you, ma'm?" he asked.

"I am his wife," she answered, pushing past him toward the berth.

There was her husband. He was white, haggard, and broken. He looked utterly exhausted—dying. The fever which had possessed him had reduced him to the last extremity. His eyes were closed; he was muttering to himself. She bent her head to listen. How the scene in the old house in Quebec came back to her as she saw him lying helpless before her thus again!

"My ship!" he murmured. "My ship! She strikes! Ha! She's going down! Le Thesee! My God, my wife—my wife—have mercy on me! My ship—my wife—pity, O God, my wife—my wife——"

"He's been sayin' them words for three days. 'Tis his wife an' the ship all the time," whispered the old sailor to Hatfield.

Anne stared at Grafton in strained silence. He did not know her. Would he ever do so? She thought, if he did not recover consciousness, if he did not cease that unwearying murmur of ship and wife, she would die there before him. She was petrified, appalled, shocked by the cumulative events of the week—tried beyond endurance. She stared longer, growing whiter as she did. Was she dying, too? Well, what mattered it? They would go together. Hatfield saw her sway, and not with the motion of the ship. He sprang to her side and caught her by the shoulder. Old Slocum took her by the hands.

"Ma'am," he said in his rude way, tears filling his eyes, "I knowed him w'en he was a babby. I sailed with his father. Pull yourself together an' speak to him. If you don't call him back again he's gone. The doctor says he can't do nuthin' more fer him. Speak to him, fer God's sake, ma'am!"

Anne roused herself with a last desperate effort—summoned the vestiges of her resolution once more, and, as she thought, for the last time—stepped nearer to Grafton, laid her hand upon his brow, and bent her lips low toward him.

"Philip!" she whispered. "Philip, O Philip! My husband!"

He heard the unfamiliar sound. His babbling ceased. He opened his eyes and lay strangely still, looking at her.

"Little France," he whispered, "is it thou?"

"I, indeed, Philip!" cried the girl.

"My wife!" he murmured.

"Yes, yes, now and forever! O Philip, Philip, I called to God out of the deep and He heard me! We will never be parted."

"You have called me back to life," he murmured.

She laid her head upon his breast, as she had done many times before in Canada. He closed his eyes. Had he fainted? But, no, she felt the pressure of his hand. He would recover now. It needed no other skill than that supplied by her loving heart to assure her of that. He had grown strangely calm in her presence. Her own strength came back to her before his weakness. She seemed to lift him up to life and love again. The silence in the cabin was broken only by the sound of the waves rushing along the side, the creaking and groaning of the timbers from the uneasy pitching of the ship.

Hatfield beckoned old Slocum, and the two men slipped noiselessly out.

"I guess he don't want me no more, sir," said the old sailor, sadly, as he stepped out of the cabin, "an' I took keer on him w'en he was a babby."

"And I lost my ship, darling," whispered Philip at last, all the sorrow of a sailor and a captain in his voice.

"Yes, but the admiral said you had done nobly and you were not to mind. He would see."

"Ah, he is a kindly man!"

"He was kind to me, too. And I am grateful."

"And I, too."

IS AN ACCOMPLISHED LADY

Mrs. Metcalf, Wife of New Secretary of Commerce, a Favorite of Capital Society.

Washington (D. C.) Special.

When President Roosevelt's cabinet follow him downstairs next New Year's day and take their places in the receiving line in the blue room, the handsomest and most distinguished looking couple will be found at the end of the procession in the persons of the new secretary of commerce and labor and his wife. The secretary, who is just 50 years old, looks less, notwithstanding the touch of gray in his hair and mustache. He has a clear, healthy skin, and somewhat penetrating blue-gray eyes, and he carries himself well. So also does Mrs. Metcalf, who has a fine presence and dresses in good taste.

They are well known in Washington's official society, Mr. Metcalf having represented his district in congress for three terms, which means six Washington seasons for Mrs. Metcalf, who always makes the long journey across the continent with him, whether the session be long or short. "Indeed," says the secretary, gallantly, "I would not come without her."

When the president, however, invited him to Washington to take the place in his cabinet about to be vacated by Mr. Cortelyou, there was but short notice, in view of the many steps that must be taken in closing up one's home and one's affairs generally. Mrs. Metcalf, therefore, remained at her home in Oakland and will join the secretary in the early fall. They will live at the Arlington hotel, where they have been accustomed to spending their winters. Mrs. Metcalf is one of the most popular of the many women in public life who figure in the weekly receptions here.

As a cabinet hostess it is easy to predict success for her. She is fond of society, and enjoys perfect health, which prevents its duties from becoming a burden. When one knows that she will have to make in the neighborhood of 100 "first calls" each season to say nothing of those she will be expected to return, one begins to realize vaguely what the social duties of a cabinet woman mean.

Mrs. Metcalf, who was Miss Corinne Nicholson, is a native of California, her father having gone there from Alexandria, Va. She was one of the belles of the state when she met the young New York lawyer, who had gone to the Pacific coast to make a name for himself. She could ride horseback, swim and do well many things that made her exceptionally attractive. She was married to the young lawyer shortly after he closed his Utica office and made California permanently his home.

The Metcalfs have two sons, Victor N., who is a midshipman at Annapolis, and W. Howard, who has recently begun his business career in California.

GOVERNMENT IS PLEASED.

Colombia Resumes Diplomatic Relations and Appoints Dr. Thomas Herran Minister.

Washington (D. C.) Special.

It was feared by some of the attaches of the department of state that the action taken by the American government at the time the republic of Panama seceded from Colombia would lead to lasting diplomatic differences between the latter country and the United States. For this reason the recent resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and the republic of Colombia by the appointment of Dr. Thomas Herran as Colombian minister at Washington gives general satisfaction in administration circles. Dr. Herran acted as charge d'affaires of his legation after the withdrawal of Minister Concha. He negotiated with Secretary Hay the Hay-Herran Panama canal treaty which was rejected by the Colombian government, which act resulted in the formation of the republic of Panama.

WALK WITH A BEAR

A NATURALIST DESCRIBES THE ANTICS OF A CUB.

He Was an Adept at Climbing Trees, Walking Stone Walls and Rail Fences—His Encounter with a Cow.

When I called him "Johnny," I had forgotten for the moment that already there was a celebrated bear cub of that name, well-known to all readers of Mr. Seton's "Lives of the Hunted," and as soon as I recalled this fact my hopeful was rechristened "Jimmy." At first he seemed to resent the change of name, and when I called "Jimmy," in a tone of authority, the cub would saunter off with a sort of "hands-in-his-pockets" air and a rather tough sideleng look, which seemed to say: "Who are you talking to, anyhow? My name ain't Jimmy." But he got used to it in the course of a few days, and now he answers to the new name as often as he did to the old one, which is about once in ten times.

Yesterday, Jimmy and I went out for a walk, and before we returned we had some rather exciting experiences. But before he would take one step out of the garden the cub insisted on having his breakfast, which, as usual, consisted of a large pan of crackers and milk. He was hungry after his all-night's fast, and he rushed at the pan like a—well, like a hungry bear. His nose went down and touched the food, but with a disgusted look he raised his head without taking a mouthful. He walked up the steps to the piazza, and, as the door was locked, he began to weave back and forth as bears and other wild animals will do when caged. Wondering why he refused his food, I made inquiries, thinking that perhaps the milk was a little sour. It was perfectly fresh, but I found that it was last night's milk, while Jimmy usually had that which was fresh from the cow. We made a change, and gave him the morning's milk, and with a hungry growl he fairly wallowed in it. After licking the pan clean, he was given a bowl of water, in which he washed his face with his fore paws, and then he was ready.

Along the country road we went, Jimmy galloping along, now in front, now behind, and making frequent excursions into the woods on either hand to satisfy his curiosity or to pick wild raspberries, of which he is very fond. When he came to a raspberry bush, he would first eat those which hung near the ground, and then, standing on his hind legs, he would pull the tall branches down to him with his fore paws. The amount of energy he displayed was remarkable; he never seemed to know what it was to be tired even after the most violent exertion. After galloping perhaps a hundred yards to catch up to me, he would make a playful run at me, biting at my legs and giving me a vigorous hug and shake with his fore paws, breaking away only to dash up a tree to a point perhaps 50 feet from the ground, without so much as a twig to aid him in his ascent. Here he would probably chew the green leaves a moment, and then, turning round, he would come sliding down, tail first, at once breaking into a gallop to make up for the ground he had lost. He would march boldly along the tops of the stone walls, walk slowly and cautiously on wobbly rail fences, and rush up the trunks of trees when there was nothing more exciting on hand. Sometimes he would remain up a tree so long that I got far ahead of him on the road, or sometimes I would hide in the long grass and call him to see what he would do. Apparently he never followed my trail by scent, as a dog would have done, but relied on his ears and eyes.

By and by, we struck into the fields, and had not gone far when we encountered a cow with her last-year's calf. She was interested in Jimmy at once, and started after him at a very business-like pace. But Jimmy was attending to business, too, and before the cow was near enough to be dangerous, the little bear was looking at her from a safe position in the crotch of a wild-cherry tree. The cow was a sensible creature, and did not make any useless threats, but kept her gaze on the impudent cub, who stared at her with a devil-may-care expression on his naughty little face. Presently, he seemed possessed of a desire to find out what she would do if he faced her, so he slid down the trunk, and went boldly to meet her as she advanced with lowered head. Just as she neared him, Jimmy stood bolt upright on his little hind legs, and, "squaring off" like a prize-fighter, swung for the jaw with "left" and "right" in rapid succession, and landed twice. It was plainly a surprise for the cow, for she stepped back in a hurry, and before she could recover, Jimmy, with that peculiar sneering look of his, turned and bolted up the tree again. I drove the cow away, and we continued our walk.

POLICE DEPARTMENT NEWS

Blue Monday in the city police court brought an assortment of four cases before Judge Runyon this morning. Charles Leonard was charged with disorderly conduct, having stolen a bottle of whiskey from the home of John Wilson, of South Second street, according to the story told by the latter. He has quite a record in the local court records and the judge granted him a forty-day vacation, to be spent at the Hotel Elizabeth.

Michael J. Coyne, a tailor, was up on the charge of drunkenness. He was arrested by Patrolman Charles Flynn and received a twenty-day sentence.

William Boe, a mason, of Dunellen, formerly a respected and hard-working man, was scored by the judge who reminded him of his desertion of his wife and the sort of low company he was in the habit of keeping since that time. He was sentenced to fifty days with a $50 fine tacked on for good measure.

Mary Walker, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct made by her mother who is old and blind, had a pitiful story of injustice to tell but unfortunately for her, the judge remembered one of her former escapades and cut her narrative short by remarking "forty days." Mary subsided.

LOCALS DEFEATED.

Clinton Avenue Team Outclassed by Players From Stephenson Car Works.

The baseball game played between Clinton Avenue and the J. Stephenson Car Works' team, of Elizabeth, on the local grounds, Saturday, for $10 a side, resulted in a defeat for the locals by a score of 9 to 2. The visitors simply outclassed the Clinton avenue boys. Neither VanArsdale, Scott or Squires who pitched for the home team were able to stop the heavy hitting of their opponents and they got a total of eleven singles. The home team also put up a poor fielding game. The score by innings:

NEED OF ELEVATOR AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

FRIEND OF INSTITUTION MAKES AN APPEAL TO A GENEROUS PUBLIC.

The following communication from a local man was received today:

Editor, The Daily Press:

Visiting Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday I was struck with a very serious want in the equipment there. The ambulance arrived with a new patient, an elderly gentleman, rather heavy, and apparently very ill and helpless. Four or five men lifted him and the large chair in which he sat and brought him into the hospital; and then, with still greater difficulty, they had to carry chair and patient up stairs to the private rooms above. All private patients received at the hospital have to be so handled, and all private patients going to and from their rooms to the operating room are subject to the risk and discomfort of that trip on the stairs.

An officer of the hospital tells me there is an elevator shaft through which patients might be carried, bed and all, and landed at any floor, but that there is no money to pay for an elevator. Surely in some way the funds ought to be found to supply the elevator and do away with the clumsy and dangerous method now in use.

Some parties, no doubt, have an idea that when we give Stamps, Checks or Special Presents the cost of same is placed on the goods. It is not so with us. The

of that idea will be entirely WIPED OUT if you examine the QUALITY of our GOODS and PRICES and compare them with those of any other reputable house. The foregoing is our system of advertising, and by it our customers participate in the profits. If we advertised differently our patrons would receive no benefits in Stamps, Checks or Special Presents—the expense of same would go into other channels, etc. CAN YOU SEE THE POINT?

Having almost 250 stores, situated in all parts of the United States, with wagons traversing every city, town, village and hamlet, you can form some idea of the volume of business we do, upon which a very small margin of profit amply repays us. We are satisfied that no house can buy as CHEAP or sell as CHEAP as The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

HE URGES IMPROVEMENTS

Wm. H. Riley Makes Some Sensible Suggestions.

THE CITY BEAUTIFIED

Chance for Landscape Gardening Along the Banks of the Brook and Other Places.

William H. Riley, of North Plainfield, favors The Daily Press with the following interesting communication:

Editor, The Daily Press:

In minor things one of the obvious evidences of the advance of civilization is shown in increased sensitiveness as to the rights of the eyes and the nose and the ears. Disagreeable smells which our ancestors had to endure, we now suppress. In public places men and women need not listen to gross profanity and indecency; the policeman will look after the offender. And the man who plays the cornet at 12 o'clock at night, in the room below, may be effectively admonished. Even the eyes have, to some extent, been protected, and objects in public places which are unsightly enough, may come under the ban of the law.

Looking, this morning, from my window, at the triangular plot of ground near by, where a man was raking up the weeds and grass that had been recently mowed, I felt, personally, grateful to him and his employer for the improvement. But with this feeling came the question, Why can't we get beyond this negative stage? We ought to suppress the ugliness, but may we not put beauty in its place?

That Plainfield has lots of energy and taste, no one need doubt who drives past the many beautiful places to be seen in its residential portions. Yet the effect of these beautiful places is partially lost through want of a suitable setting. If the town could be so fortunate as to secure the co-operation of even a few of its citizens who, for a small portion of their time, would make it their business to get rid of the unsightly things, and who would promote and encourage all that tended to make the city attractive, there is no doubt that much could be accomplished. As an illustration, take the brook that runs between the city and the borough of North Plainfield. One need not be a landscape gardener to recognize its very great decorative value; yet its banks have been used, to a considerable extent, as a dumping ground for ashes and rubbish. As to the disfiguring objects that encumber its bed, they range from the disabled wheel of a bicycle to a boy's torn cap. Such a state of things is almost an indictment of us all. It ought not to continue. Any one who will stand on the Giraud avenue bridge and look up or down the stream, will realize its great natural attractions. Why not make the most of them? That the banks are private property, would not, I think, prove a serious obstacle.

There is, I believe, a movement looking to the creation of a public park. That would be a good thing, but would cost a considerable sum. The object of this communication is to suggest improvements that would be comparatively inexpensive, and that would be undertaken, at any rate at the beginning at private cost. A modest Town Improvement Committee, backed by public good will, could do much to make Plainfield an even pleasanter place to live in than it is now.

The trustees of the Public Library have recently furnished us an admirable improvement in the renovation of the outside of their building and of its grounds. "Reform" Hall needs similar treatment.

William H. Riley.

ELIZABETH ANXIOUS TO PLAY PLAINFIELD

MANAGER BURKE DISCOUNTS COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP HONORS.

Manager Burke, of the Elizabeth Stars, is apparently incensed at his failure to schedule a series of games with Manager George Johnston, of the Plainfield A. C. According to last night's Elizabeth Journal the manager of the Stars is hurt by what he terms a shabby treatment at the hands of the Plainfield manager. He claims that three months ago the local team was claiming the championship of the county and that a series of contests was desired between Plainfield and Elizabeth.

In response to a letter, Manager Burke said that as soon as "Warry" MacLaughlin finished pitching at New London, he would be ready to take Plainfield on for a series, in fact any club in the county for the championship. He now claims to have written Manager Johnston on several occasions, but has received no answer. He attended the Plainfield-Westfield game here on Saturday and after the contest he spoke to Manager Johnston about the series. The Plainfield manager told him that he did not see how he could play him a series this month.

He then explained that as a result of Saturday's contest, he was obliged to meet Westfield at home on September 24, and that he had a date with Somerville on Crescent Oval for this Saturday. He deplored the position in which he was placed, but added that if his team had lost on Saturday it would have been possible for him to have given Elizabeth September 24. He does not consider that it would be honorable to throw down Somerville and Westfield to take on a new series with Elizabeth.

The Elizabeth Journal also says: "If defeating Westfield is any championship honor the Elizabeth fans fail to see it, as the Aeolians have put it all over Westfield, and the Stars will have to be taken into consideration before there are any bouquets thrown or pennants awarded. The Stars have met and defeated some of the strongest teams outside of the big leagues, and only suffered defeat when the visiting team was well-padded with National and American League men, and it is safe to say that neither Plainfield nor Westefild can defeat them without the aid of Leaguers. The team has been strengthened for the fall series.

"Manager Burke says that he will have no more to do with this so-called county championship honor. If Johnston wants to come to time the Stars are willing to give them September 24 and October 8 on Crescent Oval, the third game to be played at Elizabethport October 23. If the Plainfield club takes up the guage, Manager Burke will send a team to Plainfield that will put up a good fight for championship honors, without playing a dozen games."

TO ASSUME DUTIES.

Eric Moraller to Commence As Physical Instructor at De Pauw University This Fall.

Eric Moraller, who recently accepted a position as physical instructor at De Pauw University, Indiana, leaves tomorrow to assume his new duties. While engaged in the work as physical instructor, Mr. Moraller will pursue a special course of studies in the college curriculum. He concluded a three years' course at the Eastern Y. M. C. A. Training School at Springfield, Mass., this June and has also studied at the Y. M. C. A. in this city.

Month's Outing Down East.

Councilman and Mrs. William Starr Bullock are home from a month's outing in New England. During the trip they visited Boston, Provincetown, Amesbury and Fitchburg, Mass., Portsmouth, N. H., and Kittery, Maine. A part of the time was spent at both North and South shore beaches, including Nahant, Nantasket, Salisbury, Hampton, Rye and York Beach. Lake Winnipesaukee, N. H., and Lake Attitash, Mass., were also included in the trip. Councilman Bullock is a native of Massachusetts, and traveled extensively through New England for several years before making Plainfield his home. During the trip just completed he renewed many old-time friendships.

PRIMARY POLLS ARE OPEN

Little Interest Being Taken Especially Among Democrats.

THE POLLING PLACES

Candidates for Local Offices in the Various Wards of the City.

According to the provisions of the new law, the two political parties, Republican and Democrat, are holding their primaries this afternoon, the hours being from 1 o'clock until 9 o'clock. The business session will be held in each polling place at 8 o'clock this evening, but the voting will continue during the hours stated.

These places for registration and election have been chosen:

West Seventh street. Fourth ward—First district, No. 204 West Second street; Second district, corner Spooner avenue and South Second street; third district, No. 836 South Second street.

The Republican city convention will be held Thursday, September 29, and there is every prospect that former President of Common Council James F. Buckle, of the First ward, will be nominated for mayor. He has no opposition as yet and it is probable that he will be named unanimously. Fred W. Yates, of the Second ward, is talked of as the likely candidate of the Democrats. Former Councilman V. L. Frazee, of the First ward, is also mentioned for the honor.

The Republican party is the only one here to nominate a full ticket, the Democrats making a Councilmanic nomination in the Fourth ward only. The Republican nominees are:

First ward—City council, R. I. Tolles; constable, Peter V. Weaver; justice of the peace, U. B. Crane. Second ward—City council, Henry D. Hibbard; justice of the peace, Joseph E. Mosher; constable, John Manley. Third ward—City council, William S. Tyler; justice of the peace, John Neagle; constable, Amos Moffett. Fourth ward—City council, Frank D. "LARRY" WALLACE ON THE WAR PATH AGAIN

THIS TIME HE FINDS A BOROUGH POLICEMAN A BETTER FIGHTER.

Larry Wallace, whose reputation as a trouble-hunter and mean man in rough-and-tumble fighting, is well established in this vicinity, stacked up against the borough police force last night and came off second best, with a beautifully split scalp to show for his little fun. Wallace became boisterous while in Blatz's hotel on Somerset street and refused to either leave or quiet down.

Patrolman Smalley was called upon to eject him and Wallace tackled the officer, resorting to a cowardly trick blow. The policeman was wary however, and instead of closing with his man dealt him some well-merited punishment with the night-stick. Before he was subdued Wallace sustained a good-sized scalp wound which was dressed at the lock-up by Borough Physician Dundon.

ANOTHER BI-MUNICIPAL BALL GAME TOMORROW

MAYOR SMALLEY ANXIOUS TO DEFEAT MAC MURRAY'S AGGREGATION.

Arrangements are completed for the second bi-municipal ball game to be played on Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the band concerts. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray will have charge of the city team and Mayor Newton B. Smalley will direct the movements of the borough players. The lineups are being kept secret, owing to a rumor that efforts are being made to trade off players. The contest will be called at 3 o'clock and generous patronage is asked for so that the concerts may be continued.

The first contest between these teams resulted in a victory for Plainfield by a score of 5 to 1, and the borough boys will do their utmost to reverse this score. It is even hinted that Mayor Smalley may have George Dupee in the box for his team. City Clerk MacMurray, it is said, has fixed things so that his team is looked upon as a sure winner. It is possible that he may take part in the game. He was at one time one of the best players in the city and he still knows the game.

Socialists' Convention.

The Socialistic County Committee met Friday night at Elizabeth and decided to hold their convention this evening. Later in the week a campaign banner bearing the portraits of Eugene B. Debbs, of Indiana, and Benjamin Hanford, of New York, Socialistic nominees for President and Vice President, will be raised in front of their headquarters on Broad street, near the Central Railroad, in Elizabeth. This will place it dangerously near the Republican standard.

Jury Failed to Agree.

The failure of the jury to agree on verdict in the landlord and tenant case of John H. McVey against Mrs. May Dunn, for alleged non-payment of rent for apartments on North avenue, has resulted in Justice Hezekiah Hand, before whom the case was tried yesterday afternoon, dismissing the case. William G. DeMeza, Esq., represented Mrs. Dunn.

—Two hundred baskets of first-class preserving peaches, fellow and white fruit, will be placed on sale at Newman Brothers' tomorrow morning. Prices right and quality unexcelled for canning.

SCHOOL DAYS HERE AGAIN

First Sessions in the City and the Borough Today.

FORMAL EXERCISES

Dr. Maxson, Dr. Probasco and Mr. Travell Speak at City High School.

Activities were resumed in the Plainfield High School at 9 o'clock this morning. Principal Ira W. Travell opened the session with Scripture reading and prayer. Following this were addresses of welcome by Principal Travell, Superintendent Maxson and Dr. Probasco, president of the Board of Education. Dr. Probasco spoke of the steady progress of the new high school and of the hope that the next commencement would be held in the new building.

A decided change in the order of sessions is necessitated this year by the addition of new subjects and increased attendance. Two sessions will be held but only the preparatory class and freshman will be in attendance in the afternoon.

Dr. H. M. Maxson.

The faculty has undergone a few changes since the close of school in June. Three new teachers have been installed—Miss Ariadne Gilbert, Miss M. E. Ferry and Samuel Howe, Jr.

The pleasure of the opening exercises was largely increased by the large assemblage of old graduates who came back to see their good work carried on by those who still remain.

At all the schools in the city, there was unusually large attendance but none is considered overcrowded, although special arrangements will have to be made in some cases to arrange for classes of more uniform size. In some cases transfers may become necessary.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, announced this morning that he was unprepared to give any figures as yet regarding numbers of the pupils entering.

"Throughout the city the enrollment will be large," he said, "certainly the largest yet, but I feel certain that we can accommodate all the pupils. In all the schools, parents have been making application for entering their children during the entire morning."

Superintendent Wightman, of the borough schools, said this morning that the most pronounced indications of overcrowding would probably disappear when the numerous and invitable mistakes as to the building and class-room in which the pupils belong have been corrected. At the same time some teachers will be compelled to hold sessions for one portion of the pupils in the morning and the other in the afternoon. In the kindergarten the increase is naturally the greatest, reaching nearly 100 per cent. There are now in this department about sixty-five children in each building, the division being about equal. The total number of pupils is greater than in any previous year.

East Seventh Street Improvements.

After numerous petty delays for the past few weeks, the most serious of which was the encountering of large springs near Woodland avenue, Foreman Murtaugh, who is in charge of the laying of the sewer along East Seventh street, announced Saturday that he could finish up the work the early part of this week. As soon as the work is completed, Contractor C. M. Meeker will commence macadamizing the street from Richmond street to Belvidere avenue.

Sanitary Engineers' to Meet.

There will be an open meeting of Safety Association, No. 12, National Association of Sanitary Engineers, at the rooms of the association, 220-221 Babcock building, Friday night, at which time the Shelby Lamp Company will give a photometer test and demonstration of its incandescent lamp and a comparative test of any other lamps presented.

FIFE AND DRUM CORPS ENTERTAINED AT ELIZABETH

PLAINFIELDERS AS THE GUESTS OF THE IMPERIAL CORPS.

On invitation from Imperial Fife and Drum Corps, of Elizabeth, who on several occasions have been the guests of the local organization, Independent Fife and Drum Corps, of this city, went to Elizabeth last night and partook of a bountiful dinner served in Columbia Hall, on Elizabeth avenue.

Nearly the full uniformed strength of the corps turned out, the guests assembling at the corps rooms on West Second street together with the men in uniform. Major Frank Manchester got his men under arms, that is under drums and fifes and the boys marched to the North Avenue depot where they drew up under the platform shed and made the whole place ring with their spirited music.

The rain interfered slightly with the rise of the local turn-out, seventeen men going on the 8:36 train, when it was expected that thirty would be on hand. Arriving in Elizabeth, they were met by the Imperial boys, who are well known in Plainfield under their former name of Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, and escorted to the banquet room.

Full justice was done the viands and afterward, with Major Sheppard, of the Imperials, in the chair and Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth, as the guest of the evening, toasts, stories and jests were kept going round until an early hour this morning.

Among the guests of the Elizabeth corps were a number of Railway firemen.

CORONER'S INQUEST OVER YOUNG WM. MUIR

DEATH DUE TO FRACTURE OF FOURTH VERTEBRA.

William Muir, whose death occurred yesterday morning at Muhlenberg Hospital, following an accident on Saturday when his spinal column was broken, was removed to the parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, yesterday, where Dr. F. W. Westcott, the county physician, viewed the body, according to his official duties. He pronounced death due to the fracture of the fourth vertebra. Arrangements have been made to hold the funeral services Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from Hope chapel.

Mrs. Andrew Muir, who, with her son, Thomas Muir, has been travelling in the West, was reached yesterday about noon in Iowa, where she intended visiting for several weeks. The telegram sent out by her son, Alex. Muir, was awaiting her when she reached her destination, and informed her of the accident. A telegram was received here about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Thomas Muir, stating that he and his mother would leave at once for home. They are expected to reach here some time tomorrow afternoon.

LEAL SCHOOL OPEN.

Indications of a Prosperous Year at School for Boys.

John Leal's school for boys was reopened this morning for the fall and winter term and the enrollment was up to the usual number, many new pupils being received for the fall course. Mr. Leal and his corps of teachers were all on hand and the actual work was begun after the usual classification. Mr. Leal has had some improvements made in his school during the vacation season, including the removal of the front fence, making the property correspond with those adjoining. The prospects are good for a successful term at this school.

Fanwood Bridge Planned.

Civil Engineer Frank J. Hubbard is preparing plans for a bridge over Green brook at Mountain avenue, Fanwood. The bridge is to be of iron work throughout, with a forty-foot span. It will be constructed with a brick arch and macadam roadway and will much resemble the Giraud avenue bridge recently opened. Bids for construction will be received Tuesday, September 20.

Reception to Bride and Groom.

Carrying a large couch, about forty friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Baker, who were married last week, marched in on the bride and groom at their Somerset street home last night. Mr. and Mrs. Baker had returned within a day or two from Falmouth, Mass.

TEACHERS' UNION MEETS

Celebration of Anniversary of Sunday-School Workers.

MISS YABA SINGS

Native of Burmah Interests the Audience—Miss Beeching Presides.

The ninth anniversary of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union was pleasantly observed yesterday afternoon in the small hall at the Y. M. C. A. building. There was a large attendance of members and friends. Miss Nettie J. Beeching, president of the union, was in charge of the programme, which opened with a temperance song by the Misses Edith and Elsie Carlson, of Westfield, followed with a song and recitation by Miss Eva Wells, accompanied by the Misses Carlson on the mandolin and guitar.

A feature of the programme was a song by Miss Yaba, a native of Burmah, who has been visiting here for some days. She also repeated the Twenty-third Psalm in her native tongue and gave a short talk on her plans of work.

The programme continued with a recitation by Miss Jessica Hill, a mandolin and guitar duett by the Misses Carlson, followed with remarks and greetings by Miss Beeching, in which she congratulated the members on their excellent work during the past nine years. She referred with considerable pride to the progress made and the interest aroused in Sunday-school work by the union.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in a social way. A novel feature was a surprise birthday cake, hidden in a large watermelon, presented by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins. The members expected to enjoy a feast of watermelon, but upon opening it, they discovered a delicious cake instead. Ice cream was served with the cake by a committee from the union.

Arrested for Drunkenness.

"Ten dollars apiece" was the verdict given by Recorder Doud in the borough court last night to a quartette of drunks held over since Saturday night. Andrew Love, Jr., George Rockafellow, James G. Beekman and Frank Hale were the offenders. Each of the prisoners paid the fee and departed. While in jail Rockafellow became despondent and threatened to commit suicide, so Acting-chief Pope took his suspenders and cravat from him and told him to tear up his shirt if he really wanted a rope. Benjamin, James and Thomas Coddington, sons of James Coddington, of Harmony street, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, made by a neighbor, were treated to a suspension of sentence.

Streets in Condition Again.

The damage done to the roadbeds of streets in the East End by the heavy rains of last month is now being repaired by the city street gang and Street Commissioner Gavett announced Saturday that the work of filling in gulleys, resurfacing and rolling is nearly completed. The work has been carried on on North avenue, east of Berkman street, on Putnam avenue, on Woodland avenue and sections of Rahway road. There has also been work done on the streets through Netherwood, in the rear of the Netherwood Hotel.

Minister Bowen Home.

Herbert Bowen, the American Minister to Venezuela, and brother of H. B. Bowen, of this city, arrived at New York yesterday on the steamship Caracas from Venezuela. Mr. Bowen said he was home on leave of absence and needed rest, as the climate of Venezuela had been particularly trying to his health this summer.

Driving Park Not Leased.

Officers of the Plainfield A. C. deny that there is any movement on foot to lease the Plainfield Driving Park for next season, where Sunday ball games will be played. They say that a lease has been negotiated for Crescent Oval for two years with the privilege of a longer lease and there is no desire to change the location, especially as it is not known when the trolley will be extended to Metuchen Plainfielders in Wreck.

The list of casualties in the train wreck on the Southern Pacific Railroad, near Reno, Nevada, does not include the names of any of the twelve or fifteen Plainfielders who were known to be on the train. From this it is inferred that they were on one of the coaches which escaped damage altogether.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. B. Vanderhoef, of Prospect place, are home from Ocean Grove, where they spent their vacation.

A World's Wonder.

We often hear of the seven wonders, though in these times there are perhaps one hundred times that number, and perhaps the most popular wonder region in this vicinity is Mauch Chunk. Mauch Chunk is high up in the Pennsylvania mountains, and the several peaks have wide outlooks in every direction. A main attraction is the Switchback Railroad, the road forms an eighteen mile loop over and around the mountains, and is a very novel engineering feat. The first incline extends up Mount Pisgah to a height of 1370 feet above tide water. The car then bowls along a decline for several miles only to reach the base of another mountain which is climbed to a height of 1530 feet above tide water. The descent to the home stretch lies through a beautiful valley, and when the journey is finished the tourist is rather anxious for a renewal of the experience. On September 18, 1904, the New Jersey Central is to run a popular priced excursion to Mauch Chunk, the rate for the round trip to be $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk early in the day, and as the return trip does not leave the Mountain City until 5:40 p. m., there is plenty of time for exploring the charms of Mauch Chunk.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find It So.

The hustle and worry of business men.
The hard work and stooping of workmen.
The woman's household cares.
Are too great a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, sideache.
Kidney troubles follow.
A Plainfield citizen tells you now to cure them all.

C. H. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache as bad in damp weather or when I caught a cold, that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the trouble. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

AMUSEMENTS.

Julia Mooney, the "Piff, Paff, Pouf" chorus girl who for the past two weeks has been enjoying the sights and sensations of the St. Louis World's Fair at the expense of Messrs. Whitney and Shubert, returned to New York Saturday and on Monday resumed her place in the chorus on the Casino. A letter from Edward Hooker, of the Press Bureau of the World's Fair, to F. C. Whitney, says: "Your Miss Mooney has attracted more attension than any lady who has visited the World's Fair, with perhaps the single exception of Miss Alice Roosevelt. She has conducted herself in a beautiful manner, and made friends of us all."

Each week the patronage at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre shows a steady increase, due not alone to the inviting appearance of the reconstructed auditorium, but to the greatly increased importance of the class of attractions playing this theatre. In place of the lurid melodramas which all too frequently find booking on the combination circuits, there will be offered at the Fifty-eighth Street Theatre in quick succession the leading Broadway stars and attractions. Next week the attraction will be the veteran actor, J. H. Stoddart, and a strong supporting company, including several members of the original cast, in "The Bonnie Briar Bush." Following that comes Harry Kellar, the last of the great magicians, and he in turn gives way to "Ninety and Nine," which enjoyed a record run at the Academy of Music. "Checkers," the big melodramatic production now running at the Academy, will be moved to the Fifty-eighth Street house.

—Members of the Plainfield A. C. gathered at the clubhouse Saturday night after the game, and enjoyed a chicken dinner.

—The case in tort of Mrs. Pauline Nast against Mrs. Ada M. Phillips was amicably settled at Justice Hand's court yesterday before trial.

—Work was commenced yesterday laying a gas main in Codington avenue, after which connections will be made to the several houses on the avenue.

—The New Jersey Rural Letter Carriers' Association was organized at New Brunswick on Tuesday at a meeting held in the postoffice building. There were a score of delegates from various New Jersey towns present from Middlesex, Salem, Cumberland, Somerset and Essex counties. Warren, Monmouth and Mercer counties were represented by proxy. The organizers adopted a constitution setting forth the purpose of the association to be the studying and adoption of the best methods of performing the duties of the rural carrier, to strive to increase the revenue of the Government and to seek the improvement of members.

SIR KNIGHTS WRECKED.

Two Men Killed and Several Injured in Collision Near Reno, Nev.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 13.—A. L. Hicks, fireman, and an unidentified man were killed and several passengers hurt in a collision between Southern Pacific trains at Lawton, seven miles west of Reno.

The injured include Mrs. John Swan, Galesburg, Ill.; R. Ridley Morgan, Ridgeway, Pa.; P. H. Campbell, Freeman, O.; George Summerfield, Cleveland. All will recover.

A westbound passenger train running thirty-five miles an hour crashed into the third section of an eastbound train, carrying a large party of Knights Templars. Both trains were double headers, with a heavy train of Pullmans and day coaches. All four locomotives were wrecked as well as the baggage and day coaches of both trains. The accident was due to disobedience of orders.

Delegates From Fourteen Nations Meet In St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13.—Speeches of greeting and felicitations by delegates of the fourteen nations represented occupied the first session of the Interparliamentary union, which convened in Festival hall. First Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis delivered an address of welcome in behalf of the president of the United States.

In the speeches that followed former Congressman Samuel T. Barrows spoke for the United States, pointing out the value of international arbitration and universal peace. No questions were discussed or business of any nature transacted. The delegates spent the remainder of the day in visiting the world's fair. In the evening an elaborate reception was tendered them by the board of women managers.

ANTI-JEW RIOTS.

Several Hebrews Hurt In Disturbances In Russian Poland.

KATTOWITZ, Prussian Silesia, Sept. 13.—Anti-Jewish disturbances occurred Sunday at the frontier town of Sosnowice, Russian Poland, on the occasion of the celebration of the Jewish New Year. Boys stoned the celebrantists and injured a child, with the result that a rumor spread that the Jews had killed a child.

A number of workmen marched in procession through the streets in the evening, stoning the windows of Jewish houses and those of the synagogue. Several Jews were injured with knives and stones. The doctors refused to attend them, fearing the mob. The rioters also broke into several Jewish dwellings. The troops of the garrison eventually dispersed the rioters and arrested ten of them.

Prince Ferdinand In Vienna.

VIENNA, Sept. 13.—Emperor Francis Joseph received in audience Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and later the prince dined with the emperor. Count Goluchowski, the foreign minister, was one of the guests at the dinner. This is the first time since 1901 that the emperor has received Prince Ferdinand. The changed attitude of the emperor is said to be due to the intercession of King Edward, who, while in Marienbad, wrote to the emperor in Prince Ferdinand's behalf at the request of the latter.

A RUSSIAN DISASTER

Three Thousand Prisoners Are Taken by the Japs.

ZASSOULITCH AMONG THE CAPTURED

He Is Reported Wounded — General Linevitch Said to Be Invading Korea With a Force of Fifty Thousand Men.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The Morning Post states that official Russian dispatches received in London announce that Lieutenant General Zassoulitch, who commanded the portion of the Russian rear guard south of the Han river, has been severely wounded and captured, with 3,000 out of his 5,000 men.

It is added by the Morning Post that Generals Zaroubaieff, Koulakoffski and Bilderling have checked General Kuroki's advance.

The Daily Mail's correspondent repeats from Tientsin the report that Lieutenant General Linevitch, with 50,000 men, invaded northeastern Korea and cut General Kuroki's communications with Fengwangcheng.

WHERE THE RUSSIANS ARE.

Oyama Reports Disposition of Troops About Mukden.

TOKYO, Sept. 13.—A telegram received here from Field Marshal Oyama gives the disposition of the Russian troops in the vicinity of Yentai and Mukden. He says that a large force of Russian cavalry is posted at Pingtaitsze, which is about twenty-four miles to the east of the Yentai railway station, and that another force of cavalry occupies the town of Hellingchai, to the northward of Pingtaitsze. Other bodies of cavalry, with artillery, are located at Huangshanlin, on the eastern road out of Mukden, as well as in the neighborhood of Yumantzushan, which is occupied by the Japanese. Some detachments of Russian cavalry are posted at Funchi, Kushutui and Meihuketun, along the railroad between Yentai and Mukden, and are apparently keeping in touch with and watching the Japanese.

Another report received from the headquarters of the Manchurian armies tells of the pitiable condition of noncombatants in Liaoyang. It relates that while the Russians were holding the defense works close to the walls of Liaoyang they prohibited the removal of noncombatants from the city, and consequently many were killed or wounded. Dr. A. M. Westwater, a well known British medical missionary of Liaoyang, is at present sheltering 200 wounded noncombatants and feeding and nursing many more. Concluding, the report says:

"The condition of these people is beyond description, and it is awful to see the results of this Russian inhumanity. The killed and wounded were of course hit by our fire, but the Russians were responsible. It is a great pity to extend the calamities to noncombatants."

An additional report from the army headquarters concerning dumdum bullets says:

"Among the Russian munitions captured at Liaoyang are two kinds of dumdum bullets which very much resemble those made for the Russian rifle of the 1891 type. They do not, however, fit this rifle exactly. We made search for rifles which could have fired these bullets, but failed to find them.

"The wounds received by some of our men are comparatively large, and it seems likely that they were made by dumdum bullets. We have, however, been unable to ascertain this definitely."

JAPS ADVANCING.

Russian Correspondent Reports a Rapid Forward Movement.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 13.—The Birzheviya Viedmosti's correspondent at Tie pass telegraphs to his paper as follows:

"The Japanese, who had been accused of moving forward slowly, are now advancing very rapidly. Little avails the Russian increase of troops, for the Japanese are receiving reenforcements from Newchwang. The initiative will remain in the hands of the Japanese, and their tactics will always be repeated."

May to Speak In Boston.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The secretary of state has accepted the invitation of the thirteenth international peace congress to be present at their meeting in Boston on Monday, Oct. 3, and to deliver a brief address on that day as the representative of the government of the United States.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The ninth biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen began in Buffalo.

James Lowther, conservative member of parliament and formerly chief secretary for Ireland, died in London.

A cut in steerage rates from London and Liverpool to Quebec was made by the Allan, Dominion and Canadian Pacific steamship lines.

The refusal of drawers at the American Steel and Wire works, South Sharon, Pa., to accept a cut in wages prevented the contemplated resumption.

The Ottoman bank informed American legation at Constantinople that it held $25,000 to pay claim for land of an American citizen illegally seized at Smyrna.

The main body of the Hereros, several thousand strong, broke through the German ring encircling it and escaped. This means a prolongation of the war in southwest Africa.

JAPANESE PROTEST.

United States Asked to Make Lena Leave San Francisco.

INVESTIGATION IS IN PROGRESS

Inspectors Ordered to See if Russian Transport Really Needs Repairs. Washington Awaits Report Before Answering Jap Demand.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The expected protest of Japan against allowing the Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena, which arrived at San Francisco yesterday, to remain longer than twenty-four hours came today when the Japanese consul in that city, through the collector of customs, made formal demand that the vessel be required to leave at the end of that time.

The collector's telegram officially notifying the authorities of the arrival of the Lena and of Japan's protest was addressed to the secretary of the treasury, who at once sent copies to Acting Secretary of State Adee and Acting Secretary Murray of the department of commerce and labor, who has direct jurisdiction in the matter. The telegram reads as follows:

"Japanese consul has made demand upon me that Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena, arriving at this port 11th inst., leave within twenty-four hours. The captain reports that he has entered for repairs of engines and boilers, principally the latter. I am requesting the inspector of hulls and boilers to make an examination of vessel's machinery with the consent of the Russian consul and the commander of the Lena. Can find no authority in the law or regulations for the collector assuming any authority in the premises, and request instructions."

After a conference with the commissioner of navigation Acting Secretary Murray sent the following dispatch to the collector:

"Your telegram addressed to secretary treasury concerning Russian steamship Lena arrived at 4:40 p. m.

"Wire this department hour of steamer's arrival at your port and concise resume of steamboat inspector's report, and if repairs are necessary the probable time required to complete them. On receipt of particulars the department will instruct you further."

The collector's telegram came after office hours, and the officials were somewhat puzzled that there should have been so much delay in sending it. There was a good deal of reticence on the subject on the part of the officials of the department of commerce and labor and of the bureau of navigation.

ON BOARD THE LENA.

A Reporter Inspects Russian Transport at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Rear Admiral Goodrich lunched with Captain Berlinsky and other officers of the Lena on board the vessel. They could not be seen. Lieutenant Zotoff, speaking for the captain, stated that the main object of the Russian vessel in making this port was to have absolutely necessary repairs made to her engines and boilers. Her bottom is foul and will have to be cleaned in drydock. The lieutenant said that the Lena's coal bunkers were far from being depleted, and he thought it would be unnecessary for her to coal at this port.

The Lena is anchored between the four army transports lying in Mission bay and the new battleship Ohio. In fact, she is only about 500 yards from the big guns of the battleship which was accepted by the government on Saturday.

Going alongside the dark hull, a line of Russian jackies were seen along the rail. At the top of the boarding ladder a file of marines were drawn up on the deck, and an officer wearing the white cap that war illustrations have made familiar blocked the way, but after a few words pointed to the cabin.

The saloon of the Lena is a spacious apartment, as the vessel was a passenger liner before the war. At one end of the tables a group of officers were drinking coffee and smoking Russian cigarettes.

Navigating Officer Speckneff, who spoke excellent English, said:

"We were sent to Vladivostok to transfer the troops home when the war should be over. The Lena is not a warship. We cannot fight.

"Needing repairs, we were first ordered back to the Baltic. Afterward these orders were changed, and we have come here because it is the nearest port in which we could get the new boilers we need."

Being asked how long he would remain here Officer Speckneff said:

"We expect orders from our naval representative at Washington, who has just been advised of our arrival. It is probable that he will ask the American government for its permission to remove the guns from our decks and allow the vessel to remain here until the repairs can be finished."

When asked how long he thought that would require he said: "The Lena will probably remain here until the war is over. We expect that the officers and crew will be sent home by way of New York."

And then he added, "It is hard to be so far away from the war when one can only make a record by fighting."

On the deck were between 200 and 300 sailors. Among them was a priest of the Russian Greek church, with long hair and uncut beard, wearing a soft felt hat and what looked like a gray kimona. Silently he stood at the rail, counting his beads and looking at the tall buildings of the strange city.

An inspection of the decks of the converted cruiser, to which no objection was made, revealed the fact that she had mounted twenty-five guns

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—A team representing headquarters of the Ninth regiment, national guard of the state of New York, and one from the Second troop of cavalry, national guard of the state of New Jersey, were the winners of the team competitions at the opening of what is expected to be the first of a series of annual rifle, carbine, pistol and revolver matches on the rifle range at Creedmoor, L. I. It is understood that a strong effort will be made to also have the shooting in the national trophy match and the matches of the National Rifle Association of America held here next year.

Fall Meeting at Readville.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 13.—Two favorites and an outsider won the events at the opening of the fall meeting at Readville track. The track was slow. The 2:10 pace was the feature, for after Ben F., the favorite, had taken the first heat handily Peeler Patron came up in the second and won by a head. The next two were easy for Peeler Patron. It was announced that on Wednesday the noted trotting gelding Major Delmar would go to beat the world's record, without a pacemaker. If he succeeds he will then, on Friday, trot against the world's record to high wheel sulky.

It is probable that several boats will be built on both sides of the lake to take part in these races.

FEUD IN FLORIDA.

Starts on a Train—Two Killed and Two Wounded.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 13.—During a row on an excursion train on the Georgia Southern and Florida railway between white men, Jackson Duncan was killed and his brother, Marshall Duncan, was dangerously wounded. Both men lived at Eddy, a station just south of the Georgia-Florida line. Jim Riley, a negro, was killed by a stray bullet, he not being mixed in the row.

Subsequently W. M. Duncan, father of Jackson and Marsall Duncan, was shot four times in the side as a result of the row on the train. He resides at Baxter, Fla., six miles from Eddy. Telegrams from Baxter merely give an account of the casualties, but do not give any information as to who did the shooting. No arrests had been made up to 6 o'clock last night.

W. M. Duncan is a turpentine operator at Baxter. His sons run a general merchandise store at Eddy.

Armed Friends Guard Shooters.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 13.—A special from Cordele, Ga., says a party of about fifty friends are standing guard with loaded winchesters around a house in Baxter, Baker county, Fla., in which are Charles Altman and Hillary Altman, two men who are accused of killing a negro and a white man on an excursion train near that place. These friends of the Altmans say that the sheriff or military will take the men over their dead bodies.

Schoolteacher Starts Fight.

HICKORY, N. C., Sept. 13.—A fight took place near Hudson, in Caldwell county, about fifteen miles from here, and as a result one man lies mortally wounded and two others are suffering from injuries more or less serious. The origin of the trouble was a published account of a lecture by Miss Abbott in Cincinnati severely reflecting on the people of Hudson and vicinity, where she has been conducting a mission school.

The Mayflower at Palermo.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The navy department has been advised of the arrival of the cruiser Mayflower at Palermo, Sicily, on her way to the United States. The Mayflower accompanied Admiral Barker's battleship squadron to Triest and remained there after the departure of the squadron in order to bring home some of the squadron's officers and men sent ashore for treatment for typhoid fever. Although not so reported to the department, it is assumed that the patients are on the Mayflower, either recovered or in a state of convalescence.

Quarreled Over Sister's Marriage.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 13.—Two Italians quarreled here about their sister's intended marriage and one killed the other. The dead man was Giovanni Sylvestri and his alleged murderer is Michaele Sylvestri. Giovanni was stabbed through the lung. He was twenty-two years old and single. Michaele, who is thirty and married, was arrested. One brother objected to the sister's accepted suitor and the other favored him.

MAINE REPUBLICAN.

William T. Cobb Elected Governor of Pine Tree State.

DEMOCRATS MAKE SLIGHT GAIN.

Net Republican Loss From 1900 Figures of 767 Shown In the Results From 200 Towns—Republican Congressmen Re-elected.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 13.—With William T. Cobb of Rockland heading their ticket as the candidate for governor the Republicans carried Maine at the biennial election by a large plurality.

Returns from 200 cities and towns for governor give Cobb (Rep.) 42,897 and Davis (Dem.) 28,366.

The same places in 1900 gave Hill (Rep.) 36,742 and Lord (Dem.) 21,444.

A net Republican loss of 767 is shown.

The four present congressmen—Amos L. Allen in the First, Charles E. Littlefield in the second, E. C. Burleigh in the Third and Lewellyn Powers in the Fourth districts—were re-elected, and a Republican majority in the legislature was assured. The party was also successful in many county contests, of which there were more than the usual number.

The election passed under conditions favorable for a large vote. The weather, dull and threatening early in the day, became clear and inviting before noon, and the voters, whose enthusiasm had been thoroughly aroused during the brief campaign not only by local speakers, but by orators of national reputation from outside the state, flocked to the polls.

FAIRBANKS AT OYSTER BAY.

The Guest Overnight of President Roosevelt.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, Republican candidate for vice president, is a guest of President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. He arrived from New York on the 6:43 train. One of the president's carriages was awaiting him at the station, and he was driven directly to Sagamore Hill, arriving there shortly after 7 o'clock.

Senator Fairbanks said that he had been on the move almost constantly since he came east and that thus far the campaign work had been most agreeable. His health is excellent, and he is enjoying his experiences in the campaign. He declined to discuss in detail his political observations, but indicated that so far as he could ascertain the situation was quite satisfactory from his point of view. He was asked about the situation in Maine, where he delivered several speeches.

"By this time," he replied laughingly, "that situation has been crystallized into an expression by the people of the state. We shall know in a few hours what the expression is. I think we would better wait for that. It will be more definite than anything I could say."

Senator Fairbanks said his visit to the president was of personal rather than of public interest. They would discuss many questions relating to the campaign, as he might not see the president again before the elections. He will leave here early in the morning, as he is going to Saratoga to attend the Republican state convention and desires to reach his destination in the afternoon. He will address the convention tomorrow. Later he will speak at Elmira, N. Y.; Wilmington and Dover, Del.; Baltimore and perhaps at some other places and on the 21st inst. will leave for the west to take an active part in the campaign there. He probably will extend his campaign tour to the Pacific coast.

Hill Confers With Parker.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Former Senator David B. Hill conferred with Judge Parker from noon until after 8 o'clock. The senator then left for Albany without making a statement concerning the conference. It was given out that the visit was made at the request of Judge Parker, who had telephoned the senator, asking him to come to Rosemount. Senator Hill was the only visitor of political prominence. Though his coming followed closely upon the conferences between Judge Parker and August Belmont, William F. Sheehan, William S. Rodie and Cord Meyer, it is not believed here that he came for the purpose of discussing New York state politics. The senator declared that there is no occasion for the Democrats to feel alarmed about the state ticket.

Pope Receives Archbishop Chapelle.

ROME, Sept. 13.—Archbishop Chapelle of New Orleans, papal delegate to Cuba and Porto Rica, was received in audience by Pope Pius. The pope exhibited the kindliest interest in the archbishop and expressed great pleasure at making his personal acquaintance. The audience lasted forty-five minutes and was concerned with matters relating mainly to Archbishop Chapelle's duties in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Quaker Wedding in Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The wedding of Miss Beatrice Magill to John Campbell Robinson of Boston took place at the home of former Ambassador Andrew D. White. The ceremony was that of the society of Friends. Mrs. Robinson is a sister of the ambassador's wife.

What's the "price" for the People's party?

If the Republicans got any satisfaction from Vermont surely the Democrats have reason to be happy over Maine.

"As sweet a gentlemen as ever scuttled a ship," said Col. Watterson of President Roosevelt to his fellow-editors last. That was far from being inappropriate. — Elizabeth Evening Times.

And far from being true.

In some lines of business advertising may only put a certain proportion of readers into the position of inquirers. This is particularly true of commodities costing large sums, as real estate, machinery, piano. But for this purpose there is nothing that will induce a state of receptivity so economically as advertising.—Ex.

Manager Burke, of the Elizabeth Stars, is disposed to believe that Manager Johnson, of the Plainfield A. C., has no wish to arrange a series between the two aggregations, although it has been shown him that Plainfield has no open dates. The local fans would like nothing better than to play a game with the Elizabeth team, but no one would sanction a violation of the agreements with other clubs.

A sensible suggestion is made by William H. Riley in a communication published in this issue. He urges that a town improvement committee be formed, whose duty it will be to devise and promote schemes tending to beautify the city. There is need for such a committee is evident in many parts of the municipality where ugly sites could be transformed into spots pleasing to the eye.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

At the regular meeting of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., Saturday evening, one candidate was initiated.

One candidate was initiated and a proposition received at the regular meeting of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., Friday evening. There was big turnout of lodge men, and a jolly social time was spent at the conclusion of the business session.

William A. Codington and James F. Buckle, of Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., are making arrangements for a clam-bake to be held under the auspices of the lodge within the next two weeks. A spot convenient to the city will be selected, and the affair will be complete in every detail.

The Somerset Democrat in speaking of the Knights of Pythias celebration at Somerville last week, has this to say about the local lodge: "Perseverance Lodge, of Plainfield, were deserving of the prize for the finest appearance. They were a gallant company of men, of good physique and marched with martial tread. They wore white yachting caps, handsome boutonnieres and carried canes."

Following closely on the session of the grand encampment, Knights Templar, at San Francisco, will be held in that city the annual meeting of the sovereign grand lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. This body will convene September 19 and remain in session for at least one week. Just enough time will elapse between the two large gatherings to give the people of San Francisco an opportunity to enjoy a breathing spell.

Representative Odd Fellows in New York and New Jersey have made up a party to travel to the coast in a special train, which will leave Jersey City next Friday, over the Lehigh Valley Railroad The route selected passes through Buffalo, Cincinnati, Memphis, New Orleans, thence, via the Southern Pascific, through Texas, New Mexico and Arizona to Southern California. Los Angeles will be reached September 16. Here the party will disperse, the representatives proceeding to San Francisco and the tourists spending their time as fancy indicates.

—Another big consignment of Bartlett pears will be offered at Neuman Brothers'. The fruit is perfect, of choice flavor and unexcelled for canning.

GOSSIP OF NEW YORK

IT IS NOW SOCIETY'S OUT-OF-TOWN SEASON.

The Situation Has a Funny Side to It —Brutal Scenes at the Brooklyn Bridge Entrance—Other Gotham Chatter.

NEW YORK.—"Society" is out of town, but society's husbands are in town most of the time, with the husbands of that part of the population which is not society. The disproportion in the balance of the sexes is not great enough to be immediately noticeable on the streets, but it is a novel disproportion nevertheless, and one that is plain enough in certain quarters. The results are more striking than the figures. They appear in the proportion of men in the audiences at places of amusements, at the restaurants, and in the churches that remain open. The whole arrangement is a familiar subject of satire. The fun-maker sees a huge joke in the situation of the pampered wife who drives, bathes, flirts and eats too much at "summer places," and a smaller jest in the pitied husband who "does the town" while his wife is away. It is quite true that the New York husband resolves to console himself for the hot and lonesome situation in which he is usually left by the summer arrangement. It is true that he takes a certain kind of pleasure in a free and easy dinner with gay music, and in a subsequent roof garden. But it is equally true that this freedom to come and go is one that the average husband very soon tires of and nothing is more familiar in the summer metropolis than the sight of the lonesome husband who has finished doing the things he found to do and has grown disgusted with his freedom. The evening shows many thousands of thoroughly bored men who are looking forward eagerly to September, the return of their families and the reestablishment of the winter schedule of living.

The Bridge Scandal.

THE foreigner who, returning home, has expressed the opinion that the most extraordinary thing in New Yorw is the disgrace at the Brooklyn bridge, for once has expressed an opinion that tallies precisely with the opinion held by every decent New Yorker. The brutal scenes at the bridge entrance in the rush hours are the one feature of life in the metropolis which no one has ever succeeded in exaggerating. A painter who succeeded in putting the thing on canvas would be accused of having a diseased imagination. People who once devoted a fragment of sight-seeing time to visiting the slums, now go instead to the bridge entrance at half past five in the afternoon and look down into the human maelstrom. Nothing on the stage is half so dramatically exciting. There is much better chance of seeing human beings maimed and murdered than at any bull fight. Here is a battle that is governed by no laws. The government that is sensitive about the prize ring and has debated solemnly the child's play of football, looks on blandly at this trampling, murderous scene night after night. It is sinful for a man with gloved hands to punch another man in one round too many, but here children are torn from their mothers' arms and trampled to death, and the legalized panic and carnage is called the growth of population.

Scarcely less repulsive scenes are repeated on the elevated railway stations at the same hour. Committees protest, and commissioners map plans, but the outrage is perpetuated. "When the subway is finished," is an oft-repeated hope. "When the river tunnels are opened," is another promise. What New York really wants is an engineering Napoleon. Men who ought to know, say that these things need not happen. The police have thrown up their hands. They have slightly diminished the number of deaths, but in general New York's twilight scramble is as bad as ever it was, a continuous conflict as deadly as war.

Eating in Many Languages.

ONE philosopher has said that the New Yorker's eagerness to get his meals is a more frantic spectacle than anything in modern life. Every foreigner marvels at the attention now given to eating. I presume that New Yorkers do not eat more than other folks, but the number of new restaurants, gorgeous and humble, is always one of the marvels of the town. Every trick of effete Europe has been copied, and the orient has been sampled for freak devices. One may eat here in any language. Just now Japanese restaurants are especially popular, though not more so than the Chinese. There are now hundreds of Chinese restaurants, some of them very Chinese, some of them but slightly so. In the Chinese quarter there are now 20 or 30 well fitted places where there were but three or four five years ago. It is a growing fashion now with visitors to the city—and there are many thousands of sight-seers here at this season—to eat in foreign "joints," and the fashion lifts into prosperity very humble restaurants that were not looking for the invasion. There is a Greek restaurant on Forty-second street, and one or two other distinctly Greek places further downtown. Italian, French, Swiss, Russian, Spanish restaurants are legion. The Hungarian cafe on Houston street once had a great fame. There are so many other Hungarian restaurants now that this place—built in a cellar, with a background of casks and bottles—is no longer distinctive. The Assyrian restaurant on Rector street has not yet been spoiled by popularity. When it is "discovered," that is to say "written up" in the Sunday papers, there will be cabs and automobiles in front of the door, the proprietor will cut through the wall and hire more waiters, and the place will be so much like any other that the searchers for novelty must turn elsewhere. This hunt for queer places that are not yet spoiled, is a game of itself. "For heaven's sake don't mention it!" the artists used to say when they found a new French restaurant with the potted plants and the parrot in the window, and madame behind the little counter. Vain hope! Somebody always does mention it. Then the cabs come, madame is famous—and spoiled.

A Millionaire's Amusement.

MILLIONAIRES can't eat their money. They must spend it. If they save it to leave behind there there is the dreadful spectacle, for example, of the people grabbing a share. Mr. Whitney's money has just given the state an inheritence tax of $222,000. Mr. Carnegie is not the only rich man who is trying to die poor. Mr. Carnegie's toys are libraries. Here is M. Gould Brokaw with other notions. I discribed some weeks ago the Long island palace of Mr. Brokaw. This is constently being embellished. The grounds have recently been made still more like a Greek garden. But Brokaw is not content with houses, stables, terraces, yachts, buzwagons, hunting hounds and farming novelties. He has mastered the surface of the earth and somethings underneath. He has played everything that can be played on terra firma. Now he wants to play in the air. He is building balloons. Santos Dumont appealed to his fancy and he is constructing some air boats much on the Santos Dumont lines in which he not merely hopes but expects to make other surface-living millionaires feel cheap. In furtherance of this plan Brokaw has already built a "balloon house," a sort of gigantic stable for his air horses, and although there is the usual mystery about his plans, the precise type of balloon, and so forth, the balloon fad is well entrenched on the Brokaw estate and before the out-door season is over this rich eccentric will make his trial trips in an up-to-date airship. Nothing that Brokaw does really excites surprise, and this latest enterprise is all but taken for granted, yet there is sufficient curiosity among his neighbors, millionaire and otherwise, If there is to be a grand trunk line in air traffic Brokaw may be the pioneer, though to do him justice he claims only to be playing.

THE streets are dotted with tourists cameras; the excursion steamers, the watering places, Coney Island, Long Branch — all the near resorts — reveal the popularity of the camera. Supplementing the legion of amateurs are the professional view-makers, and the newspaper news gathering photographers. The individuall's right to forbid a photographer—and sometimes his right to thrash the photographer and break his camera—has been gone over a good many times, but a new vitality is given to the theme by Judge Parker's protest at Esopus against being photographed while in bathing. The letter of Miss Abigail Roberson, of Rochester, to Judge Parker has raised much discussion. Miss Roberson read of Judge Parker's protest and immediately sat down to write what was doubtless intended to be a stinging letter.

Miss Roberson had sued a milling company for using her picture in promiscuous advertising without having her consent to do so. The decision of the court of appeals was against Miss Roberson, and the decision was written by Judge Parker. The democratic candidate, who has been much pestered and annoyed, used the expression "I reserve the right," and Miss Roberson pounced upon this at once. "I take this opportunity to remind you," she says, "that you have not such right as that which you assert," and she quotes the court of appeals' decision in which the "so-called" right of privacy was discussed. The letter, which is superficially respectful, offers a blunt and gleeful deduction.

Doubtless most people are siding with Judge Parker in his later wish rather than in his earlier decision. It must be rather annoying to feel the camera looking at you all the time. The knowledge that a person may be made to look very ridiculous in a chance or shrewdly-taken photograph has made many mourn.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

CACHET OF THE MOMENT.

High Crowned Hats Are the Thing. A New Aigret.

High crowns are the cachet of the moment, and we are realizing that the high crown and broad brim are more becoming than the plateau, which has been repeated ad nauseam and is hard to give up. But, after all, the felt plateau has at best a forlorn and shapeless appearance. It may be trimmed ever so cunningly, propped up with a bandeau and wired at the edge; but, like the horse in "Pickwick Papers," which is kept up and going by being "strapped tightly to the shafts," so the plateau is kept going by its accessories.

With the high crowned hats the paradise plume is in favor and comes in lovely shades of lemon, toning to burnt orange, and in brown and pink, shading to subtle gradations of claret.

A novel aigret has been invented which takes on the characteristics of the paradise plume, but is shorter and is placed in an upright position on the hat.

Mohair receives considerable attention in the smart dress models. The lovely luster of this fabric is one of its principal features, but the fact that it comes in all the fashionable colors and several weights is also appreciated. Fancy mohairs in stripes, fine plaids or conventional figures of contrasting or self color are a change from the plain materials, and dresses developed in these figured mohairs are very stylish. Tailored styles predominate unless white is used, when any amount of hand sewing in the shape of French knots and fine feather stitching is seen.

A hat which represents a novelty is here shown. It boasts a brim considerably broader on the left side than on the right. It is lifted at the edge, and the trimming takes the form of a long sweeping plume caught with a buckle and a cluster of ribbons under the brim.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE TAILOR MADE WOMAN.

What She Should Wear In Order to Be Correct.

This is the season of the year when the tailor made coat and skirt form of costume appeals most strongly to the feminine heart. This gown for the early fall may be evolved from the thinnest of voiles over a silk lining or from heavy rough cloth, velvet or velveteen, which promises to be one of the winter's smart gown fabrics. The lines of the strictly tailor made are very severe, and the sleeves are comfortably tight. Indeed, we have come back to the real English ideal tailor made gown, which admits of elaboration only on the collar and in a pretty application of braid or buttons.

Novelties in waistcoats include pique, velvet, suede and silk. They are, however, only worn with the severe type of tailor costume and particularly with the basque coats. White suede or kid waistcoats are more popular. Leather trimming of all kinds is the last cry in the world of dress.

TROTTEUR GOWN.

The trotteur gown sketched by our artist is of navy blue serge. The skirt is plaited and stitched with three tiered panels cut into points over stitched underskirt. The [illegible] coat is also plaited, stitched and adorned with revers, epaulets and [illegible] of ciel blue cloth outlined with meshed black braid.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"Philip, do you know that I am alone now but for you?" continued the girl, sadly. "Grandfather, friends, country, all seem to have gone down in that terrible ship."

"'Twas not my ship that sunk her, dear," protested her husband. "God's hand dealt the blow. He saved you. He brought us together again. I shall be all things to you by His help. I promise Him, I promise you."

"And I believe you and trust you. I always believed you—and trusted you, even as a child, my Philip."

"And you will do so still?"

"To the very end."

"That picture, Anne, darling," whispered Grafton at last, "that you gave me, 'twas broken by the blow that struck me down."

"Let it be!" cried the girl. "You have me now, is not that enough?"

"And that slipper," he murmured, "that I took from your room in the tower——"

"Did you take it?" she cried, faintly smiling through her tears. "I missed it and wondered."

"'Tis gone, too," he said, "lost with the Torbay."

"Philip," she said, suddenly, "that other locket? Ah, you wear it still!" she added, lifting the chain with her hand.

In spite of herself her eyes looked the desire she did not express.

"There can be no secret between us now, sweet Anne," said Grafton. "Open it."

She drew back. His willingness was all she wished.

"Nay, I trust you in all. I have you. You are mine. No pictured woman may rise to claim you now."

"None ever will, dear," he answered. "But open it. I desire it. The dead general would wish it, too, could he but know you."

With eager hands she drew the little golden locket from its weather-stained leather case. She pressed the spring and opened it. The miniature of a beautiful young woman looked up at her. As she gazed at it a moment her eyes filled with tears. She could not help but be very jealous.

"She is very beautiful," she murmured, pitifully, looking from the portrait at her husband.

"Is she?" he said, faintly. "I never saw her."

"Never saw her!"

"No, she was the betrothed of Gen. Wolfe. He gave me the locket the night before the battle of Quebec, and bade me place it in her hands when I returned to England, with all the love of his heart, and he told me to tell no one; but now you—well, we will take it to her together."

"Yes, yes—poor maiden! Ah, Philip, Sir Philip, how well you English know how to love a woman!"

"A man would be a poor fellow, indeed, Anne," he answered, "whom you could not teach to do that."

L'ENVOI.

FAREWELL!

NEARLY two years have fled away. It is a new scene in a new land. Under a grove of mighty trees, the forest primeval, indeed, on the brow of a hill, a gray old manor-house stands upon a grassy lawn stretching down to the shining waters of the broad Potomac. On the edge of the bluff, looking far over the river, is a little pleasure-house. It is late spring in the Old Dominion.

Philip and Anne Grafton for some time past have been established in the ancestral home of the family from which her mother sprang, which had descended to her shortly before. Though he had given up active service in the English navy, out of deference to his wife's feelings, who would not see him war against her countrymen, and who could not bear to think of him on that sea which had taken her grandfather and father as well, Grafton had retired with the sanction and approval of the king. His beautiful wife and her story had won the kind heart of queer little George II., and, while loath to lose so good an officer, he had at last said "yes" to all her pleadings for her husband. She had suffered enough and she was entitled to consideration.

From a tall masthead, erected on the sloping lawn, every day flutters a small blue flag, which is especially under the care of a certain ancient mariner of aspect curious and language quaint, who rolls along the walks and drives of the Virginia plantation as if he were still on the heaving deck of a ship. He answers to the name of Jabez Slocum, and is full of strange tales of distant lands and teeming seas. The children of the vicinity love him.

Philip's neighbors, in common with this old man, call him "Admiral Grafton." He is, in fact, a rear admiral of the blue, and the flag is that of his rank.

In the little summer-house there are two women. The difference between them is as marked, thinks Philip, as he observes them, himself unseen, from the porch of the house above, as when he first saw them in the old Chateau de Josselin in Brittany in France. There is but one doll between them now. It is not Toto, nor any of the demoiselles de Paris. This one has blue eyes like his father and mother, and the midnight hair of Anne has been lightened into a curly brown that speaks of Philip. Josette, who had been brought from France after the battle, kneels at her mistress' feet in adoration. From where Grafton stands he can see the downy head of his young son nestling against the fair white bosom of his mother. Young Philip de Rohan Grafton is hungry—but he will not be so long!

The two women break into the words of a familiar song. The man watches and listens. There is a step behind him. He turns and finds himself face to face with old Jean-Renaud.

"They sing yonder. Do you hear?" asked Grafton.

"Yes, monsieur," answered the old man smiling.

"Do you know what it is they sing?"

Philip knows it well, he has heard it often; but still he asks the question, thinking the while of the morning he first heard it from the children at the foot of the tower when he asked Jean-Renaud about it long ago.

"Yes, Monsieur l'Amiral. 'Tis a Breton cradle-song with which the mothers put their babies to sleep."

The two men look and listen. The two women sing on. The baby sleeps. There is peace in the land.

JAPANESE IN THE MOON.

Scheme of a Resourceful Showman at a Russian Village Fair to Catch the People.

The "pope," or village priest, is generally the only source of information as to what is going on in remote villages. He is very much to the fore at present, says a recent Kazan correspondence in the London Daily News.

Father Ignatius Diatchkoff sends to the Kazan newspapers an amusing account of a fair held in his village.

"Our mujiks," he says, "are intensely patriotic, but their ideas of serving their country are somewhat strange.

"When I visited the fair on Wednesday night I saw a great crowd of our peasants standing about an itinerant rifle saloon proprietor, who was holding a telescope to his eye. They were evidently waiting their turn.

"Our village coffinmaker was aiming a gun, which he rested in the fork of a small tree. The gun was pointed toward the sky. Suddenly it went off, and a bell clanged after which, followed loud cries of 'Ura! Got him again!'

"After several other mujiks had taken shots, I inquired what they were aiming at, and was much surprised to hear in chorus the reply: 'The Japanese, Father.' Looking along the barrel of the gun I could see nothing but the moon, so I demanded a further explanation.

"'Our brother,' said a bearded giant, pointing to the showman, 'says that the man in the moon is a Makak (Japanese), and that every time we hit him ten Japanese on earth join the devil. We have killed,' he added, naively, '80 of them already.'"

SOMETHING OF A SHARPER.

When It Came to Working Up a Tidy Little Trade Cy Was Right Up and at It.

Two old fellows in New Hampshire were the sharpest things in the way of bargaining. Cy Pettingill made brooms for a living and Ezra Hoskins kept a store. One day Cy came in with a load of brooms and the dickering began, relates the Columbia Record.

Cy was a man who could see a bargain through a six-inch plank on a dark night, and Ezra could hear a dollar bill rattle in a bag of feathers a mile off. Well, they began, and their conversation was something like this:

"Ezra, I want to sell you these brooms."

"All right, Cy, I'll take them."

Cy said: "I don't want any store bargains, I want cash for them."

They talked and gadded a while, and then Ezra said: "I'll tell you what I'll do, Cy, I'll give you half cash and half trade."

Cy took a fresh chew of tobacco, pulled a straw out of one of the brooms, and said:

"That'll be all right, Ezra."

After he had put the brooms in the store, Ezra said: "Here's your money, Cy, now what do you want in trade?"

Cy looked around for a spell, cocked his eye up to the ceiling, stuck his cud in his cheek, and said:

"Well, if it is all the same for you, Ezra, I'll take brooms."

OUR PUBLIC PARKS

MANY NEW DEPARTURES TO BE FOUND IN THEM.

Present Magnificent Urban Pleasure Grounds Are the Product of About Forty Years of Effort—Some Examples.

In 14 new small parks on the South side, in Chicago, it is proposed to build "club houses for the masses," social centers for the congested districts. This is a decided departure in the way of municipal effort, a city considering its duty done in providing summer recreation places. But, not so very long ago, parks themselves were new departures.

It may be of interest to learn that when public parks were first projected there was much opposition to them;

A NOOK IN UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

one argument employed against them, that they would increase taxation; another, that they would become the resort of the vicious and that respectable people would have to hold aloof from them.

It is about 40 years America has displayed interest in the development of city parks, and this period is marked by much splendid work in the extension and beautifying of urban pleasure grounds. Widely-known Central park has cost New York $15,000,000, to-day has a real estate value of $200,000,000, but its value to the people is infinite. Some figures may indicate the scope of the benefit: It contains 400,000 acres of wooded grounds, has nine miles of carriage way, over 28 miles of walk, and bridle paths of five miles' length; there are 30 buildings on the grounds, and seats for 10,000 people. The whole, indeed, a boon to the city-doomed, who could better dispense with library and museum.

Central park established a noble precedent, and cities all over the country were inspired to follow after the good work here begun. To-day, a stranger in a large town counts as one of his first pleasures a visit to the park which has established a reputation; for be it known each city is now judged by its parks as well as by its numbers. Everyone has heard of certain of the parks of Greater New York—Central, Prospect, Morningside and Riverside, though not of the whole number constituting New York's ten square miles (6,766 acres) of park area. Chicago has a very fine system of parks and boulevards; the country is familiar with beautiful Lincoln, Washington and Jackson parks. Fairmount park is the pride of Philadelphia, a pleasaunce of 3,300 acres, and 21 small parks invite to outdoor loitering in the City of Brotherly Love. Over on the Pacific, San Francisco glories in Golden Gate park, and rejoices in numerous small parks. Belle Isle, the island park of Detroit, is a beautiful spot. Baltimore has so many parks she cannot look after them all; has nine large ones and 20 small. St. Louis' Forest park is very much to the fore at present, and the Shaw Gardens of that city are famous. The parks of Cincinnati, Cleveland, Buffalo, Minneapolis and St. Paul are justly famed, and Boston stands at the head of all our cities in the matter of park development, her city and suburban parks being illustrious examples of city beautifying.

City life, with its artificial conditions, certainly would be unbearable were it not for the breathing spaces here and there in the desert of buildings, were it not for the flower and woodland beauty so carefully planned and cherished by our city fathers; who to-day, influenced by the cry for hygienic outdoor life for both children and grown-ups, feel it incumbent to set apart park and boulevard where verdure, color and perfume may minister to the universal craving for natural beauty.

WHAT CONSTITUTES LABOR

The Man Who Employs His Brains and Capital as Much a "Laborer" as Any Other.

The little daughter of one of New York's best known bankers sat in his office one day waiting for him to get through with his business, in order that he might take her home. That evening she related her experiences to her mother, says the Wall Street Journal.

"Why, mamma," she said, "papa doesn't work. He simply sits at a desk and talks all day."

One may smile at the simplicity of this child, and yet a great many grown-up people in this world take exactly the same view she did. They think that all work, or to use the word now universally though wrongly adopted, all "labor," worth considering is that done with the hands.

We speak of "capital" and "labor" as producing the wealth of the country. It is from use of these terms that much of the misconceptions, misunderstandings and mistakes that cause that most perplexing of issues, "the labor problem," springs. All wealth consists first of the gifts of nature, the products of the soil, the mines and the air; and, second, of the "labor" of man in gathering, transporting and adopting these products to human use. Capital is simply labor stored up, saved, accumulated.

It is a favorite theory of socialists that while the basis of all wealth is labor, there is, under the present economic system, "a surplus value," which, while really belonging to the laborer, has been wrongfully seized by the capitalists, thus creating the great inequalities in individual wealth.

But this theory depends upon the idea that it is manual labor alone that creates wealth. At any rate it takes very little account of any other kind of labor. The banker who sits at his desk and "talks" and the railroad president who rides in his private car over his "system" are not "laboring." They are "capitalists" who are simply existing on the labor of others. It is not too much to say that back of much of the agitation which is arraying the laborer against the employer, and the poor against the rich, lies this absurd fallacy that the only labor that produces anything is manual labor, and that the world consists of two classes, the laborers who toil at a wage that provides for a mere subsistence, and the "capitalist," the man who thrives by the labor of others, and who gets all the surplus of value after the wages are paid.

Of course such an idea must be got rid of if the world is to continue at peace under the present system, and certainly its eradication is necessary if we want to pass into an era of "the co-operative commonwealth," which is the dream of the socialist. All wealth, apart from the gifts of God, is, indeed, the labor of man, and all who refuse to work, whether they be tramps or the idle rich, are equally enemies of their kind. But the man who employs his brains and his capital—the reservoired labor which is the result of long and intelligent endeavor in the past—in business enterprises of any lawful kind is as much a "laborer" as any one of his employes who may swing a hammer, wield a pick or tend a furnace. It may seem superfluous to say a thing that appears so self-evident as this, but in fact it is necessary. The most elementary principles are the ones most often overlooked.

TEST FOR TRAINMEN'S EYES

Is More Severe Now Than It Was Before Railways Became So Numerous.

"Tests for defective eyesight on all members of railroad train crews are much more severe and frequent than they were a few years ago," remarked a prominent railway official a few days ago, reports the Columbus Press-Post. "The reasons for these tests are obvious, as the safety of every moving train depends mainly upon the clearness of vision of the men having it in charge. In these tests color blindness causes the most trouble, and is a constant menace to all trainmen, as the inability to name correctly the different colors at a glance is followed by instant dismissal from the service.

"A peculiar case was brought to light recently when a conductor on my road was being put through the test. He had been running a passenger train several years, and never met with an accident, and was deemed one of the best men on the road. When the different colors were placed before him singly he called them correctly at a glance, but when two or more colors were presented he was wholly unable to tell one from another. We were sorry for him, but of course were forced to let him go.

"Physicians seem to be unable to discover to just what cause this affection is due. They claim that some persons are born with it, while it comes upon others without warning at any time of life, and unless put to the test the victim will never know that he is so afflicted."

Fire in Darktown.

An old member of the fire department was talking about some of the big fires he had fought in his day, and he remarked: "But the most interesting fire is always a blaze in Darktown. If you want to see a lot of excited people you just ought to get in the midst of a small conflagration in Darktown at night. The negroes begin to empty houses of their contents for blocks around. That is fun enough, but the real fun commences when they try to get their goods back into their houses, for it is a sort of grab game, everybody taking everything they can get hold of. I'll bet that after a fire in Darktown there isn't a house in the neighborhood of the blaze that was furnished like it was before the fire."—Atlanta Constitution.

THE POPULAR PIE.

"FOUNDRIES" OF BIG CITIES KNOW PUBLIC PALATE.

In Chicago and Boston It Is Apple, New Orleans Chocolate, San Francisco Custard, and So On.

Cherry pie season is about over in the big pie foundries of the pie trust. They're buckling down to work hammering out huckleberry pies, which are the favorite variety just now, says the Chicago Inter Ocean of middle July.

But huckleberry pies don't lead the output, even at this season of the year, not by any means. Year in and year out, apple is the favorite in Chicago.

It must be a great satisfaction for Boston people to realize that they have crammed this one pet article of diet down the throat of scoffing Chicago. For the apple pie is Boston's own.

Upon this viand grew the mind of Emerson. Hawthorne brushed its crumbs from his lips as he sat down to write "The Scarlet Letter."

The New England poise and sterling quality of mind comes from beans, but New England transcendentalism and literary frills are bred from apple pie. No true Boston man has any doubt of this.

The pie plants of Chicago keep close tab on the business throughout the country. It appears from the statistics of the big factories that the middle west is also in the peach pie belt. This includes Chicago.

The favorite variety in New Orleans, year in year out, is chocolate pie. The whole Pacific coast, San Francisco in particular, plays custard pie as a steady favorite.

The piemen account for the taste of New Orleans by its French population. French people like chocolate in all its forms.

It is also easy to see why the Pacific coast likes custard pie. Fruit is very cheap and common there, and the housewife finds it more economical to bake her own fruit pies and stick the pieman for the kind which calls for eggs and cream at staple prices.

But why does Chicago also love the peach pie? The piemen of Boston say there must be something subtly coarse and unrefined about peaches.

These Boston pie founders, by the way, have a Hawthorne theory, which they submit very respectfully at this, the time of his centenary. Once, they say, as Nathaniel sat down to write, he stimulated imagination and refreshed his soul by a breakfast of apple pie.

As he balanced the first segment on the point of his knife, which was a custom in the literary cult of those days, his eye fell on the great "A" carved upon its breast after the fashion of housewives since the gods revealed pie to man—"A" for "apple." And in one sudden flash there leaped into the mind of N. Hawthorne his masterpiece, "The Scarlet Letter"—the story of a capital "A."

Thus it is not only a novel, but an allegory of pie and progress.

"There's another thing about pie," said a boss pie founder the other day. "That's the way Dutchmen can't make 'em.

"Almost every other kind of baking is in the hands of Germans, and I don't deny that they make good snails and pretzels and rye bread and sinkers. But they are no good on pies.

"And why? Because to make a thing right you've got to like it, and you never yet saw the Dutchman who could appreciate a good American pie. They don't like 'em, and can't make 'em right.

"It takes an American, who can understand the fine points of a good pie. Our bakers just live on pie—eat it all the time—and they're the healthiest gang of men you ever met.

"Why, out west they've got a pie baker that's a pugilist, and a mighty good one, and he trains on pie. That's right. If he doesn't get proud and shake the pie works, I expect to see him a champion.

"Pretty nearly every town in this country with more than 100,000 inhabitants has its pie factory with a monopoly of the local business. We've figured it out, and found that a town smaller than that won't support a factory. But of course the business goes best in New England, where they appreciate pie.

"And here's something funny. All you newspaper people seem to think there's something funny about pie. The alleged comic tramp always steals pies from the young housewife. If anyone gets soaked with anything it's always a pie.

"What's funnier about a pie than about a doughnut or a hunk of rye bread or a pretzel? But you fellows seem to think that pie will draw the laugh every time. Why? Honest, now, why?

"In Boston, where they've learned what pie, eaten in moderation, can do for the human body and brain, they don't josh it. No, sir. It's pie for breakfast right along with the champagne on the tables of all the best families in New England."

Didn't Know Yet.

Lady of the House (to cook, having discovered a policeman in the kitchen)—You told me when you came here that you had no sweetheart.

Cook—Yes, I told you so, and it's the truth, too.

"Who, then, is the policeman in the kitchen, if he is not your sweetheart?"

"He isn't my sweetheart, indeed he isn't. He's only trying to be, and I don't know whether he will succeed or not."—Stray Stories.

Another Advantage.

Merchant—I think I shall take a partner in this new business venture of mine. "Two heads are better than one."

Knox—Yes, and then when you fail you have somebody to blame it on.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

John Harkins, of Somerville, who gained some fame as pitcher a few years ago, has been spending a few days with friends in town.

Virgil Garvin, who formerly pitched a few games for the Plainfield A. C., but now of the New York Americans, spent Sunday in town with friends.

In the sixteen games in which Walton played for the Plainfield A. C., he had a total of eight hits. There were eight games in which he failed to get a hit.

John Harkins, of baseball fame, was at the Plainfield-Westfield game Saturday, and he became so enthusiastic that several times he expressed a desire to get in the contest.

The hits in the championship series between Plainfield and Westfield now stand sixty to fifty-two in favor of Plainfield. This only includes the nine games in the series.

On excellent authority, it is said, that Wiltse and Warner will be the battery for Somerville in the contest against Plainfield A. C., on Saturday and that Jack Dunn will play third base.

"Warry" MacLaughlin has finished playing for New London in the Connecticut State League, and has returned home. He will now play for the rest of the season with the Elizabeth Stars.

Manager George Johnston says that Charles Walton, formerly short-stop for the Plainfield A. C., resigned owing to ill-health. The "Kid" will probably play with the Dover team the balance of the season.

Louis Hartman, who played short-stop for Plainfield Saturday, is captain and short-stop for the Fordham College team. Robertson, who played first base for Westfield, also plays that position for the college team.

"Christy" Mathewson and Marshall, of New York Nationals, composed the battery for the Keyport team against Matawan, on Saturday. Their team won by a score of 2 to 0. One hit was made off "Matty's" pitching.

"Al." Farmer, catcher for the Plainfield A. C., has had all kinds of hard luck this season with his right hand, the fingers of which have been more or less crippled. This naturally interferes with his throwing to bases.

"The West Ends will close the season Saturday, with the Plainfield A. C., on Crescent Oval," says the Somerset Democrat. "There will be a few changes in the team and it is a safe bet that the West Ends will take the game from Plainfield by a good score."

"Pete" Oregan, left-fielder for the Plainfield A. C., being one of the original team organized early in the season, has a record of which he may be proud. He has played in twenty-four games, been at the bat ninety-seven times, made twenty-seven runs, thirty hits and five errors. Three of those errors were made when he was playing out of his position at second base in the first three games. His batting average is 300. There is no more popular member of the team than Oregan, his steady work and genial manner winning for him many friends.

The "straight tip" given out Saturday that Harry Westervelt would pitch for Plainfield A. C. against Westfield, was a good joke. Westervelt was in Manager Denman's office on Friday, when he called Manager Johnston on the telephone and asked for a job pitching on Saturday. Johnston told him he would let him know later. Ten minutes afterward Denman called Johnston on the 'phone and asked him who was going to pitch for him. Being suspicious, he replied that he thought Westervelt, whereupon Denman said he was just going to tell him about this pitcher. It is easy to see how the "straight tip" reached Plainfield. Manager Denman is very foxy.

FOOTBALL.

With all of last year's players present except one, the candidates for this year's Orange Field Club football eleven met last Friday night for practice. Over an hour was spent on the small Westervelt avenue grounds in going through drills in passing, and in spite of the rather uncertain light afforded by the flaring gasoline torches, but one fumble was made in the whole evening's work. The club still holds the championship of the State in its class and will be pleased to hear from any organization caring to dispute the title with them. The average of weight will be a trifle heavier this year than last and the general merit will also be high as there are over thirty candidates to choose from. There is a chance that a fair of some sort will be arranged for later in the season, although the club is in good shape financially. The same grounds used last year, those at the foot of Arlington avenue, have been secured for this year's home games and a suitable stand arranged to accommodate the spectators. Altogether a highly prosperous season is looked for.

TENNIS.

The tennis tournament for the club championship in women's singles was commenced on Saturday last. The club has put up a silver championship cup for the winner, and also a cup for the runner-up. Of the fourteen contestants there were left in the competition at the end of play on Saturday, Miss Sarah E. Schuyler and Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart, who will play off on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 24. The following were the scores: First round, Mrs. Weaver beat Miss F. Stuart, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3; Miss E. Goddard beat Miss R. Titus, 6-1, 6-0; Miss H. Martin beat Miss H. Hess by default; Miss H. Goddard beat Miss H. Brown, 6 0, 6-0; Miss Reinhart beat Miss A. Titus, 6-1, 6-1; Miss A. Barclay beat Miss E. L. Merrill, 7 5, 6-1. Second round, Miss Schuyler beat Mrs. Weaver, 6-1, 6-1; Miss Martin beat Miss E. Goddard, 6-2, 6-1; Miss Reinhart beat Miss H. Goddard, 8 6, 6-3; Miss Barclay beat Miss Ivins, 6 3, 6 2. Third round, Miss Schuyler beat Miss Martin, 8-6, 6-2; Miss Reinhart beat Miss Barclay, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. The tournament for the club championship in men's singles will begin Saturday, September 17, at 3 p. m. The club has provided a silver championship cup for the winner, and also a cup for the runner-up. Entries should be sent to T. M. Day, Jr., 740 Carlton avenue, by 6 p. m. on Friday, Sept. 16.

Held for Grand Jury.

A supplementary hearing was held before Justice Mosher this morning at the city court in the case of the assault committed by Michele Paoli against Sandy Woods in a fracas at an Italian shack near Scotch Plains two weeks ago. In a fit of rage following a quarrel that Sunday afternoon, Paoli struck Woods with a heavy ball, inflicting severe scalp wounds which have kept Woods under a physician's care since. Matthew Way acted as interpreter in the court proceedings, which were witnessed by a large crowd of Italians. Woods gave his testimony before the judge with head bandaged and looking weak and ill. Dr. Westcott, his physician, was present at the hearing. The State's examination was conducted by Francis J. Blatz, Esq.

At the request of William G. De Mesa, Esq., Paoli's counsel, the prisoner's examination was waived. Justice Mosher imposed a bail of $300 to await action of the Grand Jury. The bail was furnished by Joseph Putrucci, a neighbor.

Fred Zimmer, of the Plainfield Auto Garage, has returned to his position after spending several days with relatives in Newark.

Julius Stiger, of Brooklyn, has taken a position at the Standard Surgical Instrument Company's plant. Mr. Stiger has removed here with his family.

Orders were issued last week directing the great Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona, Pa., Pittsburg and West Philadelphia to go on full time, fifty-five hours a week, with half holiday Saturdays. These orders will benefit fully 20,000 men.

The Macbeth, Evans Lamp Chimney Company, at Marion, Ind., locked out its 800 employes Tuesday, and began preparations to reopen the factory without discrimination against non-union labor. A similar course is to be pursued at the other factories of this company.

A contract for 7,500 tons of the finest grade of nickel steel plates was secured by the Carnegie Steel Company from agents of the Japanese Government. This order confirms the report that Japan is about to begin the construction of battleships at her own dockyards. Hitherto she has constructed only cruisers. Already the largest naval guns are made at Osaka. This order will keep two of the big mills busy for three months.

The many friends of Fred Williams, recently of the Aluminum Press Company's plant, will be pleased to learn that he has been promoted to general foreman at the Plainfield Auto Garage. Mr. Williams came to this city a year ago, from Jamaica, Long Island, to take a position as "road man" for the Manganese Steel Safe Company. He also drove O. T. Waring's large Searchmont touring car. Mr. Williams' new position went into effect yesterday.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

Farmer-Orator's Fall.

Farmer Orator Martine's fall from a trolley car was the result, perhaps, of the shock of hearing that the Democrats had abandoned Plainfield.—Newark Evening News.

LIGHT VOTE AT PRIMARIES

Democrats in Several Wards Make Some Additions to Nominations.

DETAILED RESULTS

In the Fourth Ward Only Do the Democrats Make Any Real Show of a Contest for Local Offices.

So quiet were the primaries in this city yesterday and so light was the vote, that a majority of the voters paid little or no attention to the matter. The members of the election board had so little to do that it was difficult for them to keep busy. Never before have the Democrats displayed such disinterestedness. Not as many as twenty-five votes were polled in any one ward for the ticket, while in many as few as one and two ballots were cast for the Democratic nominee.

In the Democratic primary there were a few nominations made yesterday. John D. McAleer was a candidate for delegate to the county and city convention and for member of the Common Council from the Second ward. From the same ward Joseph Harrigan received one vote for member of Common Council and L. B. Skillman for Justice of the Peace received one vote in the First district. In the Second district of the First ward, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., received one vote for member of Common Council. In the Second ward Herbert Stover received two votes in the First district for member of county committee, and in the Fourth ward, Elmore D. Moffett for Justice of the Peace, and Charles Westerfield for constable, each received two votes from the First district. In the Fourth ward, only a regular Democratic nominee for Common Council was named previous to the primaries.

WEST ENDS GET WADDLE

Philadelphia Americans Battery Secured by Somerville.

BACKING THEIR TEAM

Visitors to Bring a Great Crowd of Rooters Saturday Who Will Put Up the Coin.

It is understood from a rumor from Somerville way that the celebrated and eccentric "Rube" Waddell and his regular catcher, Schreckenghost, will form the battery for the West Ends in the game at Plainfield, Saturday, with the Plainfield A. C. Manager Cawley, after casting about among many teams, managed to get this famous battery from the Philadelphia Athletics in the American League. Waddell holds the strike-out record for the season, having sent more men back to the bench by this route than any other pitcher in both big leagues.

The balance of the Somerville nine, it is said, will remain about the same as it was in last Saturday's game with the Flemingtons, when McDonald and Koons, of the Saugerties team, of the Hudson River League, played first and third, respectively, in place of Baldwin and Bradley, who were fired by the management. After the second Clinton game several others were threatened with release if they did not show up with the goods, Flannery, Enright and Klett, being the trio, but Saturday they did good work in the 9 to 0 defeat of Flemington and were granted another chance.

One of the greatest crowd of rooters that has ever followed a ball team from Somerville will go to Plainfield Saturday to root. It is expected that not less than 1,000 people will make the journey by steam and trolley cars. There will be plenty of money among Somerville backers. It is stated that L. C. Mack, the old manager of the West Ends, who has no love for Plainfield even yet, has $500 up on the new West Ends and several thousand more ready for takers.

SOMERSET CO. BRIDGES

Freeholders Agree Upon $47,000 for Structures.

THE ANNUAL BUDGET

Yearly Estimate for County Expenses $120,000—That Codington Avenue Bridge.

There was aplenty doing at the regular monthly meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders in the Court House at Somerville yesterday. All the members were in attendance.

The members reported the following as the probable cost of bridges in the respective townships and boroughs for the current year: Bedminster, $5,000; Bernard, $5,500; Bridgewater, $5,000; Branchburg, $1,800; Franklin, $1,500; North Plainfield, township, $2,200; North Plainfield borough, $2,500; Warren, $2,600. Total, $34,600.

The annual appropriation was fixed at $120,000 and the County Collector was authorized to borrow $20,000.

A petition for a larger bridge in North Plainfield at the corner of Somerset street and Codington avenue, was filed. The Board will meet there Sept. 20 at 11 o'clock to investigate the matter and decide.

Other business—not of an important nature—was transacted. The Board adjourned to meet Friday at 11:30 o'clock to examine the macadam road at Blazure's Corner.

'PLAINS PRIMARIES.

Only Thirty-Five Cast in Fanwood Township for Delegates to Various Conventions.

Although the total registration in Fanwood township is 309, only thirty-five votes were cast at the primaries yesterday, seventeen of these being Democratic. The Democrats elected Theodore Bruckman as delegate to the State and county conventions and Charles H. French to the Congressional convention. Edward V. Goodman and W. D. Johnston were elected county delegates by the Republicans and Charles Ball and L. B. Coddington as Congressional delegates. George Ball will go to the State convention and Edward Hand will be a member of the county committee.

In Scotch Plains William R. Stanbury was chosen as delegate to all Democratic conventions and the Republicans elected their regular ticket. Dr. Westcott will remain a member of the Republican county committee.

TAX RATE NO HIGHER

Likely to Remain at $2.52 in Plainfield for Another Year.

VALUATION $9,742,300

County Tax Rate to be .4678 and State School Rate .1698.

The Union County Board of Assessors met at Elizabeth, yesterday, to go over the county valuations and fix the county and State school rates. Plainfield was represented by its full Board of Assessors.

The report from this city showed valuations to be as follows:

Real estate, $8,374,200; personal, $1,380,900; deductions, $12,800; total, $9,742,300.

The valuations by wards are as follows:

First—$1,970,800; Second—$2,802,500; Third—$2,651,900; Fourth, $2,317,100. Last year the total valuation was $9,333,000, making an increase of $409,000 in real and personal property for this year. The report also shows that in the First wrad there are 107 dogs and 796 polls; Second ward, 183 and 983 polls; Third ward, 122 dogs and 778 polls; Fourth ward, 89 dogs and 1,597 polls, a total of 500 dogs and 4,103 polls.

The local board of assessors will meet tonight or tomorrow to fix Plainfield's rate. It is almost assured that it will be no higher than last year, $2.52, and it is hoped to make it less.

The county rate his year will be .4678, and the State school tax rate, .1698, a total of .6376.

PLAINFIELD TO FACE THE NEW YORK NATIONALS

JERSEY CITY EASTEAN LEAGUE TEAM ALSO TO PLAY A GAME HERE.

Manager George H. Johnston, of the Plainfield A. C., has completed arrangements for the appearance of the New York Nationals on Crescent Oval on Saturday, October 15, and according to the terms "Christy" Mathewson will pitch for the big leagues and Bowerman will probably catch. This will be one of the strongest attractions of the season, as there are a great many local fans who have never seen the New Yorks play and it will be a treat to see Matty, Bowerman, Dan. McGann, Gilbert, Dahlen, Brown, Bresnahan and "Sandow" Mertes, who have been playing championship ball, on the local diamond. Mr. Johnston is planning to give the leaguers a good fight and he will have a strong man in the box against them.

Another treat is in store for the local cranks. Arrangements have about been completed to have the Jersey City Eastern League team meet the Plainfield A. C., here. The date for this game will be announced within a short time. These contests will close the baseball season in this city. Manager Johnston, notwithstanding the many difficulties confronting him throughout the season, has given the fans good ball, many of the games being equal to those seen in the big leagues. There is a strong opinion that he should have entire control of the team, many believing that better results would follow the adoption of such a plan.

In Recorder's Court.

Recorder Dond heard three complaints preferred by Patrolman Smalley against "Larry" Wallace, the tough who, while resisting arrest Monday night, inflicted upon the officer, painful and perhaps severe injury. Wallace was charged with being drunk, causing a disturbance and resisting and assaulting an officer. The Recorder sentenced him to a fine of $20 and imprisonment for seven days on each account. Wallace has not the cash wherewith to settle up.

REPENT THEIR MARRIAGE

Mrs. Henry C. Brose Now Seeks a Divorce.

SHE IS BUT FIFTEEN

Seven Months After Secret Wedding Ceremony Wife Wants Bonds Dissolved.

Proceedings for annulment of the marriage were commenced before Vice-Chancellor Bergen, of Elizabeth, in the Council chamber of this city, yesterday, when Mrs. Henry C. Brose, formerly Miss Nellie Williams, of East Fifth street, who has been for seven months the legal wife of Henry C. Brose, of Vine street. Mrs. Brose is a daughter of J. J. Williams, and is said to be but fifteen years of age.

In the testimony given at the hearing yesterday, Mrs. Brose claimed that she was forced into the marriage. The ceremony, which took place secretly on February 4, was performed by Justice Joseph Clark, at Scotch Plains. At that time, both the young persons willingly answered the legal questions and the bride seemed a most willing and happy party in the contract. The witnesses were members of Justice Clark's family. At the time of the ceremony, Miss Williams was but fifteen years of age. Testimony revealed the fact that the two have not seen each other since the match.

When seen this morning about the matter, Henry C. Brose said: "The story about my making threats to the girl is entirely untrue. Further than this, I don't care to say anything for publication at present." Mr. Brose would not state his own age but he appears to be about 19.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES SHOW DECIDED CHANGES

GOAL FROM THE FIELD TO COUNT FOUR AGAIN INSTEAD OF FIVE.

Important changes have been made in the football rules for 1904 and for the benefit of local lovers of the game they are given here in brief.

Instead of seven men in the line of scrimmage between the twenty-five-yard lines there must be six men in the line in every part of the field.

When there are only six men in the line of scrimmage the additional man in the back field must be stationed outside of either extremity of the line.

Goals from field, no matter how made, shall count four instead of five points.

The quarter-back or the first man receiving the ball from the center may run with it in any part of the field instead of only between the twenty-five-yard lines providing he go five yards outside of center.

The umpire and referees shall have distinctive signals.

When the umpire signals for a penalty the play may continue until the ball is dead, when the referee shall inflict the penalty. The side offended against may take either the penalty or the ground gained by the play.

When one side kicks out of bounds twice in succession on a touchdown or a safety the ball shall go to the opposing side on the thirty-five instead of the twenty-five-yard line.

PRIMARIES IN BOROUGH

Republicans Fail to Select State Convention Delegates.

BUT LITTLE INTEREST

Some Ballots Thrown Out As Worthless—The Entire Vote Cast.

While the registry lists in the borough did not suffer by reason of lack of interest yesterday, nearly 700 voters complying with the law requiring them to register, the vote in the primary elections was very light indeed. In fact the general feeling was that the men named on the primary tickets of both parties would conscientiously carry out the wishes of those whom they are to represent, so that no opposition was possible and the balloting took on the character of a mere form

So light was the vote in the First district, that out of 689 voters named on the registry list, but twenty-two cast ballots for the delegates to the State, congressional and county conventions. These twenty-two were evenly divided, the Democratic delegates and those to the Republican convention each receiving in this district eleven votes.

In the Second district, however, more than twice this number availed themselves of the opportunity to affirm the nominations for delegates. The total of ballots cast in this district was fifty-three, twenty-two Democrats and thirty-one Republicans voting.

Reduced, the results are as follows: Delegate to Democratic State Convention, Alonzo D. Townley, total vote, 33; for delegates to Democratic Congressional Convention, Andrew Love, Sr., 33; W. B. Bennett, 33, and Jacob Voehl, 33. For delegates to Democratic County Convention, W. J. Conroy, 33; John T. Case, 33, and Herman Klinsman, 31.

For delegate to Republican Congressional Convention, Charles Place, 41; and for delegates to Republican County Convention, Julius J. Stahl, Justus H. Cooley, John E. Schenck, Andrew Lutkins, Albert Runyon and Charles J. McNabb, each 41 votes.

Someone with a mind of his own supplied his Republican ballot with what was lacking on all the rest, a delegate to the Republican State Convention. This addition, which was made in favor of W. W. Howland, caused the ballot bearing it to be cast out as worthless. A similar fate met one of the Democratic ballots which favored Stonewall Jackson as a delegate to both the Congressional and County Conventions. Andrew Love, Sr., Congressional delegate, and Herman Klinsman, county delegate, were the men at whose expense this change was made. This ballot and one other on which Klinsman was scratched, afforded the only instances of cutting, which occurred.

Edgar, has recently constructed the lighting and power plant and also an electric railroad. Mr. Potter will be connected with the running of the electric railroad. Mrs. Potter will probably go to El Paso about November 1, providing Mr. Potter likes the climate and his position.

William M. Stillman, Esq., at his own expense, is making a connection from his new building on Madison avenue to the sanitary sewer in Front street. He recently requested the Common Council to do this work, but that body could not take the matter up at present. Mr. Stillman hopes that the city may reimburse him later on.

A World's Wonder.

We often hear of the seven wonders, though in these times there are perhaps one hundred times that number, and perhaps the most popular wonder region in this vicinity is Mauch Chunk. Mauch Chunk is high up in the Pennsylvania mountains, and the several peaks have wide outlooks in every direction. A main attraction is the Switchback Railroad, the road forms an eighteen mile loop over and around the mountains, and is a very novel engineering feat. The first incline extends up Mount Pisgah to a height of 1370 feet above tide water. The car then bowls along a decline for several miles only to reach the base of another mountain which is climbed to a height of 1530 feet above tide water. The descent to the home stretch lies through a beautiful valley, and when the journey is finished the tourist is rather anxious for a renewal of the experience. On September 18, 1904, the New Jersey Central is to run a popular priced excursion to Mauch Chunk, the rate for the round trip to be $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk early in the day, and as the return trip does not leave the Mountain City until 5:40 p. m., there is plenty of time for exploring the charms of Mauch Chunk.

AMONG MEN IN THE SHOPS

SEEN AND HEARD IN PLAINFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

General Manager Jenks, of the steel hoop department of the Carnegie Steel Company, at Youngstown, O., gave notice that his company would resist to the last the Amalgamated Association of Steel Workers, whose members are on strike at Warren, Girard and Youngstown, for higher wages. Mr. Jenks says that business conditions do not warrant the high wage scale paid for the last two years and that a flexible wage scale was imperative.

President Donnelly, of the Amalgamated Butchers and Meat Cutters' Workmen, announced Friday at Chicago that the strike of his union and the allied trades against the Beef Trust, which began July 12, involving over 50,000 men, with a loss of over $3,000,000 in wages, was at an end, without gaining the desired concessions from the packers. Donnelly accepted defeat rather than the destruction of his organization, and his men will now apply for their old positions without discrimination on account of union membership. Earlier in the week the referendum vote had been to continue the strike, but the decision of the New York butchers to give up the contest had foreshadowed the end.

LITERARY.

"The Last of Custer" is the stirring chapter with which Cyrus Townsend Brady continues his "Indian Fights and Fighters" series in the September Pearson's. In itself the article is a complete history of the most gallant stand and most frightful massacre in the annals of our regular army. Dr. Brady says: "There, two days after the fight, the gallant band was found annihilated. The men had been stripped and most of them mutilated. Custer's body was shot in two places, in the side and in the temple. It was not scalped or mutilated."—Pearson's.

Adeline Knapp, whose work is most diverse, including history, travel, household art and fiction, is the author of a story announced for the October Red Book under the name of "The Bullet." It is a peculiar creation with a touch of the occult and a peculiar psychological experience as the motif. The scene is laid in the California marshes and the illustrations by William Schmedtgen depict the region as only that artist can do.—Red Book.

RUSSIANS ANXIOUS.

St. Petersburg Public Fears Kuropatkin Is Lost.

NO DEFINITE NEWS FROM WAR.

Its Place Taken by Wild Rumors. Possibility That Manchurian Chinese May Join Japanese Alarms Czar's Cabinet.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 14.—The continued delay in the receipt here of anything like a detailed official account either of the battle of Liaoyang or of the present situation at the front is proving more irritating to the public of St. Petersburg than any previous phase of the war and has given rise to numerous alarmist stories of the alleged precarious situation of General Kuropatkin's army. None of these stories, however, are traceable to any authentic source. The fact seems to be that military operations in the neighborhood of Mukden are almost suspended on account of the effect of the rains upon the roads.

There is no current news to record, while if General Kuropatkin has transmitted any full account of the recent great battle it has not been allowed to circulate. The persistent silence is doing more than anything else to discredit the Russian commander in chief in the eyes of the public, with whom he has heretofore been an almost deified hero.

Reports that the Chinese are making preparations to occupy conquered territory are creating some uneasiness, for China has been all along an uncertain quantity from which any development or complication might be expected. No one knows precisely what pressure, racial or political, Japan may be able to bring to bear upon the great, silent empire.

The logical belief always has been that China would endeavor to the utmost to refrain from taking side in the present conflict in order that she might be in a position to make the best terms possible with the ultimate victor, but it is realized that a continued Japanese advance into the heart of Manchuria might exert a powerful influence upon both the Chinese peasantry and the nearly ill controlled regular troops, which the weak central government at Peking might find it difficult to curb, thereby precipitating serious complications upon the scene of actual hostilities.

There have been no developments here regarding the case of the Russian transport Lena in the harbor of San Francisco.

LENA'S BOILERS INSPECTED.

Captain Bulger Finds Them In Need of Repairs.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—Acting under instructions from Collector of the Port Stratton, Captain J. K. Bulger, United States inspector of hulls and boilers, inspected the boilers of the Russian transport Lena. It is understood that he found them in need of repairs and recommended that the commander of the vessel be given time enough to put them in seaworthy condition. Collector Stratton immediately reported to Washington the observations of the inspector, giving them his official approval.

Inspector Bulger was accompanied on board the Lena by Paul Kesakevitch, the Russian consul at this port.

Both the Russian and Japanese consuls held consultations with Collector Stratton, but nothing of what transpired has been given out.

The collector has forwarded to Washington full reports of what he has done in the matter. The impression prevails among those best informed that the Lena will be dismantled and remain here until the end of the war. She is still guarded by several vessels of the United States navy.

Zassoulitch Safe.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 14.—The sensational report circulated by the London Morning Post to the effect that General Zassoulitch's corps has been captured and Zassoulitch wounded proves to be as false as the majority of the war rumors emanating from the British papers. Authoritative denial is given that report as well as various others originating in the British and European press, particularly the London Daily Mail's statement that General Linevitch had marched into eastern Korea and cut Kuroki's communications with Fengwangcheng.

Baltic Fleet's Sailing Deferred.

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—The Tageblatt's St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that the departure of the Baltic squadron has at the last moment been deferred for several days, apparently to await news from the far east. The fleet will remain for the present at Reval.

Eagles In Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14.—The opening business session of the fifth national convention of the fraternal order of Eagles convened at 2:15 o'clock, and of the officers there was but a single absentee, he being Hon. T. A. Bell of Napa, Cal., one of the grand trustees. Seven hundred new grand aerie members were admitted, and the attendance was 1,000.

A $50,000 Rockefeller Gift.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 14.—John D. Rockefeller has made an additional gift of $50,000 to the Young Women's Christian association of this city, to be added to the fund for the erection of a new building. Mr. Rockefeller subscribed $50,000 to the fund several months ago, thus making the total amount given by him toward the project $100,000.

REPUBLICANS MEET.

New York State Convention In Session at Saratoga.

HIGGINS LEADS FOR GOVERNOR.

Poll of Delegates Shows 709 Out of 974 For Western New Yorker Against 265 For Woodruff. Platt and Odell at Odds.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The Republican state convention was called to order at noon, with the gubernatorial nomination still in doubt.

Governor Odell's friends claim he is in control of the situation and can cause the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Higgins. Senator Platt and Mr. Woodruff and his friends, however, are very much in earnest and are urging his claims with great insistence, determined, as they now declare, that his name shall be presented to the convention.

A poll of the delegates made up on the basis of the reports received by Governor Odell out of a total of 974 shows 709 votes for Higgins and 265 for Woodruff.

Senator Platt denied with great emphasis a report which was current to the effect that he had admitted the probability of Higgins' nomination and repeated his belief that Woodruff's name would go to the convention and that he would be nominated.

The name of Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks will not be presented to the convention.

The lieutenant governorship and the nominations for attorney general and state treasurer are unsettled. They involve the geographical question and depend to a considerable extent upon the gubernatorial nomination.

The New York county delegation has formally indorsed former Judge Julius Thayer of the New York court of special sessions for the nomination for attorney general.

There is no change in the plan to renominate Secretary of State John F. O'Brien of Clinton, Comptroller Otto Kelsey of Livingston and State Engineer and Surveyor Henry A. Van Alstyne of Columbia.

PARKER GOING TO NEW YORK.

The Reason For His Leaving Rosemount Not Made Public.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Judge Parker expects to go to New York tomorrow and to return on Friday. No announcement has been made as to the arrangements for the trip, and Judge Parker's reason for leaving Rosemount was not made known at this time. It is understood that he will take apartments at some New York hotel and confer with political friends.

For several days it has been rumored that the judge was anticipating a visit to New York to call on the members of the national committee and other managers of the campaign. It was said also that he might remain there and take a hand in the running of the campaign for the purpose of bringing about more harmonious relations between the men at headquarters, but it is believed here that the candidate, instead of straightening out real or imaginary differences, has under consideration important plans of campaigning intended to change completely the working methods in some sections. Judge Parker's trip to New York Thursday will be the first visit of a political character since his nomination.

Results of the Maine election are gratifying to the judge and his political friends. The candidate has not discussed the election nor commented for publication on the returns, but those who have talked with him say he is greatly pleased at the largely increased Democratic vote and feels that there was a sentiment displayed there which may be expected to develop throughout the country and show in more material form in doubtful states.

Davis Letter of Acceptance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Former Senator Henry G. Davis has completed the first draft of his letter accepting the Democratic nomination for the vice presidency. Both Mr. Davis and Senator Gorman are at the Fifth Avenue hotel, and work on the letter has progressed rapidly since their arrival. No callers have been allowed to disturb the task, although Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee and Chairman Sheehan of the executive committee of that organization and former Senator C. A. Towne have been consulted regarding the document.

Bolting Republican Convention Off.

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—The committee in charge of the bolting primary reform Republican convention, which was to have been held at Grand Rapids, has called the convention off. Most of the leaders of the movement are throwing their influence to W. I. Ferris of Big Rapids, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Mad Dog Scare In Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Health Officer Crum has appealed to the state department of health for assistance in preventing the spread of rabies in this city. Two weeks ago a mad dog bit a number of dogs, and Dr. Law of Cornell Veterinary college announced that three of the animals had developed rabies. The city council has ordered all dogs muzzled.

Uruguayan Rebel Chief Dead.

BUENOS AYRES, Sept. 14.—Official confirmation has been received here of the report of the death of General Aparicio Saravia, the chief of the Uruguayan revolutionists. The revolutionary forces continue to advance toward the Brazilian border.

COLON'S POPULATION

It Is Now 8,000 and Is Rapidly Growing.

CITY IN A HORRIBLE CONDITION.

Absolutely No Attention Paid to Sanitation—Regeneration a Task of Magnitude—Gorgas' War on Mosquitoes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—A report received by the public health and marine hospital service from Chief Sanitary Officer Gorgas at Colon says that the census of Colon now being computed will show a population of from 7,500 to 8,000. The population is steadily increasing owing to the arrival of Jamaican and other West Indian negroes on every steamer from Jamaica and the South and Central American coasts. The report says that these immigrants are lured to the isthmus of Panama by the prospect of work on the canal and sounds a note of warning that it will be a year or more before any large number of laborers will be needed. The newcomers are found to be easy victims of malarial fever.

The report says that the permanent improvement of Colon will be an engineering feat of some magnitude; that at this season the greater part of the town is a morass, "to which is added the accumulation of rubbish and filth of a population utterly indifferent to ordinary cleanliness." Some sections of the town, according to competent engineers, would have to be filled ten feet to bring the level to only three feet above tide water. The better part of the town, except the railroad property along the water front, is officially pronounced as "bad enough, with the back yards under water, the pools of stagnant slime under the floors of even the best buildings and the filthy cesspools, while those sections where the majority of the negro and native laborers live in miserable shacks built on stilts above the swamp defy description."

The report refers to the crusade against the mosquito on the isthmus and adds: "I have been informed that one of the worst localities is Culebra, where the actual work of excavating is going on, and that malarial fever is particularly prevalent among the laborers there. Here the larvae are found in all the pools and puddles on the terraces in the cut, a very significant fact when the amount of excavating to be done is considered."

First Court In Canal Zone.

COLON, Sept. 14.—Judge Osceola Kyle opened the first American court in the Panama canal zone. Prosecuting Attorney J. Marbourg Keedy was at his post, and G. R. Shanton, captain of police of the zone, acted as marshal. The former railway station at Colon has been converted into a courthouse. Judge Kyle will preside next at Ancon.

Grand Circuit Jockey Disqualified.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 14.—Secretary Albert H. Moone of the grand circuit announced that R. A. Smith had been disqualified from racing for the balance of the season by the stewards of the grand circuit. This action is taken for the alleged laying up of the first two heats of the Roger Williams trotting stake with the California mare Sweet Marie on Aug. 31 at Narragansett park. A. P. McDonald was substituted for Smith and won the race, which was the fastest five heat race ever trotted. Sweet Marie is not barred. Smith was suspended at the end of the racing here and was subsequently reinstated.

Slocum Sufferer Lost.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Edward Ullman, who lost his entire family, consisting of his wife, child and mother-in-law, in the Slocum disaster, has been reported to the police as missing since Sept. 10. He is described as forty-two, five feet seven inches tall, light complexioned, gray hair, sandy mustache, gray eyes and was dressed in a black suit and derby.

Laid His Head on Trolley Track.

SPENCER, Mass., Sept. 14.—A trolley car on the Warren, Brookfield and Spencer street railway struck Joseph Mayo, forty-eight years old, inflicting injuries from which he died in two hours. Mayo lay beside the track on Sumner hill, with his head near a rail. The car was going down a steep grade, and the motorman could not stop it.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 14, 1904.

There was but little interest taken in the primaries in this city yesterday by either party. Judging from the returns no one would dream that a year ago the Kean and Fowler forces were lined up against each other in battle array.

That Republican love-feast in North Plainfield appears not to have had any lasting effect. Already trouble is in the wind and it has caused a stir in the Grant Club. By the time election day comes, it is probable that the party in North Plainfield will be in its usual shape—defeating itself instead of the enemy.

Congressman William Sulzer, of New York, is a Jerseyman by birth, and may therefore be excused for having some little interest in New Jersey politics. But when he declares that New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia are absolutely sure to go Democratic next November, it proves that what little knewledge he ever acquired here has been completely buried under the mass of statesmanship accumulated while sitting in the shadow of Tammany Hall. Possibly Congressman Sulzer spoke before Vermont and Arkansas had announced the victories. —Newark News.

The outcome of the State convention at Atlantic City, called by the sore-beard element of the Democracy, on Saturday, was populism. The managers of the convention turned it over to Watson and left the selection of Presidential electors to a committee. Evidently the Democratic leaders concluded to let the convention go its way without interference, as a foil for the party. And if the movement shall assume no more importance than the convention indicates they decided wisely. The claim that the convention was encouraged by the Republican State committee and that the committee will furnish the money for the independent campaign, is, of course, absurb. The strategists of the State committee have better uses for the party funds than that, and they can perceive no tactical advantage in giving financial support to the commanders of an army in buckram.—Newark Advertiser.

SOMERSET COUNTY ASSESSORS HOLD AN IMPORTANT MEETING.

The Somerset County Board of Assessors met in the Court House, Somerville, yesterday, to fix the ratables for the ensuing year. William D. Vanderbeek, of Gladstone, as chairman, presided, and Frank T. Ross, of Somerville, was secretary.

It was decided that $120,000 must be raised this year in the county, the same as last year, but the county rate was reduced from 63 to 61. The county and State rate together will be about 78. Assessor Cooley, of the borough, could not announce the borough rate today, but he predicts that it will be a little less than last year's rate of $2 59.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow, accompanied by Health Inspector William Addis, personally removed the dead canine from West Front street and Grant avenue Monday afternoon. The matter was reported to Pine Yetman, who was employed by the city for this work, but he failed to do the work, and another man will be engaged hereafter. Yetman received word concerning the dog on Sunday, but paid no attention to it.

Miss Jennie Kyle, who lives on Park avenue near the old fair grounds, is the owner of three tame 'coons that are the wonder of all who see them on account of their docility and willingness to remain about the house when they could easily escape at almost any time. One of them will follow the members of the family anywhere, even to a distance from the home trotting at their heels like a dog and returning as willingly as he leaves. They play with a fox terrier as if they too were dogs and he seems to enjoy it.

Uproar at the chicken coops in the rear of the premises of W. A. Pinto, of West Eighth street early last Friday morning caused investigation by the gardener. A large chicken hawk was captured in the coop while trying to fly off with a chicken. The bird, an unusually large one, was killed and turned over to Frank Hedden to be stuffed. Only one chicken was killed.

Officials of the New Jersey Central have about decided to change the name of Asbury, N. J., which is on one of their lines, to Ludlow. The reason for this is that so many persons have confused the name with that of Asbury Park. This similarity in names recalls an incident where a funeral party starting from South Amboy for Verona on the Greenwood Lake road, found themselves at Evona on the New Jersey Central and at a great deal of trouble and expense finally reached their destination.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

A business meeting of the K. O. G. Club was held last night in the borough. The club members are preparing to open the social season with a series of monthly dances which will be held in the borough fire house.

Local lodges of Odd Fellows will combine to attend a District Deputy session of Jersey Odd Fellows to be held at Perth Amboy Tuesday, night, September 27. Visiting lodges from practically all parts of the State will be there, and the Perth Amboy committee in charge of the affair is making arrangements for the accommodation of upwards of a thousand lodgemen. A special programme has been arranged for the occasion and there will be speeches by prominent lodge officials of the State and of New York. At the regular business meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, Monday evening, a committee was elected to have charge of arrangements for the lodge's trip from this city. The men appointed were S. H. Schlief, John Becker and Andrew J. Stiglitz. Queen City lodgemen will appoint a similar committee tomorrow evening. It is probable that the lodges will make arrangements for attending in a body on special trolley cars.

OUR STRAWBERRIES

HISTORY OF THIS DELICIOUS AMERICAN GARDEN FRUIT.

It Has Been in Cultivation for Nearly Two Hundred Years — Originally It Was a Native of Chili.

The story of the origin and evolution of the garden strawberry forms a chapter in the history of economic plants which is of more than ordinary interest to American horticulturists. Although this fruit has been in cultivation nearly 250 years, its origin and history were obscure until within the last decade. Botanists passed the garden strawberry and left it without a name. Horticulturists contented themselves with giving the plant its generic name, Fragaria. During the early '90's Bailey interested himself in the history and development of many of the garden plants, among which he included the strawberry, and as a result of his studies the cultivated strawberry has been assigned to a well-recognized botanical species, Fragaria chiloensis.

This plant reached Europe about the year 1712, but attracted little attention and made little progress until about 1750 or 1760, when another berry, having a pleasant, pineapple-like aroma, found its way into Europe under the name of Pine or Pine Strawberry. This strain produced cultural varieties rapidly and soon gained a wide distribution, gradually replacing sorts previously in cultivation which had come from the scarlet class of North America, the parents of which were Fragaria virginiana and the ever-bearing type, Fragaria vesca, which is native to Europe.

During early colonial days the wild strawberries of the field were abundant and furnished a much-prized article of diet. The plants were transplanted to the garden and gave fruits of increased size, but only a few commercial varieties resulted. Hovey, who may be considered the father of the American strawberry industry, used these native plants along with imported plants of the pine type as the foundation of a number of crosses, which resulted in the production of two varieties, the Hovey and the Boston pine. Owing to the loss of records the true parentage of these could never be determined. It was Mr. Hovey's opinion that the Hovey sprang from a cross of mulberry and Keen's seedling, both of the pine type. The Hovey did for the strawberry what the Cape grape did for viticulture. It formed the main nucleus for the development of commercial sorts, although the scarlet type was long held in high esteem.

The garden strawberries of this country have come chiefly from the so-called pine type of berries, which has been proved beyond question to have sprung from Fragaria chiloensis, a plant originally brought to Europe from Chili, but which is now known to be native to the western mountain regions of both North and South America. The first strawberries to be brought under cultivation, however, were those of eastern North America, which belong to the scarlet class, the species being known to botanists as Fragaria virginiana. This class, as has been stated, has contributed only sparingly to our present variety list. The wild berry of Europe, which has always been held in more or less esteem because of its ever-bearing tendencies, has likewise contributed only meagerly to the garden sorts of its native countries and none whatever to the American list. The burden of the industry rests upon the Chilian plant.

The garden strawberry is an American product. It adapts itself to a wider range of latitude and to greater extremes in environment than any other cultivated fruit. It is universally liked and is cosmopolitan in its adaptations.

Tree with a Bad Temper.

In Australia is a species of acacia known as the "angry tree." It reaches the height of 90 feet, after a rapid growth, and in outward appearance somewhat resembles a gigantic century plant. When the sun sets the leaves fold up and the tender twigs coil tightly, and if the shoots are handled the leaves rustle and move uneasily for a time. If this queer plant is removed from one soil to another, it seems angry, and the leaves stand out in all directions for an hour or two.

Honeymoon Trip in Balloon.

A young lady eager to rise in the world may find an opportunity by answering the following advertisement, which recently appeared in the Zurich Gazette: "An Austrain officer of the balloon section wishes to marry a lady who will have the courage to make her honeymoon voyage with him in a balloon." Then followed an address in Vienna.

AFRICANDER WINS.

Last Year's Suburban Handicap Victor Takes Cup Preliminary.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Africander, last year's Suburban handicap winner, won the Cup Preliminary, one and a half miles, at Brighton Beach. He was quoted at the good price of 20 to 1, but had to be hard ridden at the end to win by a head from McChesney. Eugenia Burch was third, half a length away. The time, 2 minutes 34 seconds, was slow. The Cup Preliminary is a weight for age exclusively for horses three years old and upward nominated for the Brighton cup, two and a quarter miles, which is run Saturday, the last day of the meeting. Hermis won this race last year.

The Pickett was a well played first choice at 7 to 5, with McChesney next at 5 to 2. Africander was an outsider.

The summaries:

First Race—Memphis, 30 to 1, first; Phantom, 6 to 1, second; Walter Pansy, 7 to 1, third. Time, 1 minute 14 seconds.

Second Race—First Mason, 8 to 5, first; Ormonde's Right, 5 to 2, second; Gay Boy, 10 to 1, third. Time, 1 minute 45 2-5 seconds.

Third Race—Belle Strome, 11 to 20, first; Dandelion, 3 to 5, second; Pasadena, 5 to 1, third. Time, 1 minute 12 seconds.

Fourth Race—Africander, 20 to 1, first; McChesney, 3 to 2, second; Eugenia Burch, 7 to 1, third. Time, 2 minues 34 seconds.

Fifth Race—Dick Bernard, 3 to 1, first; Canteen, 6 to 1, second; Stolen Moments, 5 to 1, third. Time, 1 minute 45 3-5 seconds.

Sixth Race—Fancy Dress first, Long Days second, Lucy Young third.

New York Wins McAlpin Trophy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The weather conditions of the second day of the fall rifle, carbine, pistol and revolver meeting at the Creedmoor range were unfavorable, but the military marksmen worked with vim until dusk. The principal event of the programme for the day and the only one in which a conclusion was reached was the McAlpin trophy match, which was won by the team representing the state of New York. It was open to teams of eight from the United States army, United States navy, United States marine corps, the national guard or uniformed militia or naval militia of the several states and territories and the District of Columbia and from any foreign government.

Hudson Wins Three Readville Races.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 14.—All four of the races in the second day of the autumn meeting at the Readville track went extra heats, and the last one remained unfinished. Scott Hudson was the most successful driver of the day, taking two firsts and getting a place in a second event. In the 2:21 trot, driving Mainland, he had difficulty in getting through the bunch in the home stretch, while in the third heat Mainland broke at the seven-eighths pole. He won the other heats, however, easily. In the 2:17 pace he held Nancy H. back until after the third heat, and then he had things all his own way. Caspian took the 2:06 trotting event after a series of close heats.

Matinee Races at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 14.—The inter-city matinee races at Brunot's island attracted a large crowd and proved of greater interest than any event of the kind since the days of the grand circuit in Pittsburg. Some of the best matinee horses in the country, driven by their owners, were on the card, and the track record was broken by Sadie Mack in the free-for-all trot, making the mile in 2:08½. The former record was 2:09¾. C. K. G. Billings rode Charlie Mac an exhibition mile under saddle in 2:15½, which is within three-fourths of a second of the world's record. Of the eight events Pittsburg horses won four, Cleveland three and New York one.

Conkling Wins at Kenilworth.

BUFFALO, Sept. 14.—H. T. Griffin's good three-year-old Conkling took the measure of a good field of old campaigners in the one and one-quarter mile race at Kenilworth and won as he pleased. Weather fine; track fast.

THE MORNING TOILET.

It Will Be of Checked Tweed or Broadcloth.

The smart morning toilet will be of checked tweed as well as of a rather heavy broadcloth. The coat de rigueur for this mode is of the long double breasted variety, with gigot or rather narrow coat shaped sleeves.

White and gray felt sailors with very broad crowns trimmed with bands of crepe de chine are shown for morning wear. One model is trimmed with bands of burnt orange velvet, with a fancy buckle at the side and a close drapery of tambour lace on the brim. Another new hat model of moderate size is in blue felt and round in shape, with the brim slightly upturned. Blue coq feathers curling outward encircle the crown.

Tailor made suits for the fall as well as coats to be worn while driving or automobiling will be made of shantung pongee in the natural or dyed shades. The tan and ecru tones are delightfully cool in appearance, but later on will be too "summery," so blotting paper—blue, geranium, green and cocoa brown—will prove more popular as the season advances. Trimmings of fine satin faced cloth or the thinnest suede imaginable make a strong contrast to the rough surface of the fabric. If lace is employed it is dyed to match the gown, while button molds, covered with pongee and embroidered in spiders with coarse silks, make effective trimmings.

A very chic French hat to wear with a blue serge is in a mixture of plaited straw and felt of Robespierre shape, the crown simply trimmed with a fold of dark blue velvet and a bright orange paradise plume at the side.

Examine the pretty costume pictured and see how easy it is to copy. The double skirt is trimmed with arabesques of cut-out cloth. A tan gown of this description would be smart carried out with the cutwork of leaf green.

FALL FASHION HINTS.

Wedding Finery and Some Smart Evening Gowns.

Couturieres this fall insist upon the adoption of the Henri II. narrow sleeves and long basques.

riod. A beautiful wedding frock which will appeal to the very youthful wearer is of softest white satin veiled with priceless lace falling from an empiecement of the same lace studded with tiny seed pearls.

One of the evening toilets in a recently created trousseau is of embroidered cream mousseline de soie made with a Louis XVI. bodice finished with quaint little paste buttons in the center of old rose choux. A scarf of old Venice lace draped around the shoulders forms the elbow sleeves. The skirt is very full and trimmed with an entredeux of point de venise outlined with old embroidery.

Dark Lincoln green will be a novel feature among the braided autumn gowns, and bright red and dark red will have a short run of popularity.

The dainty bodice pictured is of white crepe de chine. The very blouse effect hangs from a lace yoke and is fulled into a deep girdle of white suede. The caught up outer skirt will have a ruffle of lace as a f[illegible]

OUR LAKE COUNTRY

IT IS BECOMING A GREAT SUMMER PLEASURE RESORT.

Wealth and Fashion May Now Be Found Spending Their Vacation Time Away from the Sea Coast.

When mention is made of the English lake country, the idea presented is sufficiently definite, but to speak of the lake country of "these United States" sets one to wondering whether reference is made to the Maine woods, Floridian waters, or to the region of the great lakes.

In this brief article we shall speak only of the latter locality, certainly a territory of sufficient extent to merit exclusive consideration. And to-day the beautiful country is receiving the consideration its due. To-day, wealthy residents of the middle west do not, as formerly, seek their summer relaxation in distant eastern seaboard, in the White mountains, or the Catskills. No, to-day the western lake country is appreciated, and on the shores of the lakes, the big, widely known ones and the smaller but no less beautiful, there are being builded great country places of permanence of aspect and beauty of appearance.

From Chicago to Isle Royale, from the Thousand islands to Duluth, stretches a magnificent playground; waterways of loveliness and of extent to deserve the name inland seas; shores of picturesqueness equal to far-famed ones across the water. And that Americans are beginning to show fondness for their own lake country is evidenced by the number of city folk that now spend almost half the year in the region of the inland waters. On the shores of our Lake Geneva, the one in Wisconsin, there is a summer colony of millionaires, people whose incomes allow of travel far and wide, and yet summer after summer finds the families quietly sojourning here, here obtaining good yachting on the broad waters, and as fine opportunities for golf, riding and kindred sports in the country round as could be desired. And, last but by no means least, opportunity for settled country life. The rich American of a generation back was a globe-trotter primarily; to-day he is taking to farming, to long days at his out-of-town place.

In the southern portion of the resort-land under discussion, the seeker after change has offered him beautiful farming country, excellent roads, and lake and stream in which to find sport and refreshment; to the north are wide wildernesses of pine woods, big game and small, myriads of lakes where abound fish that it is sport to angle for. In northern Illinois, Wisconsin, the upper peninsula of Michigan, and Minnesota, alone, there are over 1,600 lakes and 1,200 streams. The wonder is, therefore, not that the number of holiday makers exploring this region is yearly increasing, but that they did not earlier discover its charms.

To be sure, there continues quite a summer exodus of Chicago and other inland city families to the eastern resorts and to Europe, but many are well content to take their outings within a hundred miles of the home city. As not a few of the English aristocracy have country homes within touring distance of London, can go into town in a few hours, dinner guests can easily come out, likewise about Chicago there is established society enjoying out-of-town pleasures and yet in close touch with the city. Especially to the north have the society folk taken hold. Lake Forest, Oconomowoc and Lake Geneva suggest large leisure, beautiful homes, fox-hunting, touring-cars, all the modern accompaniments of "simple country life."

Not only is there beauty of landscape, pure air, and opportunities a plenty for outdoor exercise to attract, but the great lakes country is full of historic spots of interest; here wandered, and not so very long ago, the trapper, the Indian trader, and here, in the north, still dwells the red man himself.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

Late Returns Place Republican Plurality at 27,000.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 14.—Returns from the little towns in the back woods and a careful revision of the first figures place the Republican plurality in the state election at about 27,000.

Returns from 450 cities, towns and plantations out of 522 give William T Cobb (Rep.), 75,954; Cyrus W. Davis (Dem.), 50,017. Same places in 1900 gave Hill (Rep.), 72,541; Lord (Dem.) 39,714. The Republican gain over 1900 is now estimated at 5 per cent and the Democratic gain at 24 per cent.

Additional returns in the congressional districts have not altered the result, all four congressmen being returned by pluralities ranging from 5,000 to 7,000.

Next year's senate will probably stand 27 Republicans and 4 Democrats, as against 29 Republicans and 1 Democrat in the last legislature. It is estimated that the house will be 121 Republicans and 30 Democrats. The last house stood 131 Republicans and 20 Democrats.

Pathfinder Picked Up Derelict.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The steamer Pathfinder, Captain Parse, arrived from Norfolk with the derelict British schooner Theta in tow. The Pathfinder picked the derelict up at sea last Sunday near the Five Fathoms Bank lightship while bound from Norfolk for Boston with a cargo of coal. When she sighted the derelict her sails were all set. She evidently had been hastily abandoned after being in collision with an unknown vessel. The fate of her crew is unknown. Her starboard quarter was stove in, but otherwise the hull was in good condition. She was leaking badly, but was kept afloat by the cargo of hard pine timber in her hold.

Rubber Plants Resume Work.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—After an idleness of a week the plants of Morgan & Wright and the Mechanical Rubber company have been opened without an agreement with the Rubber Workers' union. The two companies employ under normal conditions 1,000 men. Nearly that number of workers, it was said, applied as individuals for employment, but half of them were told to come back later, as it was impossible to start the plants with full forces. The men hired were former union members, the companies claimed. The Rubber Workers' union had an agreement with the manufacturers which expired on Aug. 31.

Favorites Win at Highland Park.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 14.—The players again found the picking of winners at Highland park a rather easy matter. Every winner was well backed, and the ring had the worst of it. The feature event, a five furlong handicap for two-year-olds, was won by the favorite, Muozon, in a hard drive with Capitano and The Pet. Lady Hortense was a wild tip for the opening number, but failed to land inside the money. Rough Rider made his first appearance of the meeting in the closing event and made a runaway race of it after being smartly backed.

Canadian Pacific Bandits Surrounded

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 14.—The highwaymen who held up the Canadian Pacific railroad express and secured $10,000 are thought to be surrounded in the woods behind Mount Lehman, near the Washington boundary. They were tracked by footprints and other marks in the muddy unused trail. Policemen and detectives from three cities besides many detectives of the Canadian Pacific railway are in the party surrounding the robbers, who are heavily armed.

Convict Escapes In Mother's Clothes.

BRISTOL, Va., Sept. 14.—Wiley Gibson, a youth being held in the Lee county jail at Jonesville, Va., to await conveyance to the penitentiary at Richmond to serve a five years' sentence for robbery, made good his escape by departing from the prison clad in the dress and bonnet of his aged mother who had been left alone with her son that she might say goodby.

Killed by a New York Central Train.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Miss Blanche Sheldon of Sennett was killed by a train while driving across the tracks of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad. Her mother, Mrs. Erwin Sheldon, and Miss May Lockwood, who were in the carriage, escaped injury by jumping. The horses attached to the vehicle were killed.

Big Shipment of Gold.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The local agent of the London and River Plate bank announces a shipment of $500,000 gold to Buenos Ayres.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Dan Patch, the famous pacing horse, was reported sick at Topeka, Kan., and may die.

The German government will ask the reichstag to increase the army, probably by 30,000 or 40,000 men.

The receipts of the United States treasury exceeded the expenditures for the first time in the fiscal year.

The trust company and savings bank sections of the American Bankers' association met at the Waldorf in New York city.

Mrs. Lawrence C. Phipps, wife of the Pittsburg millionaire, who is suing for divorce, admitted that a settlement of the case had been reached.

The strike of the wire drawers at the American Steel and Wire company's plant at Sharon, Pa., was settled, and the men returned to work.

A train on the Rock Island railroad was held up near Letts, Ia., by five bandits and the express safe blown open. The robbers were said to have got little or no money.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW.

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

GEORGIA TRAIN WRECKED.

Third In Four Days—Negro Arrested on Suspicion.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 14.—The third train in four days to be wrecked on the Central met with an accident while on its way from Atlanta to Savannah, a cross tie having been laid on the rails.

Officials immediately began an investigation, and within a few hours a negro was arrested on suspicion of having been concerned in the wrecking.

The train was a fast one and was running about forty-five miles an hour when the locomotive struck the cross tie. It is considered remarkable by railroad men that a serious accident with heavy loss of life did not occur.

It is believed that an organized band of train wreckers has been at work for some time in this portion of the state.

OUR SAMOAN ARMY

THE NATIVES TAKE KINDLY TO DRILL AND DISCIPLINE.

Their Uniforms Are Cheap, But Gorgeous Affairs of Many Colors—How Soldiers Are Selected by the Villages.

Pango-Pango, Island of Tutuila.—It is often said, in a spirit of mild criticism, that the uniform of the American soldier is too plain, too quiet.

It certainly lacks the gold lace and showy colors worn by most of the European armies. But we have succeeded in enrolling under our banner one style of regimentals that will surely never arouse reproach under that head. Uncle Sam has fitted out his tropic forces like the lilies of their own fields.

When the Samoan islands ceded two of their number to the United States, we found a peaceable, loveable people ready to make fri

DIAMOND DUST.

The complete record of Charles Walton's work in sixteen games he played with the Plainfield A. C., shows that he was at the bat sixty-six times, made three runs, nine hits, one stolen base, six sacrifice hits, twenty-two put-outs, fifty assists and seven errors.

The question of Sunday baseball has reached a point in the National and American Leagues that calls for serious consideration brought about by the western magnates. It is claimed that these games do not pay, even in the west, where such large crowds attend. It is argued that the class going to the Sunday contests generally occupy the twenty-five cent seats, while the grandstand is comparatively empty. Another disadvantage presented is that the players should have one day's rest in order to insure first-class work during the other six days. There is also a movement on foot to make the grandstand seats more comfortable, even if a slight increase in price is demanded.

GOLF.

The events at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club on Saturday will include the stated play for the Women's Handicap cup and regular play for the Golf Committee and Gaston cups.

The regular club team will play a match with the team at the Westfield Golf Club. This match is in the Central Jersey Golf League tournament.

Besides the team match at the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday between the home team and the Park Golf Club team, there will be the semi-final play in the Governors' competition.

SEVENTEEN REPUBLICAN VOTES IN ONE FAMILY

ABNER S. CORIELL, OF NEW MARKET, CAN CLAIM A RECORD.

Disputing the statement published in a metropolitan paper some time ago to the effect that a certain citizen of Montana held the title of having in his immediately family the largest number of Republican voters in the country, Abner S. Coriell, of New Market, a staunch supporter of the G. O. P. for more than fifty years, now claims that the title justly belongs to himself. The fact that Mr. Coriell himself is the father of five sons and three married daughters roused his interest to count up the number of voters in his family and their descendants. The grand total of seventeen Republican ballots cast each election beats the Montana man's record by one and gives to a Jersey man a national record. Added to Mr. Coriell's steady Republican ballot, the voters are as follows: Smalley Coriell, residing at Bound Brook, and his two sons; Charles Coriell, of Dunellen, and two sons; the two sons of the late Samuel Coriell, who are now living at New Brunswick George and William Coriell, of New Market. These votes from the families of Mr. Coriell's sons must be added to the ballots of Melvin VanKeuren, a brother-in-law, residing in Jersey City, and the father of two Republican sons; Charles Elliott and son, of Scotch Plains, and E. A. White, of Red Bank, another son-in-law.

E. B. Clark, of Crescent avenue, is greatly improved from a tedious illness.

Miss Clara Smith, of Duer street, has returned from her annual vacation.

Dr. F. C. Ard, of Park Avenue, has returned from Berlin after an absence of seven weeks.

—Joseph Cutille, of North avenue, has secured a permit to construct a two story wing on his home near Terrill road. The addition will be occupied as a store. James Redin will do the carpenter work.

Sunday's collections at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church were devoted to mission work in Mexico and South America. Round sums were realized.

Owing to a severe throat affection, Miss Linda Butler has been obliged to temporarily give up her Sunday-school class at the First Baptist church.

The delegates attending the twelfth annual sessions of the New Jersey Baptist State Convention, colored, held in the Mt. Olive Baptist church, have returned home. During their stay they were entertained by members of the church.

Holy Communion was administered Sunday at the morning service at St. Stephens' church, Netherwood. The Rev. William H. Neilson was celebrant and was assisted by Rev. Arthur S. Peck, rector of the church. In the absence of Charles M. Suhr, the church organist, Willam A. Conger, of Mountain avenue, was at the organ.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the First M. E. church, held its first fall meeting in Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon.

Dr. F. H. Martin, formerly a resident of this city, but now assistant pastor of Dr. Halloway's Church, at Dover, N. J., was the guest of friends here yesterday.
